Pirates Closing Up Pennant Gap

3 JAILBREAKERS IN HOLDUP WAVE

STORES YIELD CASH

Police redoubled their efforts today to capture three youths who escaped from the Clarion County Jail September 15, convinced from partial identification by victims that the trio is the same which Saturday night robbed three drug stores in Wilkinsburg, ushering in a week-end of bandit operations climaxed at 7 a. m. today with the holdup of a United Cigar store at Fifth avenue and William Penn way, in the heart of Pittsburgh's Golden Triangle.

While Wilkinsburg and Pittsburgh detectives combed suspected hang-outs of the youths, the report of the cigar store robbery followed closely that of gasoline filling stations in Wilkinsburg and Homewood and the arrest of a Negro as he jimmied the window of an office in Second avenue.

The raid of the youthful trio of bandits on the drug stores came in one-two-three order. First they entered the Shady Avenue Pharmacy, 527 Shady avenue. While police were rushing to the scene a similar report came from the Columbia Pharmacy, Penn and Trenton avenues, Wilkinsburg, and a few minutes later the police were called to the Levis Pharmacy, 760 Rebecca avenue, Wilkinsburg. From the three stores the bandits gathered a total of $265.

The bandits took $165 from the cash register in the Shady avenue pharmacy after forcing Louis Bluestone, manager, into the prescription room. In the Columbia pharmacy they took $50 after forcing Homer Townsend, manager, Kenneth Smith, clerk, and three patrons into a similar room, while V. H. Levis, proprietor, and J. E. Schafer, clerk, turned over $150 when covered with revolvers in the Levis pharmacy.

The youths, partially identified by the victims, were said to be James Gettie, 25; his brother, Albert, 19, of 240 Preston street, and Joseph McDonald, 18, of 3126 Landis street, Crafton, who escaped from the Clarion county jail unhurt by bullets fired

Shot Him For Threats

MRS. FRANCES BENAQUESTA

Mrs. Benaquesta, 34, 414 Taylor street, shot her husband, Louis Benaquesta, 36, in the chest while he lay on a couch. "He beat me and threatened to kill me for seven years," she told Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court. She was held over pending the outcome of her husband's injuries.

ABUSED FOR 7 YEARS SHE SHOOTS HUSBAND

A story of seven long years of abuse, of a love turned to hatred by threats and blows, of "another woman" to which her husband had turned, was related in Morals Court today as Mrs. Francisca Benaquesta, 34, of 414 Taylor street, attempted to explain why it was she crept to the side of her husband, Louis, 36, while he slept Sunday and put a bullet from his own revolver into his breast.

Calmly, monotonously, almost indifferently this housewife of another land laid her troubles on the bar of justice.

THREATENED TO KILL, SAYS

Louis was cruel to her, she told Judge A. D. Brandon. Frequently he struck her, she added, making a half-motion to roll up her sleeves where an ugly black and blue bruise peeped from under a starchy-clean blouse. He threatened to kill her, too and taunted her with the "other woman" with whom he spent most of his time, she said.

Yesterday the climax came. After a more violent period of abuse than usual, as her husband lay sleeping on a couch in their home, she said she secured his gun from a dresser drawer. She crept softly to his side, put the muzzle of the weapon to his breast and fired.

She wasn't sorry, she said. She indicated she believed it was justice. She charged Louis had killed her brother three years ago.

The husband is in the West Penn Hospital, where physicians say he may recover. Meanwhile the wife is being held.

Victims of Clairton 'Hit and Run' Driver

BERTHA PATRICK JULIA PATRICK EMMA PATRICK MARGARET MARCEVIS

Four girls were run down by a speeding autoist who failed to stop after the mishap at Clairton. Two of the girls, twins, are in a serious condition at McKeesport Hospital. Bertha and Julia Patrick, twins, 20, of 1137 Toman avenue, Clairton, are in the McKeesport Hospital; Emma Patrick, 18, a sister, and Margaret Marcevis, 17, a neighbor, were only slightly injured.

Buccos Draw Up On Flag

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—If the folks back in Pittsburgh could have seen the Pirates winning a double victory over the Cubs in the face of thirty thousand Cub backers yesterday afternoon, they surely would have been proud of their favorites. Backs against the wall, as a result of their ill luck with the Giants in the last two games at Forbes Field, the Bushwhackers looked the part of champs as they earned a double success to gain a full game on the New Yorkers and to hold their two-game advantage over the Cardinals, who also won a sugar-coated triumph in two battles with the Braves.

The Pirates this morning were in a happy frame of mind as they looked forward to the contest of this afternoon. They had the confidence of a Tunney as they took up the

COULDN'T HELP IT

J. T. Scheider, a freshman at the University of Pittsburgh, who hails from Everett, Pa., received his first college lesson today at the hands of the almighty sophomores, and Scheider says if things continue as they are he's going to like Pitt. Scheider at first was a bit shy when ordered to propose to Miss Della Lefridge of Carnegie Tech, but a bit of persuasion from the soph at the right overcame his scruples.

THIRD WARD BALLOTING MISCOUNT IS BARED

The cry of fraud was sent echoing about the courthouse today with the work of the returning board, tabulating returns of Tuesday's primary, hardly under way.

Thomas W. McDonald, representative of the Pennsylvania Elections' Association, who is one of nearly a score watching the official counts, declared that there was unmistakable evidence of fraud in the returns which had been rechecked by his organization and at his request.

Judges John A. Evans and Ambrose Reid, presiding over the returning board, ordered the ballot boxes of the Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth districts of the Third Ward brought in. On their own initiative, they also ordered the box from the Fourteenth District brought in.

It was declared that in the Ninth

4 GIRLS RUN DOWN BY HIT-SKIP DRIVER

Four girls, two of them twin sisters, were struck by a speeding automobile in Clairton about 9:30 o'clock last night.

The owner of the machine, Alfred White, 39, Negro, of 133 Broad street, Clairton, is under arrest, it being alleged that his son drove the car into the girls and then sped away leaving two of them critically injured by the roadside.

The twins were most seriously injured. They are Julia and Bertha Patrick, 20, of 1137 Toman avenue, Clairton. Another sister, Emma Patrick, 18, and Margaret Marcevis, 16, a neighbor, were bruised and cut.

The twins are in McKeesport Hospital where it is feared Julia may die. Their mother and father

WOMAN SEIZED; HURLED OUT OF AUTO

Overpowered by two men with whom she put up a terrific struggle in Fourth avenue, near Market street, Mrs. Elizabeth Russell, 32, of 220 Southern avenue, was dragged into an automobile early yesterday morning and then hurled into the street by the men. When picked up she was semi-conscious. At the Mercy Hospital it was stated she had suffered a fracture of the right leg and severe bruises and lacerations.

According to pedestrians, the woman was standing on the curb apparently waiting for a street car when the two men who had parked their machine with the engine running nearby approached her. Without warning they attempted to pick her up and half dragged and half carried her to the machine as she screamed and fought.

She was bundled into the rear of the machine by one of the men as the other leaped behind the wheel and started to drive away.

J. L. Wagner, of 2212 Lawson street, was one of those who went to her aid and followed the machine. As it gathered speed Mrs. Russell was thrown into the street. Wagner said he believed the woman's leg was fractured when it struck a pole as she battled with her captors.

At the hospital Miss Russell was revived and regained her composure sufficiently to be able to tell the police she was certain her captors were men she had once met. City detectives and police are searching for two suspects she named.

GIRL WHO PILOTS -:- "AMERICAN GIRL" -:- ON OCEAN FLIGHT

MERRY

Ruth Elder, youthful pilot of the American Girl, shows her pleasure in a flashing smile. The photo was taken at Roosevelt Field, where her plane w being tuned up.

RUTH GROWS PENSIVE

The daring young girl in a moment of pensiveness. Why pensive? Young men wishing they were the cause have but a very slim chance, for Miss Elder all but admits she's married. Most likely she's wondering what fate the long sea flight holds.

HE'LL ACCOMPANY HER

Miss Elder with her co-pilot, Capt. George Haldeman, who'll be second in command when the American Girl slips out over the Atlantic eastward bound. He may take the plane off, but Miss Elder will take the stick once it's in the air. She wants to actually pilot a plane to Paris, not merely be a passenger in one.

BEAUTY WINNER

Here's the pose that won the girl pilot a beauty contest at Lakeland, Fla., and attracted the attention of wealthy backers willing to suply the financial sinews for her flight. The backers are Wheeling, W. Va., men who have as strong faith in Miss Elder's flying ability as they have admiration for her beauty.

FEMININE

She's quite feminine, too, as you may see above. Part of the equipment she'll take on her flight is a vanity case. So far she hasn't sought any letters of introduction.

M'GOVERN, BABCOCK CLASH

Differences that verge on ill-feeling flared between County Controller C. C. McGovern and County Commisisoner E. V. Bacock this morning when McGovern went on record as being opposed to expending a large sum for menageries in the North and South parks when children are forced to trudge "through mud up to their shoulders" to get to school over many county roads.

The controller voiced his opposition when he and the commissioners were deciding to throw out the low bid submitted for fencing the menagerie territory, which is estimated to cost approximately $19,000 for both parks. New bids will be advertised for immediately.

PREFERS ROADS

"I'm generally opposed to this," McGovern stated. "That $20,000 would probably pave five miles of hard road."

His expression was allowed to pass for the moment, but at the conclusion of the hearing Babcock asked if the controller wished to go on record as being opposed.

"That $20,000 would 'red-dog' roads to keep children out of mud up to their shoulders," McGovern replied, affirming his opposition.

Babcock said he was in favor of red-dogging roads, but he believed the people wanted the menageries.

ROCK SLIDE KILLS MAN AT JENNERS, PA.

SOMERSET, Pa., Sept. 26.—(Special.)—Elmer I. Shirley, 46, who operated a taxicab service at Boswell for years, was killed, and Joseph Bucosky, 46, suffered a fractured right leg when they were caught beneath a fall of rock at the mine of the Consolidated Coal Company at Jenners.

by the Sheriff's wife after they had been arrested charged with the robbery of a gasoline station. Bluestone, Smith and Levis made their identification from photographs of the three young men.

Daniel Coos, aged 24, of 5510 Baywood street, had just opened the downtown cigar store when what he thought was an early morning patron entered. Coos stood behind the counter and found himself looking into the barrel of a revolver. The bandit forced him to the rear of the store, made him open the safe and after taking the $214 it contained bound Coos hand and foot. Reed Cree, a taxicab driver, saw him there 15 minutes later and released him.

Half an hour before the cigar store holdup Frank Kellerman of 1017 Brushton avenue, attendant at the Gulf Refining Company station at Penn avenue and West street, Wilkinsburg, was held up by a lone bandit, who took $15 from the cash register, after which he forced Kellerman to enter the basement of the station, where he remained for five minutes under threat of death.

Holmes Protective Service operatives arrested Horace Nicholas, Negro, 24, of 12 Beebe street when they answered an alarm to the office of W. F. Wimer Company, 700 Second avenue. The Negro was jimmying the window and ran until five shots caused him to halt and surrender.

Two young bandits, with handkerchiefs concealing their faces, walked into the American Gas and Oil filling station, 6600 Hamilton avenue, last midnight, held up Lawrence Carr, attendant, at the point of a gun and took $31 from the safe. Seventy-nine dollars on a desk, which Carr had been counting, was overlooked by the bandits. Carr told the police that the bandits evidently were afoot as he did not see a car when they left.

WOMAN FLIER POSTPONES HOP OFF

By ELWIN B. THOMPSON,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Two air Amazons racing over the angry Atlantic with Europe as their goal may be the next ethereal event served the thrill-loving world.

This loomed as a possibility last night when announcements were made that Ruth Elder, the diminutive flying Southerner, has postponed her take-off for Paris until Wednesday and that Frances W. Grayson, flying realtor and society woman, would hop to Old Orchard, Me., this week to investigate desirability of the place as a taking-off point for Europe.

Miss Elder and her navigator, Capt. George Haldeman, cruised over New York yesterday on a pleasure trip in the Stinson-Detroiter in which the smiling aviatrix intends to span the Atlantic. They said that the reason for the definite postponement of the take-off on the long transoceanic flight was due to a low pressure area over the Atlantic.

Miss Grayson did not fly today. The crew of her big ship, a Sikorsky amphibian, consists of Wilmer Stultz and Bryce Goldsborough.

Miss Grayson has contended all along that her trip across the Atlantic was for scientific purposes only and that there would be no race with Miss Elder.

However, postponements of Miss Elder's flight have moved the date up until there is a possibility that sunset on the Atlantic some day soon will find the two American women contending for the honor to be the first woman to span the ocean by air.

Bottle Note Tells Nungesser-Coli Tragedy Tale

NORFOLK, VA., Sept. 26.—(AP.)—A bottle containing a message, signed "Nungesser and Coli," and purporting to be a call for aid by the two French airmen who were lost on their Paris-New York flight, has been picked up by a coast guard patrolman near Manteo, N. C.

If the message was a hoax, according to witnesses of the discovery, it was planned carefully. The message was written on a piece of airplane linen in English, and read: "We are lost at sea off Halifax, N. S.; please send aid immediately. Airplane wreck; finder please notify."

POLICE CAPTAIN SLAIN, DAYTON FEARS RIOTS

By International News Service.

DAYTON, O., Sept. 26.—All city policemen in Dayton today were ordered on 12-hour shifts, following the death of Police Captain John C. Post, 46, one of three officers wounded late Saturday in a gun battle with Otto Bridges, a Negro fugitive, whom they attempted to arrest.

Feeling was running high here, and both Bridges, who was seriously wounded, and Roy Freeman, another Negro under indictment for killing a policeman several weeks ago, have been removed for safekeeping to Franklin county jail at Columbus.

No arrest has been made in the killing of Alfred Knight, a private detective, shot by two Negroes September 15.

A Dayton policeman, mentally upset by the slaying of officers here, crept into a local hospital prior to the removal of Bridges late Saturday and fired two shots at the Negro prisoners. He was being treated for nervous disorder today.

TWO ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Two murder cases were begun in Criminal Court today.

The defendants are Alfred Leonard Chenowich, accused of having fatally stabbed Marie Angelo, 22, at their home, 27 Fleming avenue, Stowe township, February 13, and William Harrington, 18, Negro, charged with the killing of Ernest Moore, 28, Negro, in front of 614 Protectory place, April 4. Both lived at 72 Van Braam street. Selection of a jury in the Chenowich case was completed.

GERMAN AIR TOURISTS OVERDUE

LONDON, Sept. 26.—(AP.)—More than 48 hours had passed this morning without word of Lieut. Otto Koennecke, German long distance flier and his companions in the biplane Germania who left Angora, Turkey, Saturday for Basra, at the head of the Persian Gulf.

Konnecke, accompanied by Johannes Hermann, radio operator, and Count George Cedric Solms-Laubach, financial backer of the expedition, is attempting a flight from Cologne, Germany, to America by way of the Orient.

Basra has radio communication with Great Britain and Germany by way of Beirut and Cairo, as well as telegraphic connections, and the fact that the German airmen have not been reported has given rise to some uneasiness.

PART OF "FOLLIES" ON AIR WEDNESDAY

A portion of Ziegfeld's "Follies" will be broadcast for the first time from the stage of the New Amsterdam, in New York, during the "Old Gold on Broadway" broadcast on Wednesday night. A "welcome home" to James J. Walker, New York City's chief executive, as part of the performance of the "Ziegfeld's Follies," starring Eddie Cantor, will be put on at 10:30 o'clock Eastern standard time.

BOBS RULE IN JURY COIFFURES

Black silk and satin dresses, blue fabrics and a preponderance of strings of beads bedecked the forms of 122 women called for jury duty today in Common Plea Court, the largest number on record in the Allegheny county courts.

It was noticeable that a very large percentage of the women of mature years have bobbed heads, even though some of them are gray. Like the men, the women remove their hats, that being another indication of equality with men.

Jury trials started today, nearly half of the jurors called being women and most of them house wives. There are very few young women in the present panel.

are at the bedside, having spent the night and all day today with the girls and praying for their recovery while the grandmother and two other sisters and a brother anxiously await news at home.

Emma is able to get around despite her injuries, but she limps and complains of a pain in her arm. She tells about the accident when neighbors drop in for word from the hospital.

"Gosh, it happened so quick. We were just returning home from a walk down the road. We didn't even hear the machine. It just ploughed right into us and knocked us over in the ditch. My two sisters were on the inside, so they were hurt the most.

"The car swerved back to the other side of the road and sped away. The driver never even slowed down and he was out of sight almost before I knew just what happened."

Clairton police traced the car by its license number and found it in White's garage. He denied knowledge of the accident and told authorities that his son had been driving it last night. A search is being made for the youth. He is George White, aged 18.

district of the same ward, the returns totaled 150 more votes than had been cast and this box also was ordered in.

There was a momentary flurry of excitement this morning when the envelope for the Third District of the First Ward failed to contain a tally sheet. Judges Evans and Reid ordered the ballot box brought in and the missing sheet was found in it.

Among those watching the returns are representatives of the Pennsylvania Elections Association, representatives of various candidates and County Controller Charles C. McGovern, who has postponed his county audit hearings in order that he may direct his attention to the election.

On the statement of Thomas W. McDonald, representing the Pennsylvania Elections Association, that more votes were cast than were registered, the court ordered in boxes of the Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth districts, Third ward. The judges on their own initiative asked that the box of the Fourteenth district be brought in.

The court also called in the ballot box of the Third District, Third Ward.

At noon the Sixteenth Ward, Pittsburgh, had been reached on the regular count, Brackenridge in the boroughs and Elizabeth in the townships.

FEAR FLYING ACTRESS IS DEAD

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 26.—Reports of a flaming plane having been seen falling to earth 10 miles south of Barstow Thursday night, turned the search for Marion Mack, film actress, to the Yuma Desert last night. Miss Mack, who started with Pilot Frank Tommick in a flight to Chicago, has been missing since Wednesday.

Two prospectors returning last night from their claim on the desert between Barstow and Daggett reported seeing a fiery streak, they believed to be a burning plane, drop from the skies late Thursday night. At the time the two men did not know of the missing Spirit of Hollywood. They believed the plane was forced down Wednesday and after possible repairs another hop-off taken only to result in the plane catching fire.

Louis Lewyn, husband of the film player, has offered $1,000 reward for definite information of the missing plane.

Half a dozen planes have joined the search.

Severe Cold Wave Headed East

WEST HAS SNOW; 34 ABOVE IN DENVER

DENVER, Sept. 26.—(AP.)—Fed by freezing temperatures in the Central Rocky Mountain states that brought the first snow of the season to Wyoming and Colorado prairies, a cold wave today swept Eastward with the prospect it would continue into the Upper Mississippi valley.

The cold wave struck Northern Wyoming yesterday and changed rain to snow after one of the hottest days in weeks. The storm continued throughout the day at New Castle and extended South and East of Denver, where snow melted as it fell. The thermometer dropped to 34 degrees above zero here.

Points in Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri reported a cold rain last night with the mercury slowly approaching 50 degrees. Forecasts called for thermometers to sink to the lower thirties today as far east as Northern Wisconsin, with rain and possibly snow.

Bootleggers Drive Opera Lovers To Galleries

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—And now it's the gallery—the far-famed "Nigger Heaven"—for the men and women of means who go to the performances of the Chicago Opera Company, ticket sales for the fall season disclose.

Opera company officials, checking advance sales, said that many patrons who formerly purchased high-priced seats have been compelled to buy cheaper ones.

It is surmised here that the boxes and main floor seats have been taken over by the new "financial elite"—the bootlegging brethren headed by such notable gentlemen of culture as "Scarface Al" Capone, "Polack Joe" Saltis and their ilk.

HELD FOR FIRING SHOTS AT GIRL

Charles Lubert, 28, of 510 Todd street, Wilkinsburg, was held over in Morals Court today after he had admitted that he fired two shots at his sweetheart, Helen Gross, 26, of [illegible] Station street, when she came to his barber shop at 111 North Whitfield street to keep a date with him Sunday. Both shots went wild although, according to testimony, the second was fired as Miss Gross was lying in a faint on the floor. Lubert said he was intoxicated and did not know what he was doing.

Briton Breaks Record In Schneider Air Race

VENICE, Italy, Sept. 26.—(AP.)—Flight Lieut. S. N. Webster, in a super-marine Napier, S-5 monoplane, today smashed all existing seaplane speed records in capturing the famous Schneider cup for Great Britain. Italy had held the cup for the past year as a result of its victory over the United States at Hampton Roads, in 1926.

Lieut. Webster averaged 453,282 kilometers or 281.488 miles an hour as compared with the record of 246.496 miles an hour established by Maj. Mario De Bernardi, of the Italian Royal Air Force, who won the race last year.

Flight Lieutenant E. Worsley of Great Britain finished second, averaging 439.472 kilometers, or 272.912 miles an hour, also exceeding the record established last year by Maj. De Bernardi.

Plane, Auto Crash At Akron

AKRON, O., Sept. 26.—(AP.)—Traffic hazards of the future are forecast by an automobile-airplane crash here last evening.

B. E. "Shorty" Fulton was circling to land his plane at Fulton Field here, when Mrs. Rose Robinson drove her automobile onto the field under his plane.

As he levelled off four or five feet from the ground there was a jar and a crash. "That certainly was a rough landing," said Fulton.

"Yes," said one of his passengers, "you just hit an automobile."

Steal $600 In School Funds

WOODLAWN, Pa., Sept. 26.—The entire fund for student activities was stolen from the Harding High School here when robbers last night exploded the office safe and escaped with more than $600. Included were the receipts from the Freedom-Woodlawn high school football game on Saturday which had been locked up by Principal Roy Jackson for safe keeping.

Disarmament and Diplomats? Will Says "Ha! Ha!"

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 26.—Arthur Brisbane says that 11 people died listening over the radio to the fight. They just committed suicide waiting for the announcer to quit announcing the list of papers, and tell them who won the fight.

WILL ROGERS

Germany, this morning in the paper, wants everybody to disarm, saying they disarmed. Yes, but look what it cost to disarm 'em. Is it worth that, making a nation disarm?

Besides disarming only prolongs wars. Both sides fight till they get 'em. We didn't have any when we went in last time. Less diplomats is what you want, not less arms.

Yours,
WILL.

Boys Held As Vandals In 'Ghost Hunt' Case

No fault was found with two youthful ghost-hunters who prowled through the Ridge avenue residence of Mrs. William Penn Snyder, which they believed was haunted, but three other boys who are alleged to have wrecked a valuable pipe-organ and carried off costly furniture and draperies to junk dealers were held for court on charges of malicious mischief, breaking and entering a building and larceny when the case was brought before Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court today.

Jesse Jarvis, 17, of 952 North avenue; Edward Breen, 19, of 111 Samson street, and Gerald Coughlin, 21, of 2520 Charles street, were held for court. Frank Rogers, 16, of 417 East General Robinson street, and Wilbert Neimeier, 16, of 19 Geranium street, who said that they went to the house to look for a ghost and fled when they saw that the place had been wrecked, were discharged.

SENATOR RETURNS, SAYS FRANCE IS FRIENDLY

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The American Legion convention in Paris and the flight of Charles Lindbergh have cemented friendly relations between the peoples of France and the United States, Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, declared today on returning from a month's tour of Europe.

Senator Reed said the "most impressive things about the Legion's convention were the dignity of the American veterans on parade and on the streets of Paris," and the cordiality with which they were greeted by the people of France.

"The convention," he added, "increased the good feeling and understanding between the two peoples, but I think it will have no bearing on the debt settlements."

The Pennsylvania Senator predicted a Republican victory in the next Presidential election, but declined to endorse any potential candidate.

"I can't talk about the next campaign," he said. "It's entirely too early and it's even too soon to begin guessing about candidates.

"The Republican administration has been tremendously successful and the country as a whole has been satisfied with Republican policies. I expect the Republican nominee in 1928 will be easily elected but I can't prophecy who he will be."

Having crossed on the Leviathan, Senator Reed said the shipping board liner was excellently managed, but that he was opposed to "the government undertaking more shipbuilding." He urged the government to issue favorable mail contracts as a means of aiding private ship owners.

The Pennsylvania Senator came out for a stronger Navy. He said the present Navy was "Lopsided, because it is deficient in cruisers. Congress must make up that shortage at its next session," he declared.

LIVE RIGHT IS FISHER KEY

HARRISBURG, Sept. 26.—Normal living and plenty of sleep, Gov. John S. Fisher said today, are the two principal factors in keeping his doctor bills to $5 for his lifetime. The Chief Executive says he eats moderately. His health has been good since childhood.

The Governor admitted that he has been a good patron of doctors for other members of his family.

Walking is Gov. Fisher's favorite exercise and for many years he was accustomed to walking rapidly for an hour before dinner. But he finds it hard to devote much time to it, now that his duties are so great.

"My health naturally has been good," the Governor says. "I owe much to my forebears.

Gov. Fisher said he experimented with smoking in his early life, but gave it up. "I didn't get sick, but I quit smoking a long time ago," was the way he put it.

Indulgence in stimulants does not have any charms for Pennsylvania's Governor. He declared he never had the temptation to drink.

PASTOR DECRIES FIGHT INTEREST

Speaking Sunday morning at the First Presbyterian Church on the Apostle John, the third in a series of sermons, on "Mountain Peaks of the New Testament," the Rev. Dr. Clarence Edward Macartney said St. John drew a sharp line of division between the church and the world. He said:

"The trouble with the church today is that it has so much of the world, that it is hard to tell where the world ends, and the church begins. By the world, St. John meant that world which is of the earth, earthly; materialistic, sensual, animal, and which is animated by the spirit of anti-Christ.

"Does anyone doubt that that anti-Christian world is still with us? Last Wednesday, standing on the platform at Princeton Junction, I saw train after train, section after section of the Broadway limited go thundering and roaring past. Where were these trains going? To the prize fight in Chicago. And from all parts of the country trains were heading for the same goal. To this, at last, it has come. In the year of our independence 151, and in the year of our Lord, 1927, in the nation which has been proud to think of its moral leadership and responsibility, in one of the most advanced cities of that nation, and on one of the greatest avenues of the world, on ground consecrated to those who gave the last full measure of devotion to truth and liberty, 150,000 citizens, with millions of invisible spectators, pay $2,000,000 to see an ex-tramp and an ex-marine batter one another in the squared ring. And this great throng, we are told, made up, not of the riff-raff and the baser sort, but bankers, educators, authors, mayors of our great cities and governors of our greatest commonwealths, and with enthusiastic, shouting women, not a few, and among these thousands undoubtedly many of the professed followers of our Lord Jesus Christ.

"Surely it is time for our nation to take pause for thought. This appalling and incongruous spectacle provides for us a surface crack through which we can gaze into that abyss which heaves and rages beneath the thin veneer of our vaunted civilization and culture.

"But this renaissance of paganism, and this worship of the beast does not represent America at its best. Will the better element in the nation, our editors, our scholars, our thoughtful citizens and our religious leaders keep silent while this humiliating stigma is branded upon the countenance of the nation?"

Losing Winner Hunts For Winning Loser

It's bad enough to have to pay off on a loser, but when you win and have paid off in a moment of temporary excitement—well, learn about that from a gentleman at Mayflower 4535.

It seems that this gentleman, who didn't want to give his name over the telephone, although Mayflower 4535 in the telephone book is listed as Joseph P. Schwer, 912 Bryn Mawr road, was among those present listening to the radio account of the Dempsey-Tunney fight. Before the fight started, he had wagered $55 on Gene Tunney with some other man in the crowd.

Then came the seventh round. "Tunney is down," came the voice over the radio. "They're counting—one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine—he's up—he's up."

But in the excitement and turmoil, the "he's up" sounded like "he's out" and Mayflower 4535 paid off. The "winner" went his way.

After the denouement, no trace of the gentleman of the sporting instincts could be found, so Mayflower 4535 inserted an advertisement in an attempt to locate him.

"I'll be satisfied if I can get back the money I had up without my winnings," Mayflower 4535 said ruefully today.

BREEDEN GIVEN CHILDREN

"He called me a 'pieface' and a 'low-born immigrant.' And he hit me after an argument at breakfast."—Mrs. Jane P. Breeden.

"She beat the children . . . I had to bathe them and sew buttons on their clothes."—Attorney Waldo P. Breeden.

That, in essence, was the testimony of man and wife in the habeas corpus proceedings which Attorney Breeden, 1025 Peermont avenue, Dormont, brought against Jane Breeden in Common Pleas Court today for the recovery of their two children, Waldo, Jr., 9, and Juanita, 10, whom he charges she took from the home on September 14. Divorce proceedings between the couple have been pending for a month.

Judge George V. Moore awarded custody of the children to the father with "a partial and liberal visitation period" each week-end for the mother. In announcing his decision Judge Moore said, after a private conversation with the children, that they had expressed a preference for the mother, but that her financial condition had weighed in the decision.

Breeden testified his wife deserted him thrice in two years and Mrs. Breeden testified that during one of their estrangements her husband drove up to her home with his stenographer seated beside him and took the two children for a ride.

TRACKS BOMBED AHEAD OF LEGIONNAIRES' TRAIN

BELATED TRAIN FOILS PLAN TO WRECK

By WILLIAM HILLMAN,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.
Special Cable Dispatch

NICE, France, Sept. 26.—Hundreds of American Legionnaires were wildly acclaimed along the Riviera after narrowly escaping catastrophe when a bomb was exploded at Golfe Juan and an attempt made to wreck their train, between Monte Carlo and Nice.

The bomb explosion, tearing up the road bed and rails about twenty miles from Nice, occurred five minutes before the express train carrying Legionnaires touring the south was due to arrive at that point. It was only a few hours before the special train carrying the Legion commanders on their "tour of good will" was scheduled to arrive at Nice.

The express train was carrying many Legionnaires who are visiting the south before returning to the United States. It was several minutes late in passing Golfe Juan, a piece of good fortune which averted a disaster.

When the outrage was reported the train's orders were changed and the remainder of the run to the Italian border was made over another line. The work of repairing the roadbed was not completed in time for the special train carrying Commander Savage, and his train had to be placed on an up-line track at Cagnes Sur Mer, arriving at Nice on schedule time.

Track walkers along the railroad between Monte Carlo and Nice came upon great piles of stones and sand heaped on the roadbed after the explosion, and inviting disaster to the oncoming express train.

A strip of canvas on which was a printed inscription reading "vive Sacco and Vanzetti" was found near the scene of the bomb explosion.

On the good will tour to numerous European cities are a large number of leading members of the American Legion.

Lost--Found

RAIMONDE VON MALUSKI

A blue-eyed blonde-haired boy of 6, deserted by an aged woman in a Baltimore park in 1926, is believed to be the kidnaped son of Mr. and Mrs. Raimonde Von Maluski of 260 West End avenue, New York City. Raimonde, who was abducted in March, 1925, is shown above.

M'ADOO FORCES BOOST WALSH

By Universal Service.

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 26.—Withdrawal from the presidential contest of William G. McAdoo does not mean that Gov. Al Smith will be permitted to walk through the delegate race unopposed, according to Democrats here who backed Mr. McAdoo in the 1924 fight.

Henry A. Moehlenpah, who directed the last McAdoo campaign, is insisting that steps be taken to rally the dry Democrats against the New York Governor.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana here on the Teapot Dome and other congressional probes, a Catholic and a dry, is the man about whom the anti-Smith forces now propose to rally.

With Walsh as their candidate, the McAdoo men believe they can make inroads on the Smith vote and put up a fight that will at least split the delegation.

CHURCH MARKED FOR BOMBS

By Universal Service.

OCEAN CITY, N. J., Sept. 26.—Extra policemen and members of the Morgan Ranck Post, American Legion, stood guard around the First Presbyterian Church here all night following information from postal authorities that the church had been mentioned in a bomb threat.

Guards likewise were stationed at other leading churches in the city and at banking institutions.

The postal authorities reported that a postcard mailed in Pennsylvania and intercepted there contained a picture of the church, together with a statement that it was to be blown up.

STING OF WASP CAUSES CRASH

By Universal Service.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Sept. 26.—An automobile toppled over an embankment here and dropped fifty feet, without damage, only to be demolished by a train. None of the occupants was hurt.

In the car were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cook of Bethlehem, Pa. A wasp stung Mr. Cook and he lost control of the sedan, and it went over a bank at the side of a railroad bridge. It landed on the tracks right side up. Mr. and Mrs. Cook were shaken up. Then the train made an appearance around a curve. Mr. and Mrs. Cook leaped to safety just before the locomotive struck the car.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 26.—Griff Jones, Albert Cooper and Wade Christy, Mahoning county commissioners, were summoned to appear before the grand jury today in connection with purchases of land for approaches to the South avenue viaduct. Alleged irregularities in connection with the transaction are to be probed.

30,000,000 CITY PEOPLE NOW UNDER ZONING LAWS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—More than thirty million people, representing more than 55 per cent of the urban population of the United States, now have the protection afforded by zoning ordinances, according to the Department of Commerce. Los Angeles, Cal., in 1909, was the first city to adopt zoning regulations. The general enactment and enforcement of zoning in the country has been a development of the last ten years.

Weeks at Home -:- Studio Tete-a-Tete -:- We're Waiting

ADA MAY is just Ada May in name, as the dainty star of "Rio Rita," Florenz Ziegfeld's outstanding musical hit in New York, but when she is at home she is Ada Mae Weeks. The theater took Weeks and gave her a month.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE, star of "Breakfast At Sunrise," evidently is on good terms with Mal St. Clair, the lad who directed the picture, judging from this "shot" in the United Artists' studio in Hollywood. In order that all would know he's a director, Mr. St. Clair hung the megaphone, symbol of his calling, on his studio chair.

NANA BRY is one of the inhabitants of the realm in which abides "The Circus Prince," the royal highness of which is to display itself here later in the season. Now thank us for giving you another reason for pleasant dreams.

Chaplin Studio, Idle Year, Now Hums With Activity As Comedian Plays Real Clown

By DOROTHY HERZOG.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 26.

OVER to visit Charlie Chaplin's set, and witness the comedian in camera action for the first time. The Chaplin studio, closed for a year, now buzzes with activity. Charlie is working on circus scenes under the Big Top. The canvass was taken out of the storehouse after months and hoisted into a goodly sized tent.

About 200 extras worked—and we mean worked—as the circus audience. Charlie had them laughing, applauding and enjoying themselves thoroughly. When they appeared weary, he would amuse them with a wise crack or a bit of ad lib, clowning.

He's an easy, friendly worker, this Charlie Chaplin. He possesses the ability to make his people feel that upon their individual enthusiasm depends the success of the picture. And he gets wholehearted results.

Pepy Dederer was the star of the day. Pepy walloped Charlie with a right that precipitated him into a somersault fall onto the sawdust. The scene unfolded thus:

Charlie prances gaily to one side of the ring, carrying a stack of plates. He wears his famous baggy trousers, turned-up shoes, tight coat, derby and cane outfit. A trick jackass, whose kicking and biting has victimized more than one person in the company, tears after Charlie. Evidently terrified, he drops the plates and takes a head dive into the audience, bowing over Pepy and another woman.

Hurriedly gaining his feet, Charlie apologized profusely to the older woman. Pepy grabs his shoulder and spins him around, giving him Hail Columbia for his awkwardness. As he tries to explain, she floors him with an uppercut to the chin.

"That's the idea," Charlie picked himself up, laughing. "Don't be afraid to hit me. Bing! Like that." And they rehearsed it again.

We left shortly after Harry Crocker, the acrobat hero in the story, had had his closeups, and Charlie was rehearsing the entrance of the clown band.

"The Circus Clown" will be completed in two weeks or so.

Alma Rubens tells us she is going to Europe with her husband, Ricardo Cortez, upon the completion of "Helen of Troy," in which he plays Paris. She and Cortez have agreed to make a flicker together in Paris for Pierre Perret, she says. Mr. Perret directed Gloria Swanson in "Madame Sans Gene," and is reckoned France's topnotch megaphoner.

A word about Richard Dix, whose mustache continues to prosper to "The Gay Defenders" pleasure, though he is so accustomed to it he seldom indulges in twisting its waxed ends.

Upon the completion of this celluloider, and mayhap a week or so vacation, Dix plunges into his next flick, "The Traveling Salesman," which Mal St. Clair is to megaphone. "The Traveling Salesman" has been filmed twice ere this—once with Frank MacIntyre and next with Roscoe ("Fatty") Arbuckle.

FIRE DESTROYS TWO HOUSES AT BEACHDALE

SOMERSET, Pa., Sept. 26.—(Special.)—Two houses on the farm of Fred Brant at Beachdale, near here, were destroyed by fire believed to have started by a stove overheated with kerosene used for kindling. Berlin, Meyersdale and Garrett fire companies were summoned.

Edmund Lowe and Leila Hyams in "Balaoo"

"Balaoo," one of the most successful stage mysteries written in modern times, by Gaston Leroux, will be produced by Fox Films with Edmund Lowe and June Collyer in leading roles. Leroux has written many novels and plays which have made their way to the screen, but none that have created greater attention than did "Balaoo" when it was shown in Paris.

This is the first leading role to be played in a Fox offering by Leila Hyams. She appeared, however, some time ago, in an important portrayal with Madge Bellamy in "Summer Bachelors." This is the picture that gave Miss Hyams her start in filmdom. Edmund Lowe is now completing his role in "Publicity Madness." The director chosen to produce "Balaoo" is Richard Rosson, recently placed under contract with Fox.

The story takes a scientist from civilization into the jungle and unrolls convincingly one of the strangest mystery tales that has ever come from the pen of a writer, it is said.

6,000 Sheep Have Part in Filming of Novel

A herd of 6,000 sheep, gathered by roundup methods on the pastures of Thunder Flats, Utah., far from civilization, is being filmed for "atmosphere" by Albert Rogell, directing the First National Pictures production of Harold Bell Wright's novel, "The Shepherd of the Hills."

Practically the entire cast of the picture is on location and works with the great sheep herd. The latter consists of four flocks, in charge of the local sheep herders, who are camped in the meadows at an altitude of 11,000 feet. Some of the flocks came distances of 40 miles over the mountains.

Among players enacting the Harold Bell Wright characters in the sheep herd sequences are Alec B. Francis, Molly O'Day, John Boles, Mathew Betz, Romaine Fielding, Otis Harlan, Joseph Bennett, Ena Gregory, Maurice Murphy, John Westwood and David Dunbar. The photographic beauty of the huge herd in that wild and rugged setting has never been approached in motion picture production, according to the chief cameraman, Sol Polito.

TWO NEW PLAYS OPEN HERE

Willard Mack's new play, a racing romance, "Weather Clear, Track Fast," opens in the Nixon tonight. The cast will include Gertrude Louise Walker, formerly in Ziegfeld's musical comedy, "Kid Boots" and the "Follies." "Weather Clear, Track Fast," marks her debut on the legitimate stage.

Arthur Hammerstein tonight will present for its Metropolitan premiere his music drama, "Golden Dawn" in the Alvin. Louise Hunter, from the Metropolitan Opera House, will make her light opera debut in the production. A cast of 21 principals and an ensemble of 150 are featured. There will be matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

In the Pitt tonight the George Sharp Production Stock Company will present Crane Wilbur's mystery drama, "The Monster." Jack Willard, a new member of the company, will appear in the play, which will feature Thurston Hall and Anne Forrest. Matinees will be Thursday and Saturday.

"The Joy Girl" will be seen on the screen in the Davis next week. Olive Borden and Neil Hamilton head the cast. Danny Dugan and his company will present scintillating song and dance numbers on the stage.

"Blossom Time" opens its final engagement in the Alvin next Monday night.

"Out of the Night" comes to the Nixon next week for an engagement of six days. It is a mystery play. James Spottswood heads a cast including Vessie Farrell, Herbert Heywood, Dianthe Pattison and Jack Mott.

"The Spirit of Syncopation Week" will be the feature stage attraction next week in the Penn. In the cast will be Brandes Collegians, eight Tiller dancing girls and Rita Owin, eccentric dancer. Lon Chaney, in "Mockery," will be on the screen.

"Sliding" Billy Watson's review, "The Flying Dutchman," is to be introduced next week in the Gayety, following "White Cargo."

June Rhoads, who appeared in a dramatic sketch in Mutual burlesque last season, is one of the principals in "High Life" which comes to the Academy next week.

Among the vaudeville attractions in the Sheridan Square next week will be Stan Stanley, comedian, and his company of funmakers.

The Vitaphone program next week in the Olympic includes the Record Boys, Al Bernard, Frank Kamplain and Samuel Stept, in popular and comic songs. On the screen will be "When a Man Loves," with John Barrymore and Dolores Costello.

The feature picture coming to the Aldine next week is Buster Keaton in "College," a United Artists picture.

CATHOLICS OPEN CONVENTION IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—(Special.)—Catholic women from all parts of the United States, including a large number from Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania, are in Washington today attending the seventh annual convention of the National Council of Catholic Women, which opened this morning. Headquarters of the convention, which will last through Wednesday, are at the Mayflower Hotel.

Pontifical high mass, celebrated by Most Rev. Peter Fumasoni Biondi, apostolic delegate to the United States, opened the convention. Right Rev. Maurice F. McAuliff, auxiliary to the bishop of Hartford, delivered the sermon, which was followed by a special musical program under the direction of Rev. William J. De Longchamps.

Right Rev. Joseph Schrembs bishop of Toledo, who is episcopal chairman of the council, was the principal speaker at the business session this morning. Reports were made by officers and there was a conference on problems of state legislation, led by Miss M. V. Shanley, legislative chairman of the Newark diocesan council.

Latin American relations of this country and the present situation in Mexico will be brought before the convention in two addresses. Cayetano De Quesada, consul attache to the Cuban embassy, will speak on "Friendship With Latin America" at tonight's session; Tuesday afternoon William Montavon of the department of legislation of the National Catholic Welfare Council will discuss the Mexican situation.

During the convention members of the national board will be elected from Baltimore, Chicago, Dubuque, New Orleans, New York and St. Louis. The new national board of directors will meet Thursday and Friday following the convention's close.

Several entertainment features have been arranged, including sight-seeing trips, a breakfast of college and professional women Tuesday morning, the banquet which will wind up the meeting Wednesday night.

The first general meeting was held last night in the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel. Mrs. Arthur F. Mullen, president of the council, will preside. Mgr. C. F. Thomas, rector of St. Patrick's Church, delivered an address of welcome. There was a program of songs by Miss Clelia Fioravanti and Miss Edna Hillyard Howard, accompanied by Miss Jennie Glennan. The Rev. Peter Guilday, professor of history at Catholic University, spoke.

EX-SENATOR GAZZAM DEAD

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26—(AP.)—Joseph M. Gazzam, lawyer, financier and former state senator, died at his home here yesterday. He was 84. Funeral services will be held in Pittsburgh, his birthplace, on Wednesday.

Mr. Gazzam is survived by his widow, for many years head of the women's Philadelphia committee on law enforcement; a son and a daughter. His mother was the daughter of Constantine Antoine De Beelen De Bertholff and grand-daughter of Baron Frederick Eugene Francois De Beelen De Bertholff of Belgium, who came to the United States in 1783 as the first Austrian minister.

Mr. Gazzam was elected a member of the common council of Pittsburgh in 1869 and a state senator in 1878.

Two cousins are the only surviving relatives of Joseph M. Gazzam, who now are living in Pittsburgh. They are H. P. Gazzam of 2200 Penn avenue and Mrs. Augusta H. Wallace of 312 West North avenue. Neither had been advised of funeral arrangements today. They said the family burial lot was in Allegheny Cemetery and that interment probably would be made there.

CITY'S POWER LINES FAIL

Street car traffic came to a standstill, lights throughout the city flickered and were almost entirely dead during 20 minutes last night when the entire lighting system of the Duquesne Light Company was affected by a change of connections at the Colfax power plant.

The change was made to increase the voltage in the high tension transmission system. The trouble, which developed at 7:20 o'clock last night, puzzled engineers of the company and was corrected only after the entire system was checked. There was no damage.

VICE FOE EDITOR SHOT DOWN

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 26—(INS.)—Howard Guilford, editor of the Saturday Press, an anti-city administration publication which made its first appearance here Saturday, was shot and seriously wounded while driving to his office today. The gunmen directed their shots at Guilford while standing on the running board of their own machine.

The Saturday Press attacked the administration for its alleged protection of gamblers.

Women's Excellent Coats for General Service at $55.00 and $65.00

Such coats, which are wanted to wear now, before fur coat time, or for motoring, travel and general service throughout the winter, are Wear Weave coats, made of superior service fabrics and trimmed with furs of select quality.

Because we have concentrated on these two moderately priced lines, there is wide choice in weaves, patterns, and the variety of furs.

Beaver, caracul, squirrel, kit fox, Jap fox, black fox, natural and dyed lynx, and wolf, are used for collars of generous size; and many of the coats at $65.00 also have cuffs of fur.

Some coats in special sizes for large and small women are included.

Many of them have such dressy touches as skirts with front fullness, circular movement and side draperies, the draped Jenny neckline, trimmings of nude-colored lace, and the feature of sheer, light-colored blouse with dark velvet skirt.

French chefdom has a world-wide reputation. Preparing foods with them is an art. And Monsieur Roussey, with many years' experience as chef in hotels and clubs, will tell in his lectures how he lifts cooking from the commonplace and makes a profession of it.

He will also show how, through waterless cooking, natural juices are conserved and flavors improved. Wagner Cast Aluminumware and Cecil and White Star Ranges are used.

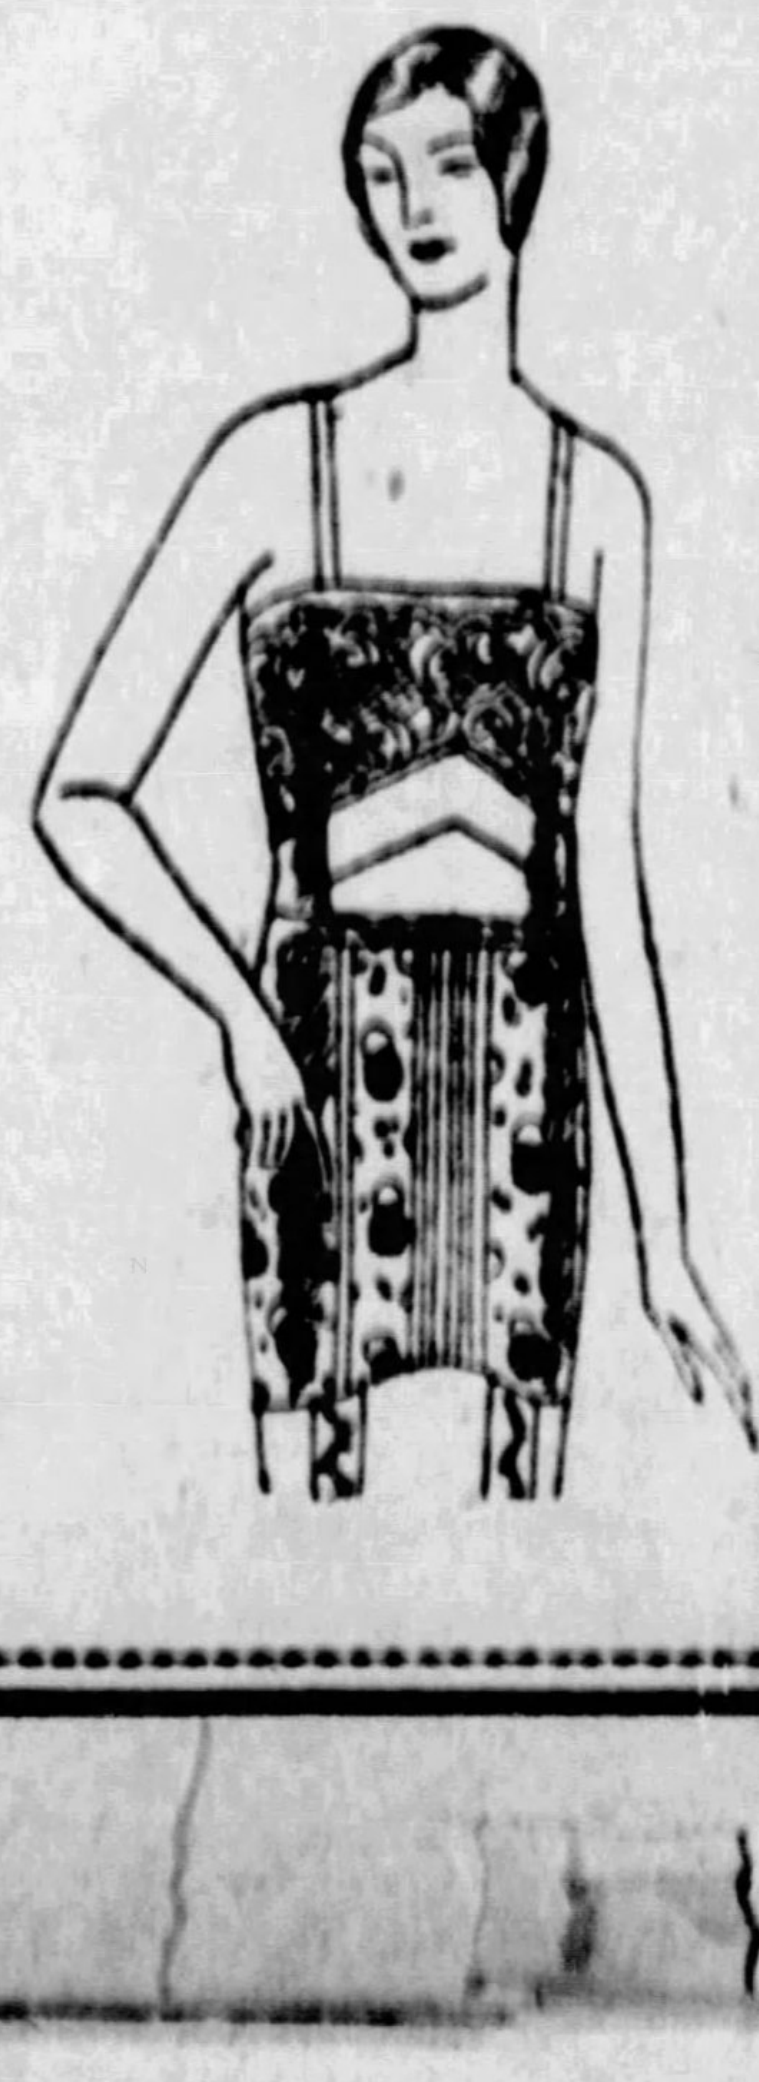
The Chic of Your Frock

Depends Upon the Fit of Your Foundation Garment



So important is the undergarment that no woman can afford to risk the lines of her gown by the careless choosing of her foundation garment. The new narrow hip fashion demands a restraining and molding foundation obtainable only by the most discriminating choice of the right model for your figure type.

Our new fall models, which are arriving daily, not only provide the proper foundation for the gown, but also match it in beauty and daintiness. Made of beautiful brocade and hand-woven elastic, many of them come in delicate shades of flesh, orchid, nile, or rose. Among them are step-ins, side or semi-side hook girdles, front hook girdles, and corsettes (girdle and brassiere all in one). $5.00 to $55.00.

Imported Pompadour girdle shown is of rose brocade with narrow side sections of elastic and patented hook and eye invisible closing. $22.50. Brassiere shown, combining lace and satin. $5.00.

"The Correct Foundation Garment Must Be Fitted." Our expert fitters will be glad to advise you on your figure problems. Phone for appointment—Court 3000.

"You Need a Diuretic!"

You Can't Feel Well When Kidneys Act Sluggishly.

THE part played by the kidneys and their importance to bodily health should be clearly understood.

The kidneys are the blood filters. If their action becomes sluggish, they do not thoroughly cleanse the blood of poisonous wastes. Such impurities are apt to make one dull, tired and achy with often a nagging backache, drowsy headaches and dizziness. A common warning of imperfect kidney action is scanty or burning excretions.

Doan's Pills, stimulant diuretic, aid the kidneys in their eliminative work. 50,000 users have publicly recommended Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

Where are the women who were always baking cake?

LADIES battling batter. Dainty digits deep in dough.

Such was the mid-afternoon captivity of our mothers and grandmothers. The cake must be made for supper's dessert.

But now—

There are so many fine-tasting Sunshine Biscuits to take the place of cake. Chief among them is Sunshine Hydrox—in which a rare, velvety cream unites two glorious chocolate biscuits to tempt your appetite.

Probably the most delicious thing to eat that ever crossed your table. It has to be to supplant the cake that mother made.

Sunshine HYDROX

"Sunshine"—well worth saying whenever you want biscuits.

Jeweled Buckles

and girdles often serve a dual role in clasping the new side fullness within their lovely brilliance. Rhinestones continue to be smart and are now rivaled by semi-precious stones in handsome bracelets, brooches, pendants, buckles and pins.

designates the new mood in sports clothes. Obvious of Fashion, sports clothes serve her well in establishing a new freedom and ease of movement which necessitates the careless casual line evident in ultra smart sports attire.

in an uneven hemline which lends a flattering grace never possible with the stiff unbending even hem. Youth personified in these animated new dance frocks of bouffant taffetas.

a single word that speaks volumes of style information. This aristocrat of fabrics, flattering to the nth degree in its radiant softness is employed in all its lovely variations to costume milady correctly 'round the clock.

is gold—or silver—in the metallic trend for autumn. Mingled 'gainst a silken background of exotic color, metallics proclaim a new elegance in fashions truly feminine.

have attached unto themselves a fashion significance that establishes as correct several quite individual types—The Cape, The Jabot, The Queen Anne, The Mushroom and The Shawl—suggesting a coat wardrobe of wide latitude for the woman of discrimination.

seems to have been Fashion's dictum in the field of color. And with Black ahead the procession follows—the Browns, the Blues, the Wine shades, Greens, Tans and Greys. Of especial significance is the smart vogue for all white in formal evening wear.

Intricate in Cut

tersely describes the newer frocks and while the new line has had no radical change, frocks lend themselves freely to intricate means of achieving movement. Concealed circular fullnesses, inverted pleats, shoulder drapes, boleros and such diversify the former simple straight lines.

ELINOR GLYN tells the TRUTH about

Excesses

ELINOR GLYN

WHAT is it which makes so many modern people exhibit this wild spirit of desire for excess? Excess of drink—of everything. Women and men of 40 who at 20 were often balanced and abstemious, now take the same pleasure in alcoholic exaltation that flappers and boys do!

The truth is that all human have a craving for that which will stimulate the imagination, loosen inhibitions, exalt the spirits, and in some cases, aid forgetfulness. But 20 years ago they had been brought up with discipline—certain things were taboo, and if desire for them arose, it was suppressed. The subconscious mind was saturated with respectable prejudices and trained in certain beliefs. Then alcohol became forbidden fruit—the young then seized it defiantly, and the middle-aged tasted it, and found it good.

The breaking away from the restraint of their youth added a little excitement, and the fact of having broken away then weakened the will to resist. This seems to be the reason for the many undignified and mushy sights we see about, of persons of an age to know better, who are just as silly and noisy as the young folks under the influence of "a few drinks."

Those who have taken wine always with moderation, as a mild stimulant with food, never exceed—but all others should be extremely careful to note the effect upon themselves of the bad whisky and gin which compose the "drinks" now, and then they should use all their will power to resist swallowing even one glass, beyond what they know by experience will render them uncontrolled.

For a man or woman—and especially a woman—obviously "lit"—or really intoxicated—is a sickening and pitiful sight.

For the Lovelorn

DEAR MISS GALE:

We are two friends who have read continually your wonderful advice on love problems given to others. Facing serious problems ourselves, perhaps you could give us some advice. We are two Italian girls, considered the most beautiful of our town, that is, of all Italian girls. (Constantina.) Miss Gale, I am facing the greatest proposition. I am in love with a young man seven years my senior. Now because he is a southern Italian and I a northern, my parents object to our friendship. I was engaged to him to be married, but then was compelled to give him up because my parents were always nagging and scolding me. Please tell me, Miss Gale, did I act wisely to listen to my parents and give up my happiness? (Justina.) My problem is not so difficult to solve as Constantina's. I am a southern Italian and approaching the age of 20. Miss Gale, I have had many dates with different fellows. All were very nice to me, but not of whom I could love. But there is one particular fellow whom I really do love, but, since he is of different nationality, my parents do not agree to our friendship. Should I continue his friendship or give him up? He is very dear to me. Constantina and I are the closest of friends. We are very nice girls and are popular with the opposite sex. We are good sports all around and always have the joy of life.

JUSTINA AND CONSTANTINA.

You are still very young, my dears, and it would be just as well to obey your parents. Perhaps in a year or two, if you still love these boys, your parents will give their consent to your marriage.

Precious

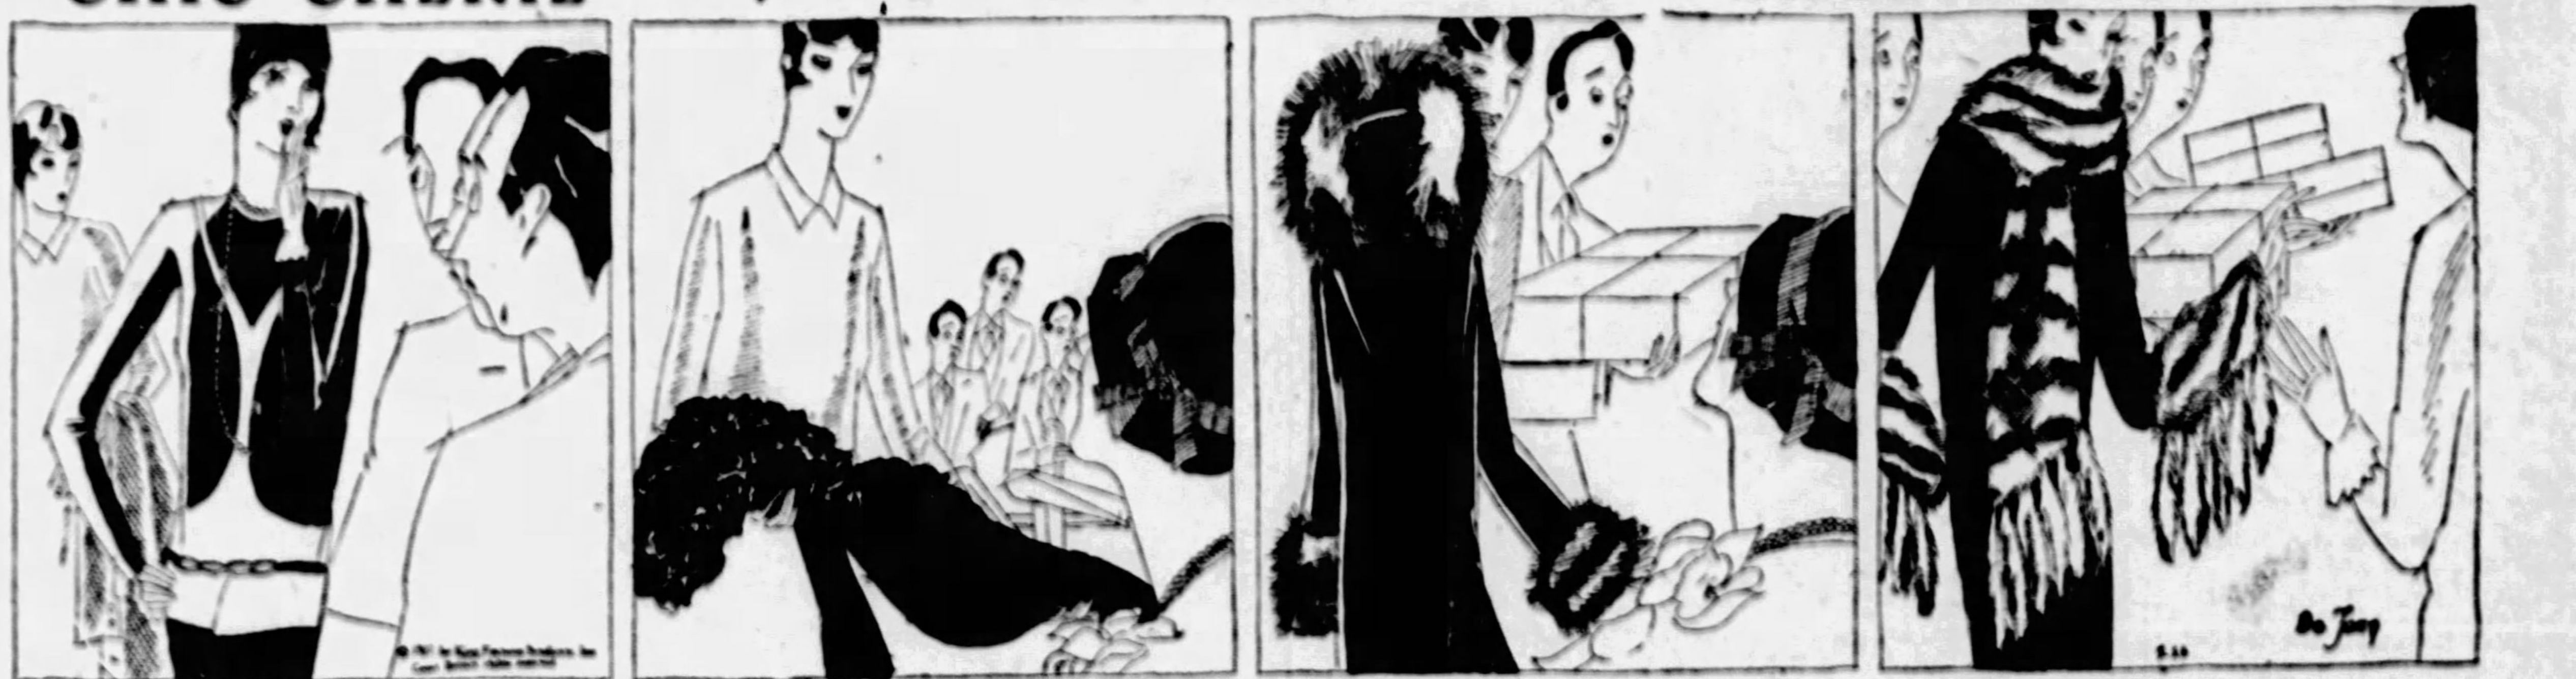
DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been reading your column for a long while, but I have never written to you before. I am going on 20 and am in love with a young man whom I doubt loves me, but my friends say that he does. I quarreled with the last one I had. One night my friend was staying with me. The girl whom I thought was my best friend came walking out with the young man whom I used to love. Do you think either one of these boys loves me?

PRECIOUS.

You don't give me sufficient information, my dear, for me to judge whether or not these boys like you.

CHIC CHERIE ✣ They're Useful Anyway. ✣ LATEST FASHIONS



Cherie looks sadly at Ernest and Eustace and Edwin and decides that they are certainly not ornamental. Not truly ornamental enough for her to be wearing this really attractive and fashionable dress of crepe satin with its odd yoke and bolero lines indicated by the reverse of the fabric.

Perhaps they can be useful? Cherie is torn between three new wraps and it does seem that she should take them all home with her and decide at her leisure which one is most becoming. Since black is so smart, this black broadcloth trimmed with black Persian lamb is certainly a candidate for election.

Poor black lamb that never grew up to be a black sheep! The skirt to the coat in this sketch has a jabot flare—seen on the smartest coats this season. Cuffs are deeply furred again this year, which would seem to show that the vogue for muffs which started last Winter is going to die the death without warning.

This coat is velvet and its wide cuffs and scarf collar are kolinsky. She's practically decided on this, but she might as well take all three—aren't Ernest and Eustace and Edwin all at hand and all to be provided with bundles to carry? It's a great responsibility, this matter of having a kind heart!

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

"TAKE IT FROM ME!"

A MAN is never so happy as when he is giving a woman "advice"—and he is always "advising" some woman about something.

When a woman marries a man, she acquires an authentic human edition of "The Book of Knowledge," that can "tell her all about everything"—and insists on doing it!

Some children can't take calomel, and some women can't take advice. The latter are always either spinsters until they are forty—or divorcees before they are thirty.

HELEN ROWLAND

A man may admire an intelligent woman, but the woman he loves is the one who hangs onto his coat-lapel and begs him to tell her "all about" something she knows more about than he does.

The average man could accomplish twice as much in this world if he did not spend half his life in telling a woman how to do things.

After a woman through her intuition and ingenuity has found out how to do something, a man can always stand around and tell her a better way of doing it.

No doubt, after Eve discovered the use of fig-leaves, Adam spent all his Sunday mornings telling her of a better way of pinning them together.

Before marriage, it is rather thrilling to discover what a Big, Beautiful, Wonderful Mentality you have captured. It makes you feel so little and tender and helpless. But after marriage you discover that his solicitude was not inspired by love of you, but by love of "giving advice."

Every husband is a little "efficiency expert" in the home!

He can tell a woman all about how France could pay her war debt, while he is wondering where the money for the next instalment on the insurance is coming from.

He can expound the whole philosophy of getting "service" out of the cook and the tradesmen, while he holds up the work down at his office.

He can come in, two hours after dinner, and deliver a beautiful homily on how to control the nerves, and how to keep food hot.

He can deliver a lecture on system, while you are hunting for his hat and his umbrella in the morning—and a thesis on orderliness and method, while you are trying to find the screwdriver he left in the medicine closet, or sweeping up the cigaret stubs he left behind the piano.

He is never so brilliant in his diatribes on how to economize on tomato catsup and dried apricots as the morning after he has lost the mortgage money in a game of poker.

He would rather give a woman fifty dollars' worth of advice on how to keep her heels from running down, than five dollars with which to go out and buy a new pair of shoes.

He marries a woman because he thinks he has found the One Pin-Perfect Being in all the world—and then spends the rest of his life in trying to "improve" her.

A woman will take a lot of things from the man she loves—from his money to his brow-beating—but the one thing she has to take, if she wants the man, is his advice.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Tuesday, September 27

THE diligence and patience necessary to handle obstacles of a minor nature, together with some side issues of subtlety or deceit, will be assisted by the insight and discernment given by the lunar conjunction of Mercury. Saturn sextile Sun brings returns for patience and steadfastness. But be careful to forestall small annoyances.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of reward for industry and application, patience and perseverance. Many obstacles and annoyances will be overcome and worked out by keen mental insight.

A child born on this day should be clever, versatile and talented as well as patient and diligent. These qualities may win for it a place of responsibility.

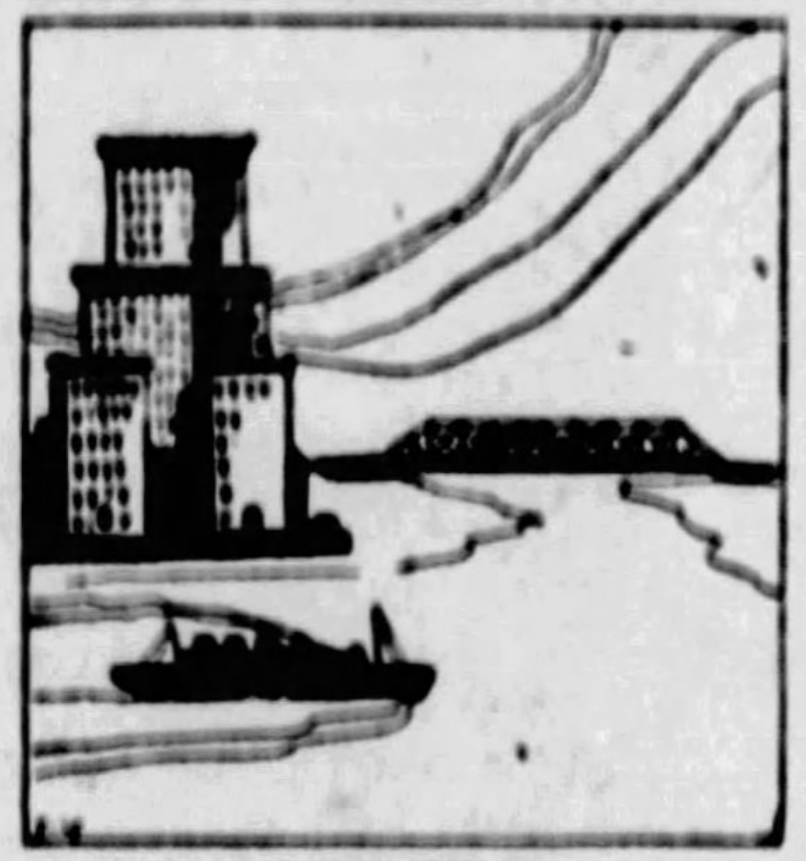
TEASERS



A Problem

Three objects appear in the picture.

One is a building; the second a bridge; the third a steamship.

Compare the height of the building with the length of the steamer and the length of the bridge (from one end of the superstructure to the other). Is the bridge longer than the steamer? And is the bridge longer than the height of the building?

Make your estimate as to which has the greatest length or height.

Saturday's Teaser

The Mississippi River flows through or bounds Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Missouri, Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana. To name all 10 states is exceptional; 9, very good; 8, good; 7, average; 6, fair; less than 6, poor.

Early Snapshots

"BACK in the late seventies, when I first became interested in photography, a camera was almost the size of a soap box, with a tripod strong enough and heavy enough to support a bungalow. The plates were 'wet' plates—glass which had to be coated with collodion and sensitized with nitrate of silver just a few minutes before exposure. to accomplish this, if you wanted to take snapshots outside, you had to carry a tent along with you as a dark-room in which to sensitize your plates; and the nitrate of silver had to be carried carefully in a glass container. My first batch of it leaked out and stained my clothing.

"It was an elaborate and painstaking job to take pictures, and I couldn't get any results at all until I paid a local photographer $5 to give me lessons."—George Eastman.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland, M.D.

U.S. Senator From New York

There Is No Bottled "Cure" for Tuberculosis.

IT IS amazing what stuff men and women will buy in the hope and expectation that health will be restored by taking it. The most amazing claims are made for the benefits to be had by taking a bottle of this or that.

DR COPELAND

A certain remedy was extensively advertised as containing "over 20 per cent tissue-building, life sustaining nourishment than wheat flour." On examination of this product in the laboratory, it was found that a dollar's worth of wheat flour possesses just as much energy as 200 dollars' worth of the "remedy." Ordinary pot cheese contains forty times as much energy, dollar for dollar.

What should be done about it?

Everything that a man has will he give for his life. But health is too vital a thing to be trifled with or abused. Why take a chance?

Tuberculosis is an ailment which happily is on is on the decline. Was it controlled by drugs? It was not. It is being mastered by education. The public has learned that bad personal hygiene is responsible for a lowered physical condition, a condition of the body ready for the germs of tuberculosis. By learning this and then turning away from practices that lead to disaster, steady decrease has taken place in the prevalence of tuberculosis.

Of course there is much yet to be done. There are thousands who have not learned, or who do not follow, the simple rules of sensible living. We must not stop until everybody practices right living.

If some one near and dear to you has tuberculosis, or a tendency to it, dont' put your trust in bottles or boxes of "cures." Tuberculosis cannot be cured that way. Bear this in mind.

The human body is not like a standard plow. When a No. 2 plowshare wears out, you can get a new one. The No. 2 you buy will supply your need. Simply tell your dealer the make and number of your plow and he can satisfy your need.

But you can't do this with disease. You can't go into a store and say, "I have tuberculosis of the right lung; I am 5 feet 8 inches tall and 20 years old. Give me a bottle of the cure for my case.'

You laugh at this, but it is what happens every day in every town in America. I beg of you not to dally and trifle with a serious disease by any such hopeless method.

If you have tuberculosis, or fear it, see your doctor. He will give you a thorough physical examination and have the sputum tested. If you have no doctor, consult your local Board of Health or Health Officer.

In this way you will find just exactly what is wrong, if anything, and will be advised what to do. You can have mental peace then, for you will know you are doing the right thing.

Answers to Health Queries.

O. S. Q.—Is there a substitute for meat?

2.—Is baking soda harmful to the system?

A.—Milk and eggs are protein foods and will make up for the lack of meat in the diet, but there is no actual substitute for meat.

2.—Too much soda is injurious. If you watch your diet it will not be necessary to resort to this form of treatment. For further instructions send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

H. R. B. Q.—Would the frequent use of common baking soda as a counter-agent for acidity and sour stomach be injurious in any way?

A.—Probably not, but if you watch your diet, avoiding too many sweets and acid foods, drink plenty of water between meals and avoid constipation, you will not have to resort to the soda. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

SPECIAL GUARD PUT ON HOUSE

A special watch was put on a house at 1307 Gibbon street today after it had been raided as a disorderly house Sunday, for the third time within a week. Thomas Jones, a visitor arrested, was discharged "because he told the truth."

Jessie Reed was fined $100 for operating a disorderly house at 2071 Fifth avenue. Claire Burton and Jean Rice, alleged inmates, were fined $50 each.

"SHIRT-SLEEVE" BANDIT SOUGHT

A "shirt-sleeve" bandit, who has robbed a half dozen persons in the last week, was being sought by North Side police today.

His latest victim was Mrs. Anna Dintinger, 1011 Chestnut street, whose purse containing $29 he snatched as Mrs. Dintinger was walking in Gee way last night.

The man is described by all his victims as being about five feet six inches tall. He always operates in his shirt sleeves, wearing neither coat nor hat, police were told.

SYMPHONY DRIVE ENTERS FINAL WEEK

The customary eleventh hour rush for memberships began at the Pittsburgh Symphony Society headquarters, 423 Bakewell Building, today as the society's drive for new members for its 1927-28 season entered its final week.

The society's announcement that that the membership roll must be complete by the end of the present drive, brought in scores of persons who had planned to await the first concert before sending in their cards. It was made clear at the headquarters that "completion of the membership roll" did not necessarily mean that all membership applications must be paid at the time the cards are signed. Dues are payable later, Attorney Edward Specter, manager of the society, explained, but it is necessary that the application cards be signed immediately so that they may be on file by the time the campaign ends.

It is planned to devote this week to a continuation of the series of addresses and radio speeches by which the society has been attempting to make the symphony movement clear to the public. In these the membership plan of admission by which each member receives two tickets free to each of the three concerts scheduled for the season is explained. The economic value of a city symphony orchestra also is stressed.

The first of these radio addresses was delivered last night by Mrs. William Maclay Hall, president of the society.

SUPREME COURT DELAYS FINDING

Arguments were heard by the State Supreme Court here today in the appeal in the equity action brought against the county commissioners to keep the name of Robert G. Woodside, Republican nominee for county controller, off the election ballots.

The court indicated, after hearing arguments by Attorney Frank C. McGirr for the complainant, and Attorney George E. Alter for the commissioners, that a decision would be handed down within two weeks.

Attorney Alter cited Woodside's nomination as evidence that the people wanted him, that they had nominated him rather than investigated him. Attorney McGirr argued, as he had when the case was before Common Pleas Court, that Woodside, if elected, would have to take office in less than two years before he had finished his term as sheriff.

Lula Mosby and Joseph Painter, who, as voters, brought the action against Woodside, are generally believed to have acted for Controller C. C. McGovern, defeated at the primaries by Woodside.

2 SHOPLIFTERS FINED $10

"It was only such a little thing."

Gertrude Mulvey, 22, and Mrs. Margaret Jones, 23, both of 507 Arch street, alleged shoplifters, wept bitterly when arraigned today before Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court. Accused of taking two silk dresses from a downtown store in their vanity cases they contended that the offense was slight. He ordered the women each to pay a fine of $10 or serve 10 days in jail.

The LIFE AND LETTERS OF WOODROW WILSON

Civil War Chaos Rules Wilson Boyhood

Ordeal of South in Period of Its Reconstruction An Important Influence in Childhood

By RAY STANNARD BAKER.

Copyright, 1927, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

In the first installment of "The Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson," published in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph yesterday, Mr. Baker described the voluminous records at the biographer's disposal, their careful and methodical preservation in itself being an important indication of the character of the War President as it was developed and tested during the childhood of Woodrow Wilson in the South. Intimate glimpses of the Wilson family life were given in these columns yesterday.

The Civil War Period

DURING the most impressionable years of the boy's life his people, his own town, his family itself, were passing through that ordeal of fire and misery which was the Civil War. He was a few months beyond eight years old when Lee surrendered; he was fourteen when the family left Augusta. For the next three years, until he went off at seventeen to college, he was living in Columbia, S. C., where the effects of the war had been even more terrible and the suffering and hatred bitterer. More than twelve years of his life, therefore, were spent among the convulsions of a society immediately at war or in the exhaustion that followed upon defeat. They were years crowded with mighty events—the greatest war the nation had ever known—greater than any the world had seen since the time of Napoleon or was to see again until 1914, when the child of Augusta had become President at Washington.

It is always difficult to decide how deep a mark such events, such an atmosphere, leave upon the spirit of a child. How far does he become the object he looks upon? How far does the object become part of him "for the day, or a certain part of the day, or for many years, or for stretching cycles of years?" He was a shy, thoughtful, imaginative boy, dwelling much in his own dreams. While he lived in a peculiarly sheltered home, he must have been conscious daily of the strain and passion and suffering that grew as the war deepened, for he had the visible evidences of them constantly before his eyes. They provided that unconscious early conditioning of childhood upon which modern psychology lays so much stress. He himself once said that "a boy never gets over his boyhood and never can change those subtle influences which have become part of him, that were bred in him when he was a child."

His World War-Torn

In the youth of every high-tempered, sensitive, poetic nature there is the struggle between the deep inner life, with its love of quiet things, and thought and visions, and the compulsions of a rough and unreasonable outer world. In the boy Tommy's life this was emphasized on the one hand by the unusual intensity of his nature—intensity from beginning to end was the mark of his personality—and by the extreme wildness, ugliness, hatred, suffering of the outer world that immediately surrounded, pressed upon, dominated all his early life. It was a world at war, disordered, lawless, leaderless; a world so torn with evil passions that there was no place where a man might think his thoughts in quietude, might create beautiful things, might live in comity and courtesy. It was a world that cried out to put it to rights. Must one stop thinking and creating to restore order that he might have space and peace to think again? To the end of his life Woodrow Wilson was to know this struggle, was to be goaded by such questioning.

At the outbreak of the Civil War Augusta became one of the principal centers of Confederate industrial activity. The United States Arsenal, already an institution of the town, was seized by Southern forces and ammunition was produced in large quantities for the Confederate army. Other factories sprang up, and in the wild exuberance of enlistment 2,000 men went as soldiers out of a population of fewer than 10,000 white people.

The boy probably was too young in the early part of the war to have been much impressed by anything save the atmosphere of stress and disturbance, with occasional vivid pictures, as we know, of marching soldiers, or of his father anxiously going and coming as a chaplain in the Confederate army, or of his mother constantly fearful for the safety of her husband, her brothers, her friends, and, later in the war, worried over the shortness of food. A time came when it was impossible to obtain commodities like salt, when a cake of soap cost $25 in Confederate money, when the Wilson household was eking out its larder with soup made of cowpeas from the fields, the delicious taste of which the boy Tommy never forgot.

Church a Hospital

He must also have seen and wondered at the transformation of his father's great church across the street into a hospital where hundreds of wounded soldiers lay suffering and dying. He must have seen the very churchyard changed into a prison camp, with men in ragged blue uniforms under guard. He must have been present upon that solemn Sunday—one may hear about it yet in Augusta—when Dr. Wilson announced to his congregation that a great battle was impending, that the Southern army was desperately in need of ammunition, and that he would therefore dismiss the congregation at once, with a benediction, that they might repair, men, women and children, to the ammunition factories to help with the cartridge rolling. It had come to such a pass that the war had obliterated even the Presbyterian Sabbath!

Did the boy share in the excitement and terror of the news that Sherman's army was cutting its way with sword and fire through the heart of the South; that its outposts might at any time be seen in the streets of Augusta? How did the frantic effort of a discouraged people to save what little was left of their possessions impress the child? Did he see the huge piles of baled cotton rising in the broad main street of the town, carried there from sheds and warehouses so that when Sherman came he could destroy their wealth, perchance without setting their houses aflame? Did he share in the relief when Sherman passed by without entering the town?

We know that he and all his family watched in dumb forbearance the captured President of the Confederate States, Jefferson Davis, passing through the streets, guarded by Federal soldiers; and we know that still later, on a great, if sad, day when peace had come, he was of the eager crowd that welcomed Gen. Robert E. Lee on his visit to Augusta. He was there, a little boy, to see the greatest hero of the Confederacy, who was to remain one of his permanent heroes, a man who merited the tile "noble," a higher and finer title than "great." He said long afterward in an address at the University of North Carolina that he had "the delightful memory of standing, when a lad, for a moment by Gen. Lee's side and looking up into his face."

A Southern Sympathizer

The boy must have sympathized deeply, also, with his father's view of the war. Dr. Wilson, while born in the North, had become a Southern sympathizer, but he never was as violent a partisan as many men of the older Southern tradition. Some of his own brothers were in the Union army, two of them generals. On the slavery question he never took a strong stand. It was the right of secession that appealed to the stout independence of his Scotch-Irish heart, and his own warm friendships, his loyalty to his people, did the rest. When the break in the Presbyterian Church took place after the memorable and heated debates at the Philadelphia Assembly in 1861, Dr. Wilson sided wholly with the Southern cause, and the first Southern Assembly was held in his church in Augusta. It was here that the Southern Presbyterian Church was organized, a schism which continues to this day.

During all the troubled years of the war and afterward, the boy, Tommy, saw his father carrying forward the work of his church with unremitting energy. At the lowest ebb of the war, when the people of Augusta were themselves feeling the pinch of hunger, one may find a record in the minutes of the church of a collection taken for maintaining missions in China. That was the sort of people they were.

Another problem concerned Dr. Wilson deeply and must also have impressed the mind of the boy. Colored people swarmed on every side.

The Negro question was at the heart of the war itself. We find Dr. Wilson establishing a Sunday school for Negroes on November 17, 1860; a Sunday school that was maintained all through the war and afterward. We find many Negro members of his church; there are some even today.

His Thoughts His Own

One can see all of these things passing before the boy's eyes, entering into the soul of him, as he walked those quiet, shady old streets, attended the school on the river bank, listened to the reading day by day of the greatest books in the world, attended the church and heard the great rolling voice of his father reading the Psalms or the Book of Job or the Gospel of St. John. "How Firm a Foundation." He saw wounded and suffering soldiers, and prisoners of war, and Negroes intoxicated with a new freedom that they themselves had not earned, and the excesses of carpetbag governors who knew neither the law nor the people. "Subtle influences which became a part of him, that were bred in him when he was a child." They furnished the background for not a few of his writings; they corrected and verified the book in which he deals especially with this period, "Division and Reunion," one of the first books to take a dispassionate view of the Civil War.

Boy or man, Woodrow Wilson never adjured his individuality. He began early to think his own thoughts, cherish his own visions, go his own way. The world was utterly chaotic, incomprehensible; he must struggle to his own conclusions regarding it. Many an ambitious Southern youth brought up, like Tommy Wilson, in the atmosphere of war an reconstruction, found it easy and natural to react with the crowd; to play the politics of the time by "waving the bloody shirt;" or by keeping alive the hatreds of the war, or by stimulating rather than allaying race animosities.

We know how deeply Woodrow Wilson loved the South—his letters and his addresses are full of expressions of his loyalty. "The only place in the country, the only place in the world," he once said, "where nothing has to be explained to me is the South."

War Problems Painful

We know also how painfully he thought about the problems of the Civil War, the history of the causes that led up to it, the larger results of the defeat of the South and of the excesses of the years of reconstruction which followed it; yet one may search through his addresses, his books, even his private letters, and never find a single word of hatred or of bitterness. In an "Atlantic Monthly" article he later speaks of the war, indeed, as "a dark chapter of history," for he knew well what it meant in the lives of human beings but his position is that of the thoughtful man who is "neither justifying nor condemning, but only comprehending."

Many of the causes which combined to make Tommy Wilson different also operated to make him thoughtful; to give him the scholar's or philosopher's steady point of view. He had his father always at his side, a cultivated man with a broad outlook, a religious man setting forth principles that lay deep beneath the surface conflicts, sectional feeling, rare antagonisms, however bitter, that crashed around them. What was the church for, and what religion, if not for law, order, forbearance, steadiness, the long look ahead? "Eternal things!" Moreover, it must not be forgotten that the boy's mother was English born and his father Northern born and Northern educated. Neither had grown up among the inherited traditions of the old South, steeped in its devotion to its imperiled institutions. Both had a perspective that was rare not only in the South but in the nation. And then there was the constant reading of books that were filled with the great tradition of the race; and the daily discussion which went with that reading. Is it surprising that the boy began early to attain that "self-subordination to principles which lay outside of his personal life" which he later commended as a high quality in Robert E. Lee?

Rejoiced in Unity

It took the courage of firm conviction to have said, as early as 1880, in an oration on John Bright, delivered at the University of Virginia:

". . . because I love the South, I rejoice in the failure of the Confederacy."

Yet he believed that the South had to fight, that the question had reached the point where only an appeal to force was possible or honorable, but that it was well that the war resulted as it did, for it meant the renewal of the nation. It was a victory for unity against chaos. This being the case, it was the only practical course for the Southern leader to forget the past and go forward.

The third chapter in "The Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson" will appear tomorrow. It will deal with the adolescent age of the future President, at Columbia, S. C.

Women the Bunk! He Shows Court Books as Proof

REFERRING to his mother-in-law as "a spider who didn't like me because I did not know how to play cards," Phillip Zinberg, a salesman of Brooklyn, is seeking to cancel his wife's alimony of $7 a week, and have their separation decree annulled.

Zinberg dragged two weighty volumes entitled "The History of Women" into court. He placed them upon the judge's desk with the comment: "This oughta prove that women are the bunk! My mother-in-law is to blame for all our troubles. Looka, it's always been so—even in history."

MAP SYMPATHY STRIKE TO AID MINERS HERE

Possibility of a state or nation-wide strike in support of the demand of union coal miners for wages based on the Jacksonville agreement, loomed today in the wake of the announcemnt of Phillip Murray, international vice president, United Mine Workers of America, that 250 labor leaders from all parts of the country would convene at the Roosevelt Hotel here in November to formulate plans for supporting the miners.

The announcement was the highlight of a speech which was cheered to the echo by hundreds of striking miners and their families who made up an audience of 10,000 at the Monongahela City speedway Sunday.

PROMISES UNDIVIDED SUPPORT

Murray said the Pittsburgh meeting would pledge the unlimited and undivided moral and financial support of the American Federation of Labor and its 4,500,000 membership to the miners' cause. It will also form a strong committee, Murray said, to call on Gov. Fisher "not with a request, but with a demand, for a square deal in this strike."

"This is a fight for a living wage—an average of $1,200 a year for each miner," Murray said. "And it is a battle for the principle of collective bargaining."

Murray praised the miners for their loyalty in remaining in the ranks of the strikers and condemned Sheriff Ody C. Abbott of Washington county and his deputies as the "single blot on the county's good name as an industrial center." He charged that Abbott and his deputies are "paid from the coffers of the coal companies" and that Abbott "cannot call his soul his own."

Charles M. Schwab also came in for a share of reprobation as a "professional hypocrite" who was contesting with officials of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company for the presidency of the American Steel Institute.

SAYS PRIZE RING RUINS MORALS

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Attacking prizefighting, the Rev. Dr. Cortlandt Meyers of Los Angeles in his fourth and last sermon from the pulpit of the First Baptist Church said there is a million times more power in the spiritual world than in the physical.

"Who can say those miserable pieces of humanity who fought a bloody battle at Chicago brought themselves to a high level of life by it?" Dr. Meyers asked his congregation. "Muscular strength in their cases has been the means of dragging them down to the level of the animals."

Dr. Meyers blamed the radio for causing the death of eight persons listening in on the Dempsey-Tunney fight reports.

"Scientists say that power will be sent around the world by radio soon which will make it unnecessary for us to work more than an an hour a day," he said. "I am not sure this is good. We must grow better morally before we can dare to have so much leisure."

Sally and Aunt Em Worry About the Failing Inn; Sally Finds Cause

SALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who does not live with her mother. MRS. JEROME enjoys poor health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for MR. PEEVEY down town afternoons. Her brother, BEAU, and sister, MILLIE, give little towards the support of the home, and the financial burden falls heavily upon Sally. In the flat below the Jeromes lives TED SLOAN, who wants Sally to marry him and keep on working. But the only man who interests her is JOHN NYE, whose real estate office is across the hall from Mr. Peevey's. Nye hires Millie as his secretary and becomes blindly infatuated with her. Millie flirts with the notion of marrying him, but really prefers DAVIDSON, a bond salesman, whom she met in a former job. EMILY JEROME has turned her country home into a wayside inn. The business does not thrive and Sally spends most of her time at the inn, where she and Aunt Emily do all the work of cooking, serving, etc. Mrs. Jerome decides to bring the whole family there to live, and despite Aunt Em's protests, does so. Aunt Em hires a jazz band and tries to compete with "The Lark," a nearby roadhouse. But business is no better. One Sunday afternoon John Nye drops in, and tells Sally that if she and her aunt go out of business he would like her to work for him again. Sally refuses, although business is bad. Ted Sloan suggests to her that she do some exhibition dancing as an attraction to draw the crowds.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XLV.

LONG after the chugging sound of Ted's little roadster had died away in the distance, Sally stayed where she was, in the night-time stillness of Aunt Emily's garden.

Ted had left her with a promise to take her to "The Lark" on the next night to see the Spanish dancers who were drawing the crowds there.

But it was not of Ted she was thinking as she sat on the stone steps, with the dark, perfumed weight of the lilac branches above her and a white moon shining down through the lace-work of leaves.

It was the kind of May night when a woman is very likely to find herself thinking of the man she loves—or of the man she loved once upon a time—or of the man whom she is going to love, but never yet has happened to meet.

And so Sally found herself thinking of John Nye, and of something he had said to her that afternoon when they stood together in Aunt Emily's reception room, with its old polished furniture, its dim silver mirrors, its Toby jugs and Bristol glass.

"You belong here—not in an office," was what he had said to her.

He did not look upon her then as a human adding machine or a piece of office furniture, after all, Sally reflected. He saw that she was a real flesh and blood girl—the kind that fitted in among mirrors and priceless old glass bowls of blue and lavender lilacs. The thought was oddly warming and comforting to her.

"And he said he missed me, too," she went on thinking, as she rose and started up the steps.

But then, that was just because she had sharpened his pencils, and written his letters carefully, and brought him sandwiches when he was hungry. She had done the same things for Mr. Peevey, always. It was part of her job to do them—all but the sandwiches, of course.

She closed the hall door behind her and stepped into the house.

It was dark, for Aunt Emily went around these days switching off lights the minute they were not needed. She wasn't wasting a penny in this last effort to make a "go" of her dying business.

But in the reception room there was a small grate fire that sent out a sweet, smoky smell to mingle with the perfume of the lilacs.

Before the fire, leaning forward with her head sunk in her hands, sat Aunt Emily.

Sally went into the room and stood beside her.

"Going to bed, Aunt Em?" she asked.

Not a sound from Aunt Em.

It was not Aunt Em's way to cry when she was unhappy. She simply became very silent at such times, and kept to herself a great deal.

All day she had been moping in this way, and Sally knew that things must be going very, very badly with The House by the Side of the Road.

"What's the matter, Aunt Em?" she asked in a matter-of-fact voice, for Aunt Em hated to be pitied or petted or stroked when she needed pitying and petting and stroking. She was something of a chestnut burr, was Aunt Em.

"Oh, the business is going to the dogs!" she said now, and her voice was snappy. "We're losing about twice as much as we're making—and I don't know why. Our food couldn't be better, and the place is more comfortable than any other place I know. I should have stuck to school teaching, I reckon. The only thing I know how to do is to write letters on a blackboard with a piece of chalk." She was silent once more.

"Our place lacks pep!" said Sally, remembering the very words of Ted's sales talk. "We need something different—something like these Spanish dancers that The Lark has—"

"Spanish dancers!" snapped Aunt Em in disgust. "Where would we find any Spanish dancers, I'd like to know. And how could we afford them if we could find them? I'm about flat broke, Sally Ann, as it is."

It was at that exact second that Sally made an all-important decision.

In the darkness her big blue eyes lighted up and the sparkle of high adventure shone in her face suddenly.

"I'll do it!" she said to herself. "It probably won't come to anything—but I'll try it, anyway!"

She spoke aloud to Aunt Emily, with a friendly hand on her shoulder. "Come on upstairs, Aunt Em. I've a grand idea, but I won't tell you about it just yet."

"I'm afraid of grand ideas," answered Aunt Em in the tones of Gloomy Gus. "My grandest idea was to open this restaurant, and see what a flat failure I've made of it."

She switched on the hall light and started up the stairs.

Sally followed slowly, looking over her shoulder at her reflection in the big mirror on the east wall of the hallway.

As she looked she began to move her delicate shoulders in the most graceful, delicate way possible—a beautiful movement when done properly and modestly, as Sally did it. The movement that is vulgarly known all over the world as "the shimmy"!

And as she did it, she winked solemnly at herself in the glass.

Millie was sitting up in bed, waiting for her.

She had a large mirror propped against a mound of lace-covered pillows in front of her, and she was brushing her golden hair.

"How would you like me with my hair this way?" she asked, twisting it into a flat, shining coil at the nape of her neck. "Don't you think it's nice?"

"Very," answered Sally. "What did you want to talk to me about, Millie?"

Millie made eyes at herself in the glass.

She smiled in a dreamy way. "Oh, I wanted to ask you about John Nye," she murmured.

Then she laughed and looked up at her sister. "Wasn't that funny—his coming out here today, and pretending that he wanted to see you?" she lilted. "As if I couldn't see through the whole thing!"

"What do you mean?" Sally asked, stiffly.

If Millie had been looking at her, she would have seen the flush that spread slowly over her face and neck.

But Millie was studying the mirror once more with entranced eyes.

"Why, you knew why he came here, didn't you?" she asked, and then went on to explain. "He came here to see if I was home—and he didn't want to admit it! You see, he's jealous of Davy Davidson, and so lately he's been pretending that he's lost all interest in me. Davy came up to the office to take me out once or twice. . . . I told him not to, but he came anyway. And Johnny's been going around like a bear with a sore head ever since."

Her smile deepened. Sally could see that she was proud of the fact that two men were in love with her—and that one of them was wildly jealous of the other.

"I see," said Sally, painfully. "You mean that he didn't really come here to see me today. You mean that he didn't want me to come back to work for him at all. That he just made that an excuse for coming to see you. . . . Is that it?"

Millie nodded her shining head. "Sure pop," she replied, musically. "He knows you're tied up here for keeps. He doesn't want you to work for him. He's got me and Miss Kress. How could he keep a third girl busy? Figure it out for yourself."

Sally did.

She figured it out, lying alone in the darkness of her own room, an hour later. It took her all that time to make up her mind that Millie was right—and that John Nye had really come there that day to see her.

"But I wish he hadn't pretended that it was me that he wanted to talk to," thought Sally with bitterness in her heart. "I'd have liked him better if he'd come straight out and said he wanted to see Millie, instead of pretending that he had a job for me. He's always seemed to be so honest."

She thought of him—of the way he looked with his straight lips, his deep, direct eyes and his quick, frank way of saying what he meant. It was hard to think of John Nye as being anything but honest.

On the next night, which was Monday, Sally went with Ted Sloan to see the tango dancers at "The Lark." And, just as Ted had said, they weren't so wonderful.

On Tuesday morning Sally drove to town in Aunt Emily's little car and returned at noon with several small packages that she carried straight to her own room.

On Tuesday afternoon at dusk Mrs. Jerome opened the door of it and came in.

"I wonder if you would make me a cup of coffee, Sally," she began, and then stopped talking and made a queer little clucking sound in her throat.

Sally was sitting on the edge of the bed, winding a long yellow satin ribbon around one of her slender legs. And upon the ribbon dozens and dozens of tiny gilt bells were sewed. They tinkled merrily as the ribbon moved under Sally's slender little fingers.

"Whatever tomfoolery are you up to now?" asked Mrs. Jerome, mystified.

Sally gave a wild giggle. "I'm about to become 'Bella, the belle of the ballroom dancers,'" she said, looking up at her mother from under her thick, upcurling lashes. Her face was adorable with mischief and laughter.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Mr. Ticer Suddenly Assumes an Important Place in the Story.

THAT Mrs. Ticer and Jerry, her son, were full of important news, I knew as I caught sight of their honest, friendly faces. During my years at the farm, I have grown so familiar with the facial expressions of these sterling neighbors, who have helped us through so many domestic difficulties, that I did not need Mrs. Ticer's quietly signaling eyebrows, nor Jerry's abrupt driving of his car to the rear of the house after his mother and Noel Veritzen had alighted, to know that they wished to consult me about something. So after warmly greeting my neighbor and young Veritzen, who upon our recommendation had been staying at the Ticer farmhouse while his broken hand healed, I left the youth to the hospitality of Dicky and my mother-in-law, and took Mrs. Ticer inside the house upon the first flimsy pretense which occurred to me.

But before I went, I spoke in a quiet aside to young Veritzen.

"I'll tell Mary you're here," I said, and smiled to myself at the ingenuous flush which rose to his cheek at my promise. He was so patently and whole-heartedly in love with Dicky's lovely young niece, and treated so lightly the suffering and loss of income, resulting from the injury to his hand, sustained when defending Mary from Jack Leslie, that I had not the heart to put any obstacle in the path of his wooing.

For wooing it was, as unmistakable as it was naive, with a history back of it which invested it with unusual romance and drama. The young violinist, lonely, saddened by his estrangement from his father, had kept aloof from the hectic associations of the cabaret where his unusual gifts as a musician enabled him to earn his living, and had preserved a certain boyish ingenuousness rare indeed, in Broadway's experience. When Mary, deceiving us all, yielded to Jack Leslie's urging and became the mysterious masked dancer at the night-club where Leslie danced and Veritzen played the violin Noel fell in love with her, and despite appearances believed implicitly in her innocence of any intrigue with Leslie. His discovery of her identity, and of Leslie's plot against her, and his dramatic part in her rescue, were still fresh in my mind—and I knew in Mary's also.

But I knew, what I guessed Noel also surmised, that Mary's heart was like a sheet of blank paper with no script yet showing upon it. The romantic, single-hearted boy was so joyously thankful for the discovery that Mary was not in love with Jack Leslie, that he was reconciled to the fact of there being no touch of sentiment in the frank liking intensified by gratitude which the young girl accorded himself. He was content to be able to see her every day, something which I guessed was the strongest attraction he found in his arrangement to stay at the Ticer farmhouse during his convalescence.

Lillian Underwood had suggested the place in the conferences which she, Hugh Grantland and I had held concerning the young violinist in the days succeeding our spectacular rescue of Mary from Jack Leslie.

To do Philip Veritzen justice, I believe that had he known of his son's injury he would have come forward with proffered aid, though Noel in all probability would have refused it. But because of Mary's serious illness and the fact that no one but she herself ought to tell the dramatic producer of her deception, he had been kept in ignorance of the affair in which Noel was injured, nor was the night-club proprietor better informed. Noel simply disappeared from Broadway and found a homely, hospitable haven at the Ticer farm. But as Mrs. Ticer turned a worried face to me, I wondered with a little premonition of annoyance, whether anything had happened to disturb that eminently satisfactory arrangement.

LIVES OF 6 MEN IMPERILED AS YACHT BURNS

(By International News Service.)

CAPE MAY, N. J., Sept. 26.—The lives of J. W. Valiant, wealthy resident of Baltimore, Md., four male guests, and a Negro steward, were jeopardized when flames, believed today to have been caused by an explosion, practically destroyed The Dog Jewel, Valiant's $50,000 yacht, in Grassy Sound, off Stone Harbor. The six men got into a tender and went ashore, while members of the Stone Harbor Coast Guard Station tried ineffectually to save the burning yacht.

The party was returning from Sea Isle to Baltimore. The yacht was off Stone Harbor, several miles up the coast from here, when the explosion took place and flames burst forth. After trying to smother the fire the men jumped into the tender. None had been injured or burned.

Valiant's guests were Donald Rooney of Annapolis, Md.; Charles Carmin, William McMullin and George Corner, all of Philadelphia.

COAL POLICEMAN NOT SWORN

Paul Smith, 30, of Harrisburg, a coal and iron policeman, held as a witness in the accidental shooting last Friday of Mrs. Helen Postek, 47, of Coverdale, has been employed a month without being sworn to duty, county detectives said last night.

Smith, who is being held in jail on a district attorney detainer, will be turned over to the coroner as a witness. His story that the shooting was accidental was corroborated by the woman's husband. The shot was fired by Samuel Freehoff, who was examining Smith's gun.

GIRL, 5 DIES OF MATCH BURNS

Death ended the agony yesterday which little Henrietta Wittenberg, aged 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Wittenberg, 1414 Summit street, Wilkinsburg, has suffered since she burned herself with matches on Saturday, September 17. She died in Columbia Hospital. The accident occured a month after her fifth birthday. While her mother was in another part of the home the little girl took matches from the kitchen and went to the cellar, where she struck one. The flame ignited her dress.

SLEUTHS NAB NEGRO BREAKING INTO OFFICE

Horace Nichols, aged 24, Negro, 12 Beebe street, was held in Central Police Station on a suspicious person charge after Holmes Protective Service detectives arrested him early today when, they say, he attempted to enter the office of W. P. Wimer Company, 700 Second avenue. He surrendered after five shots were fired to frighten him.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN, 70, COLLAPSES IN STREET

An unidentified white man, aged about 70, collapsed at First and Smithfield streets at 10 o'clock last night and still was unconscious at the Allegheny General Hospital this morning. He was well dressed.

Babe Must Hustle For Record

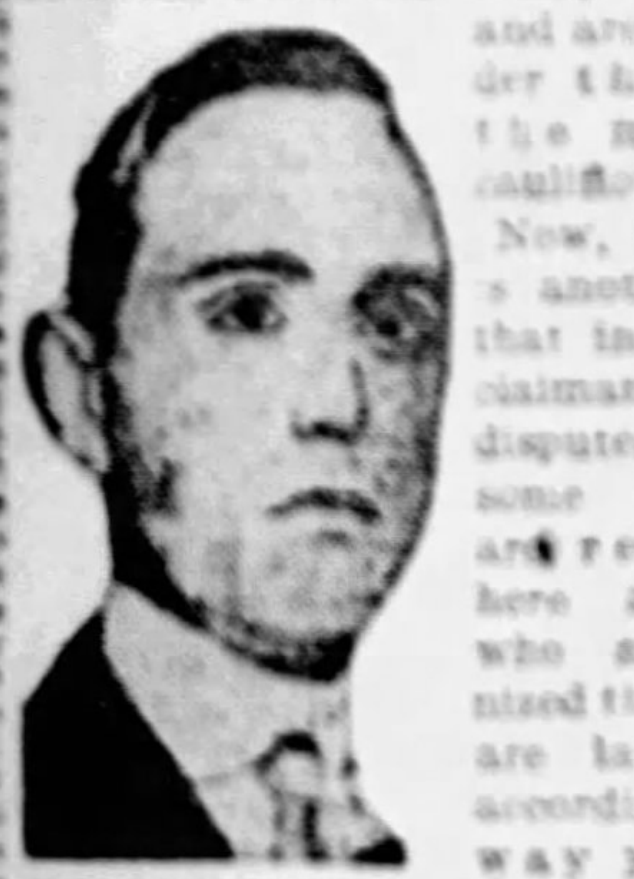
NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(INS.)—Babe Ruth, still at the 56 mark, must hit one homer in each of New York's four remaining games in order to set a new home run record of 60. The Bambino and his rival, Lou Gehrig, were held to one single apiece yesterday by Earl Whitehill of the Tigers, Gehrig fanning three times.

DAMON RUNYON SAYS

TITLE SITUATION

Flyweight	Vacant
Bantam	Vacant
Feather	Vacant
130 Pounds	Tod Morgan
Light	Vacant
Welter	Joe Dundee
Middle	Mickey Walker
Light Heavy	Vacant
Heavy	Gene Tunney

SUCH is the astonishing situation that prevails today in the Manly Art of Scrambling Ears. Four undisputed titleholders in the nine divisions, that is to say, titles that bear the bona fide stamp of "world" and are legal tender throughout the marts of cauliflower trade.



DAMON RUNYON.

New, then, here is another roster that includes the claimants of the disputed titles, some of whom are recognized here and some who are recognized there. Those are lawful only according to the way you feel about it.

Flyweight—About 50 claimants.
Bantam—Buddy Taylor.
Featherweight—Benny Bass.
130 Pounds—Tod Morgan.
Light—Sammy Mandell.
Welter—Joe Dundee.
Middle—Mickey Walker.
Light Heavy—Mike McTigue.
Heavy—Gene Tunney.

IT SEEMS but yesterday that we had a roster something like this:

Flyweight—Jimmy Wilde.
Bantamweight—Joe Lynch.
Feather—Johnny Kilbane.
130 Pounds—Johnny Dundee.
Light—Benny Leonard.
Welter—Mickey Walker.
Middle—Harry Greb.
Light Heavy—Georges Carpentier.
Heavy—Jack Dempsey.

Five of the titles have been vacated by their holders in the past couple of years—Fidel LaBarba, Charley Phil Rosenberg, Johnny Dundee, Benny Leonard and Jack Delaney. If Louis Kid Kaplan was ever legally the featherweight champion, he, too, must be added to the list of the resigned.

Rosenberg, Kaplan and Dundee handed in their resignations for the same reason—difficulty in making the weight assigned in their division. Leonard's resignation was probably due to the same thing, though Bennah asserts that it was because his mother made belated objection to his fighting.

FIDEL LABARBA resigned to enter Leland Stanford College out on the Pacific Coast. I believe that Fidel is the first champion in the history of The Manly Art of Mangling Maps to resign for that reason.

M. Ovila Chapdelaine, otherwise Jack Delaney, resigned for reasons frankly commercial, though he assigned the old weight things as the cause. M. Ovila came to the conclusion that he could make more money as a heavyweight, especially when his best paying client, Paul Berlenbach, withdrew his trade.

I think M. Ovila could still do 175 pounds at 7 p. m. of any bright afternoon without turning a hair, but he says not. Hence is a heavyweight. Beyond 175 pounds, a man can weigh what he pleases. A lot of matches have been made around New York lately in which one man outweighed the other upwards of 20 pounds.

The legislation that now surrounds the dear old manly art is largely responsible for the lads turning in their titles when they find they can no longer make the weight. In the old days, before we had commissions, a title holder could stagger around for years hanging onto his title when he couldn't make title weight without sawing off a leg.

Now he has to prove that the scales cause him no annoyance at regular intervals, and moreover he has to take on the tough 'uns. Perhaps the paucity of title holders is a testimonial to the efficiency of the commission form of boxing government.

I am inclined to think that the claim of Benny Bass of Philadelphia to the featherweight title will hold water better than any of the other claims. He defeated Red Chapman of Boston the other night, and Chapman seems to have been generally recognized as one of the very best of the claimants.

The only cloud I see on Bass' title is the insistence of Johnny Dundee that he withdrew his resignation as featherweight champion and that he has never been defeated in the ring for the title, which is quite true. I suppose if Bass should beat Dundee there would be no further argument about the matter whatever. Dundee won it from Eugene Criqui of France and Criqui got it from Johnny Kilbane, who held it about 10 years.

It is my personal opinion that Buddy Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., is the best bantamweight in the land, if only because he beat Tony Canzoneri, but Taylor has yet to establish his claim to the title in the East. Mandell's claim to the lightweight title is regarded as wholly spurious by the Eastern ringworms, though it is really a New York state title.

I am perfectly willing to concede that Mike McTigue is probably the best light heavyweight in the country, but his election to the championship by the New York commission would scarcely pass scrutiny on technical grounds. Mike will have to beat Tommy Loughran to prove it.

MELLOW AND LE GRAY TO MEET ON THURSDAY

Johnny Mellow, of Detroit, and Joey LeGray, of Johnstown, will head the weekly fight card of the Majestic Club of McKeesport at the Palisades rink next Thursday, and a great battle is looked for.

LeGray won over Bobby Richardson at Johnstown last Monday night, although outweighed 15 pounds by the boy who knocked out Gene Baker not long ago.

Joey has been going at a great clip, and expects to add Mellow to his list of victims, although he admits he is up against a tough proposition. The Detroiter has appeared a number of times in the Tube City, and always gave a good account of himself.

Cubs to Get Huge Amount

By CHARLES J. DOYLE, Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—The first half of the National League race of 1927 found the fans of the circuit in a rather apathetic frame of mind. Indeed, the patronage at all parks, except those of Chicago and Pittsburgh, indicated there would be a noticeable falling off in collective attendance as compared with last season. But the last two months have brought out one of the greatest finishes in the history of the time-honored circuit, so that instead of a decrease in admissions the league may show a total that will be close to the best ever recorded.

The Cubs will lead all others by a comfortable margin, owing to the fact that they will play to more than a million folks on the old home grounds. The Bruins reached the remarkable total just before they were counted out of the reckoning for the flag. The fine spirit of a mediocre ball team under smart leadership combined to make an attraction that caused Chicago fans to fight to get into the home lot.

PIRATE GATE JUMPS

The Cubs did not pack them in on the road, but no other club in the circuit was able to do this. However, the new figures established by the Bears as they showed in Chicago means that they will make a bigger harvest than any other club for the games played in the regular season.

The Pirates are very apt to be second in total number drawn, both at home and for the entire season. The patronage at Forbes Field was a bit behind that of last season up to a few weeks ago, but once the four teams went into the home stretch the fans began swarming to Forbes Field, with the result that the coffers of the local club will be enriched to a great extent. The Pittsburgh team holds the reputation for spending money lavishly to buy new stars and the system has more than justified itself, both in the artistic and financial sense.

BROWNS LOSE MUCH

Nevertheless, it will not be a big season financially for more than one club in the major wheels. The Browns, it is said, will lose a fortune. The Ruth-Gehrig combination in the Yankee lineup insures heavy profits for the Yanks despite the princely salary paid Bambino.

The Reds are a very costly ball team, and in view of their second division status they have not played to crowded houses this season. It may be that the Reds will not lose any coin, but they will not make profits like they have in the past. The Cardinals have been well patronized this season, but it isn't likely that their games will be as profitable as those of the Cubs and Pirates. The Dodgers won't make enough to start a mint, but Brooklyn is a fine ball town even with a fair club. The Braves and Phillies will not pay any heavy dividends on what they make in the long season.

SIMPSON NET CUP REMAINS IN EAST

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—(UP.)—The Simpson cup, emblematic of the United States intersectional tennis team championship, remained in the East for the second consecutive year when the veterans, William T. Tilden of form from the previous day's play and Wallace Johnson, representing the middle states, whipped the young local stars, George Lott and Lucien Williams of the West, to a standstill in the singles of the series at the Town and Tennis Club yesterday.

Tilden showed a decided reversal to overwhelm Lott, 6-2, 6-1, 6-1, while the other Philadelphian laced Williams, 6-0, 6-1, 6-1.

Lott found himself in the doubles, and with the equally brilliant Hennessey they outplayed the veterans in every department of the game to win in four sets, 11-9, 6-4, 4-6, 7-5.

National League Flag Rivals in "Stretch"

By the Associated Press.

Three National League pennant contenders today entered the final stretch, with a World's Series representative still undetermined but with the scales pointing slightly in favor of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Donie Bush's club can clinch the 1927 championship by winning four of its remaining contests. By winning three out of the five while the New York Giants and the St. Louis Cardinals were taking all their games, the Pirates would be a party to a three-cornered tie for first place. The season ends next Sunday. Today's standings showed the Pirates two full games to the good at the top of the heap.

The Bucs went on to Chicago yesterday and opened up with a two-game victory over the Cubs. Aldridge bested Guy Bush in the opener, 2-1, Chicago's lone run being the result of Heathcote's homer. Pittsburgh batted Charlie Root out of the second game and won by a 6-1 count.

CARDS KEEP PACE

The Cardinals, by taking two games from the Boston Braves, advanced into second place. Bob O'Farrell's world champions won the opener, 4-1, triples by Orsatti and Bottomley driving in the winning margin. St. Louis had a spirited fight to annex the windup, 6-5. Pete Alexander came to Reinhart's rescue when the Braves began to solve the southpaw's offerings.

Jess Petty was in rare form and he stopped the New York Giants in their tracks before 25,000 fans at Ebbets Field. Neither team scored, and the contest was called in the seventh because of darkness. It will be played as part of a double-header or on an open date this week.

While the standstill had no material effect on the Giants' pennant chances it did throw an added burden on McGraw's team.

An eleventh-hour upset seemed to be in the making, with Pittsburgh going badly last week. The Corsairs now seem to be "in," although their path this week may be stormy.

Philadelphia stopped Cincinnati, 4-3, hammering Beckman, a recruit, for a commanding lead.

TIGERS BUMP YANKEES

Miller Huggins sent Waite Hoyt to the mound in the final game of the Detroit series, but the Yankee ace was not equal to the task and the Tigers gained a 6-1 decision. Whitehill's pitching was about all that could be asked. He fanned Gehrig twice with men on bases, allowed only six hits and had rare control. Babe Ruth failed to get a home run and must hit three of them in the four remaining games on the New York schedule to tie his record of 59 made in 1921.

Old Tom Zachary pitched Washington to a 16-0 victory over his former teammates, the St. Louis Browns. Tom scattered seven hits while the Senators hit often against Wingard, Van Gilder and Crowder.

Cleveland drew close to fifth place in the standing by trouncing the Chicago White Sox, 10-1. Hudlin had a shutout in hand until the ninth, when he walked two men, one of whom scored on the next play.

W. & J. PREPARES FOR NEXT GAME

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 26.—While far from satisfied with the work of his players in the opening game with Waynesburg on Saturday, Coach Andy Kerr of Wash.-Jeff. refrained from caustic criticism of his men, preferring to iron out the defects in the play on the field this week in preparation for the game next Saturday with Western Maryland. Kerr realizes that he will have one of the toughest foes of the campaign in the Southern eleven coached by Dick Harlow and he is more than anxious to be prepared for it, inasmuch as the game is the home-coming engagement and hundreds of alumni will be back to see the team in action.

French Win Davis Cup, Then Have It Held by Customs

HAVRE, France, Sept. 26.—(INS.)—French customs officials have "held up" the Davis cup for payment of duty based upon its $1,000 value. The cup was being brought into France from the United States, where it was won by the French tennis team after eight years' trial.

When the duty was not forthcoming the officials seized the trophy, saying they would hold it until a ruling came from the ministry of finance at Paris.

GRIDDERS CONFUSED OVER GOAL POSTS' LOCATION

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP.)—Out of the football rules changes which, in the main, failed to cause any deviation from the general standard of play in opening contests, one which had been given little consideration by coaches and officials seems to be causing some confusion to players and spectators.

The chief reason for moving the goal posts 10 yards beyond the goal line was to emphasize goals after touchdown and goals from the field. While the objective may have been attained, opening games only served to confound players attempting to gauge distance when receiving punts and when carrying the ball near the goal. Spectators, likewise, were uncertain regarding the distance to be covered for a touchdown.

The new rule governing the lateral pass was not put to a test. Only a very few of the east's teams put the play into operation. Rulings regarding the timing of shifts and the huddle did not tend to run up penalties. The huddle system of calling plays scarcely was used, while the teams employing shifts had no especial difficulty.

First games afforded no basis for determining whether the rules on time lapses between the shift and the snapping of the ball, and the time limit on the huddle, will have a marked effect on the sport.

SOCCER by TOM BIRKS

The big surprise of yesterday's results was the defeat of the Mustard Hollow club by Pittsburgh Internationals on the Hollow enclosure. Fans in the district figured that the Internationals were good following that game with the Germans, but that form did not warrant defeating the league leaders.

While the Internationals lost another surprise was the failure of Pittsburgh Lafayettes to defeat the Corinthians at Grove. While a protest was entered against the playing field, and rightly so, the class of the Lafayette should be enough to defeat the Corinthians if the Pittsburghers are going to make any showing in that district championships.

East Pittsburgh Magyars showed before the fans for the first time yesterday. Well the Hungarians got trounced by Westinghouse by a one-sided score, so another contender from the Valley League is eliminated on the day's showing.

Keeping up its good work of the past few weeks, Harmarville traveled to McKees Rocks and collected a brace of points at the expense of the Rox outfit. Bobby Robinson is keeping the boys on their toes and getting quite a kick out of it.

Heidelberg showed its true form yesterday in the battle with the German club. The national champions won with ease and this is very gratifying to the fans of the district, who are looking for the Green and Gold cracks to repeat.

There is a doubt as to the playing of the Rovers-Heidelberg game in the national open this week end. The Rovers are strictly a Saturday club well the draw shows at Heidelberg, and that will be a Sunday game.

National Tube kept its good form in the Valley League at the expense of Braddock United. The Tubers are playing brilliant soccer and should be quite a thorn in the sides of the boys when the big games come around.

Walker played a bang-up game for McKees Rocks yesterday, saving a couple of penalty kicks in the course of the game. This is quite a feat for any goalie. And is well worth mentioning.

Next Saturday and Sunday finds the district in the throes of the national cup ties for a change. It is hoped that the Heidelberg-Rovers game goes through, but at this time of writing there is not a chance in the world.

Clan Grant looks like copping that clan league again on the showing against Clan Gordan. However, there is a chance that McPherson is going to be hard to beat. The North Siders put up a wonderful exhibition against Clan Cameron and this might be their year.

BIG TEN SQUADS PREPARE FOR OPENERS

By GENE HOFFMAN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—Big Ten football squads today settled down to their final week of intensive drill preparatory to Saturday's opening of the intercollegiate schedule.

Although the Western Conference season does not open until October 8, all of the Big Ten teams have games scheduled with "trial horses" for this coming Saturday.

These "warming up" contests are important in that they reveal just how good or how bad the various championship contenders may prove to be. The coaches view these games with the interest of a mechanic who has built a machine and sees it in operation for the first time. The weak points are ferreted out and the "machine" groomed for the first real test of the season.

Saturday's games are scheduled as follows:

Oklahoma at Chicago, Bradley at Illinois, Indiana at Lexington, Monmouth at Iowa, Ohio Wesleyan at Michigan, North Dakota at Minnesota, South Dakota at Northwestern, Wittenberg at Ohio State, Depauw at Purdue and Cornell (Ia.) at Wisconsin.

Scarcely any of the Big Ten teams have escaped without some heartbreaking pre-season reversal. From the failure of former stars to re-enter school—such as Frosty Peters, of Illinois—to illness and injury of regular players, misfortune has taken its toll in every camp.

Several important changes in long-established coaching staffs and many new rules of play are other considerations that make the opening and subsequent trend of the 1927 season one of the most uncertain in the history of the Western Conference.

Reports from the various midwest bailiwicks indicate that all of the teams are shaping up as well as could be expected.

Sammy Babcock seems to have clinched a half position on the Michigan varsity squad. Among the Wolverine newcomers who look good are Nyland, Nicholson, Waldner and Carter, all linemen. The team will practice signals and formations today and tomorrow and scrimmage on Wednesday and Thursday.

Coach Pat Page, of Indiana, who has been pointing his charges for the University of Kentucky game, will leave Bloomington for Lexington Friday with 33 of his most promising youngsters.

Dick Hanley, new coach at Northwestern, is busy instilling the "Pop" Warner system into the somewhat depleted ranks of the Purple. One feature of Hanley's system will be the elimination of the huddle. The loss of Ralph (Moon) Baker is viewed as a severe blow to Northwestern, the team that tied Michigan last year for the championship.

Coach Jack Wilce of Ohio State expressed himself well pleased with the showing his regulars made against the reserve team Saturday. The regulars won, 13 to 0, with Eby and Marek starring in long-distance runs.

While the backfield at Chicago is lighter than it has been in many years, Coach Stagg believes the added speed of his principal candidates will offset the matter of weight. He is also well supplied with punting talent. Burgess and Mendenhall are two of the most promising backs so far developed.

MUD HENS WIN A. A. FLAG

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—(AP.)—The cheery flap of an American Association pennant at last will be heard over the Toledo ball park.

Breaking through a crust of Association tradition and misfortune which has passed the circuit championship to every club in the league except Toledo since 1900, the Mud Hens emerged victorious in one of the warmest races in years yesterday. Because of its championship, the Hens will represent the Association in the "little world series" with Buffalo, the International League champions, in a nine-game series starting at Toledo next Wednesday.

It took the last day of the American Association to decide the race. With a full game advantage over its two rivals, Toledo came through with a double victory over Indianapolis yesterday, 5 to 2 and 2 to 0. Kansas City tied Milwaukee for second place by winning a twin bill from Minneapolis, 3 to 2 and 6 to 2, while the Milwaukee Brewers divided a double-header with the troublesome Saints, winning the first, 9 to 8, and losing the nightcap, 15 to 6. Thus the Mud Hens were on top of the Association heap by a margin of two full games at the close.

The Toledo championship was hailed by Thomas Hickey, president and one of the founders of the American Association, as one of the greatest things that could happen for the league.

"It is a fine reward for the loyal Toledo fans who have supported their team through all kinds of baseball adversity," he said.

President Hickey said he was pleased with the passing season in every way and he predicted a better year for 1928.

Oddly enough, the Louisville Colonels, champions, barely escaped the cellar this season. The Colonels dropped the Columbus Senators, final cellar occupants, twice yesterday, 6 to 5 and 5 to 2.

Rules Do Not Provide for Play-Off of Triple Tie for Pennant

By JAMES J. LONG.

THE possibility that the National League pennant race may end in a three-cornered tie has brought up the question as to how the flag winner would be determined in that event.

The National League regulations do not settle clearly the point in dispute. Originally the league constitution provided that in the event of two clubs being tied for the championship at the finish of the regular season a special series of three games should be played—one on the grounds of each of the clubs and the third at a neutral park.

Since then the constitution has been changed to include a third club, or more, but in making the revision the magnates failed to provide a logical means of determining the winner fairly, as they left the number of games at three.

Sections 58 and 59 of the present constitution of the National League provides:

> "In event of two or more clubs being tied for first place at the end of the regular championship season, the board of directors shall at once arrange a series of three games to decide the winner, these games to be added to the regular season's record of the club involved."

The tangle arises from the fact that while it would be possible to settle the championship fairly in three games if only two clubs finished in a tie, it would be clearly impossible to end the race fairly in three games if three clubs were tied, as is possible this year.

If only three games were played, one club would have to play two games while each of the others played only one. It would require a larger number of games, so that each club would meet the two others the same number of times, instead of one of them playing two games while each of the others played only one under the three-game arrangement.

The board of directors is made up of the presidents of the New York, St. Louis, Boston and Cincinnati clubs. As their clubs are involved in the tie, the presidents of the Giants and Cardinals would not be entitled to a vote on the question, so that the post-season pennant series arrangements would be in the hands of the Boston and Cincinnati club presidents.

President Barney Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh club, when questioned on the subject this morning, admitted that the three-game provision would not fit a situation in which three clubs were tied.

> "However, I am not worried about that," he said. "Post-season games have never been ordered except in 1908 and no other race ever has ended in a tie between any two clubs, or with three or more involved. I do not look for a tie this time, for I have every confidence in the world that our boys will hold their lead and that Pittsburgh will win the pennant."

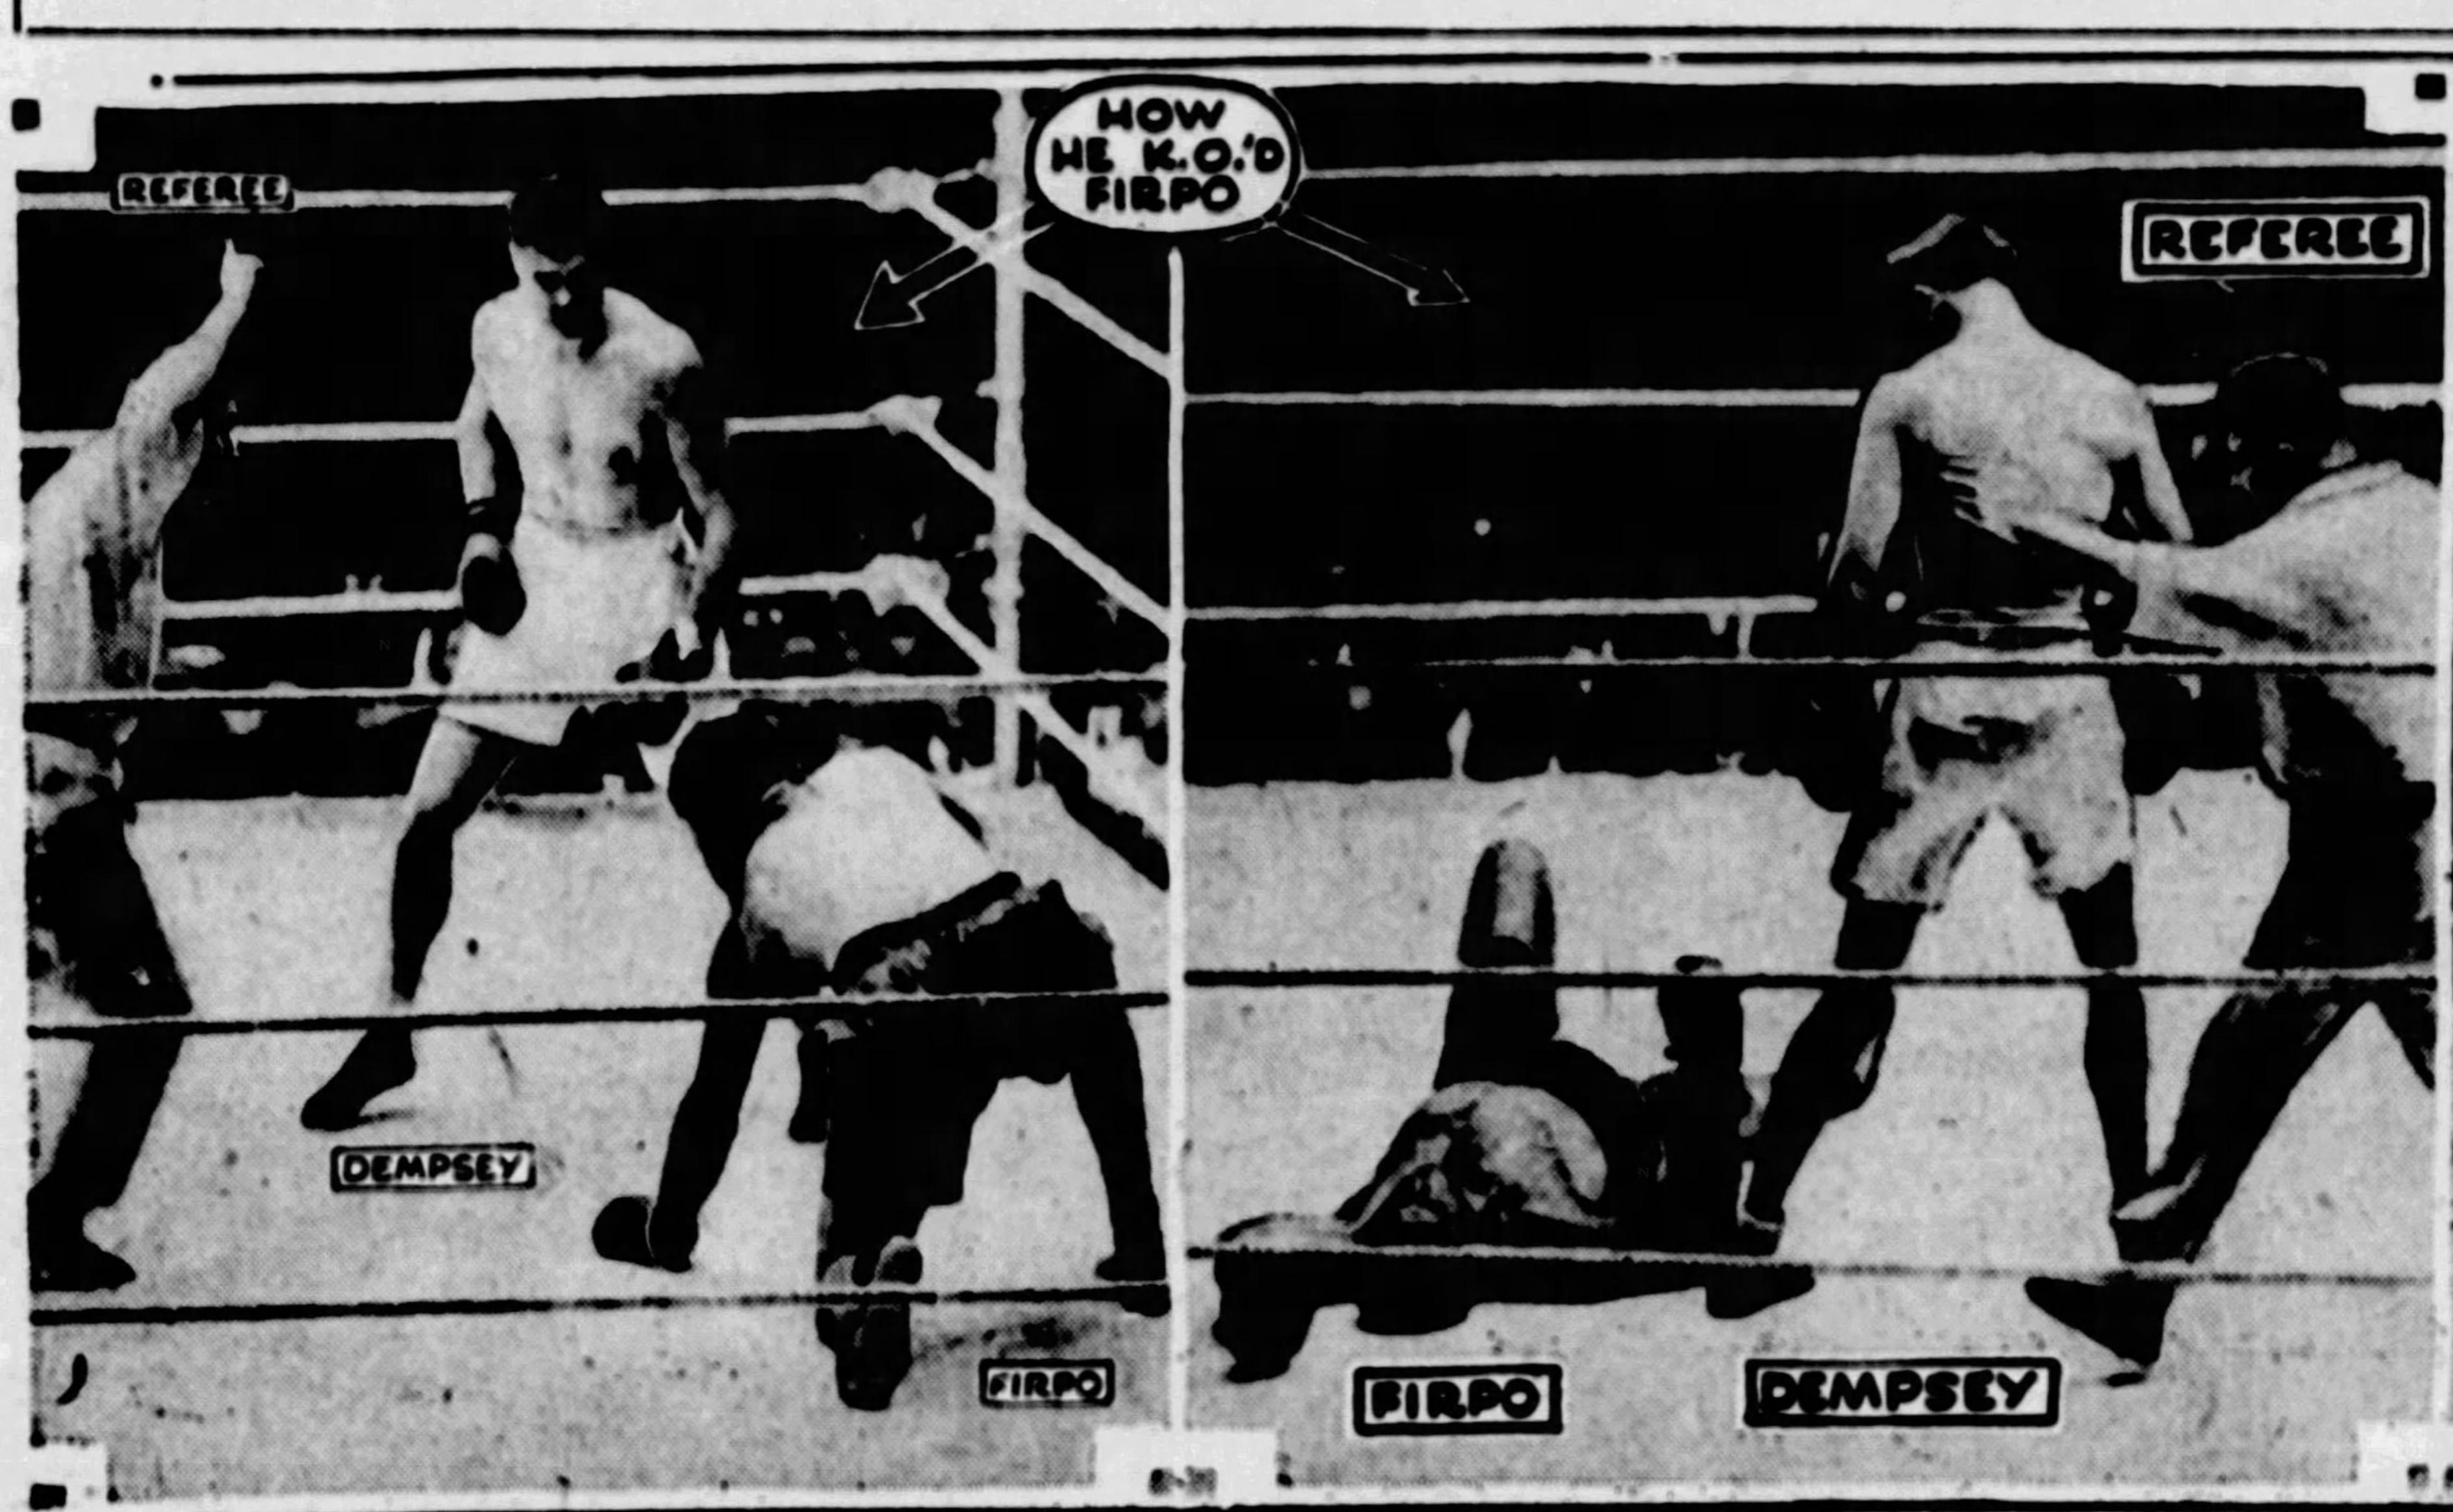
BUCS BEAT CUBS TWICE, LOOM AS CHAMPS

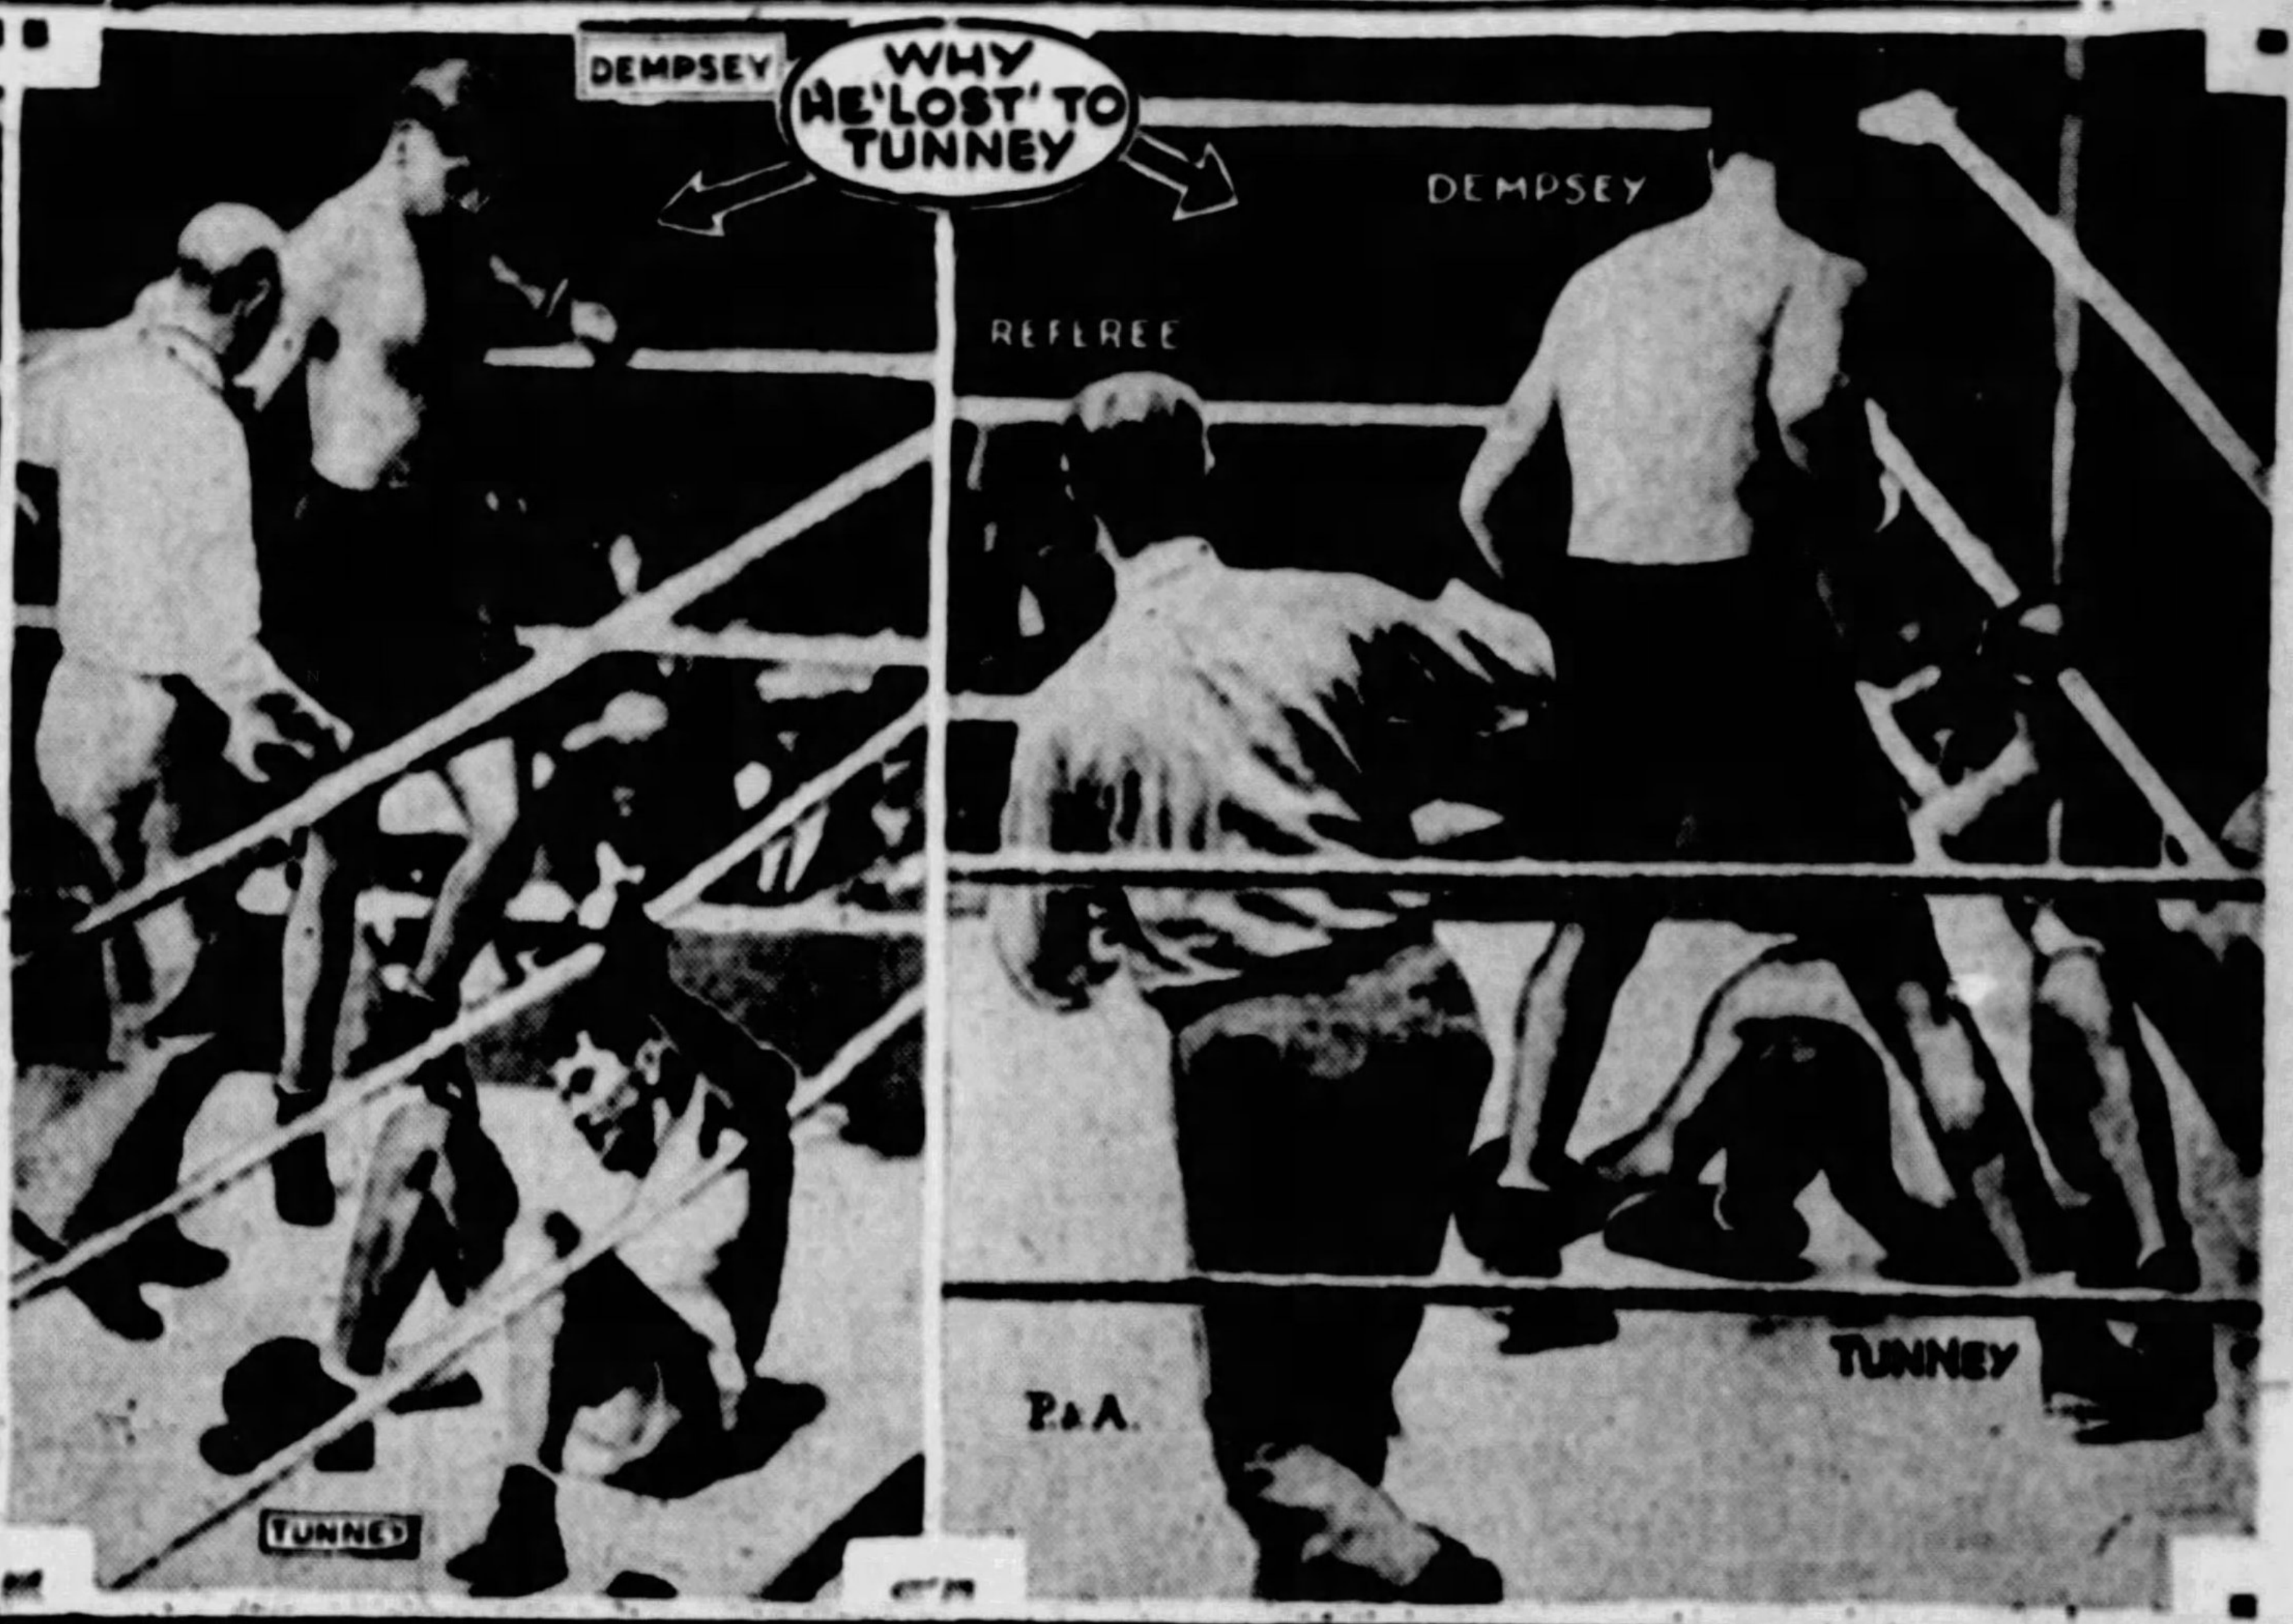
Dempsey and Tunney Are Invited To Visit Here

CROWDING OPPONENT :-: WON THIS BOUT :-: BUT LOST THIS ONE



WHEN JACK FOLLOWED UP ADVANTAGE

Two pictures above show how Jack Dempsey, then defending the world's heavyweight championship, stood over Luis Firpo every time he knocked him down and repeated the dose as fast as Luis got up until he finally knocked him out in the second round of their battle in New York four years ago. As a result of what happened in that bout, boxing commissions enforced a rule that boxers scoring knockdowns must retire to distant neutral corners while their victims are being counted over.



AND WHEN HE HAD TO GO TO A CORNER

These two pictures show some of the stirring action in Dempsey's fight as the challenger for the title against Gene Tunney, his successor, at Chicago last week. They show the referee making sure that Dempsey gets away from his own corner, where he would have been able to spring at Gene the moment the latter got up. As a result of the delay by Dempsey in going to the proper corner, Tunney got the benefit of a count of 14, although he arose at the referee's official toll of nine seconds.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

THE possibility that the present three-cornered pennant race in the National League may be fought down almost to the finish line next Sunday before the winner is determined, will recall to veteran fans of this district a similar situation 19 years ago, when the flag was snatched from the Pittsburgh club's grasp on the very last day of the season.

Despite last week's skidding and the loss of three out of four to New York local fans have too much confidence in Manager Bush and his 1927 crew to be fearful that history will repeat in the latter respect, but while they are still full of hope that the Buccaneers will win out in the end they are not blind to the chance that the fighting may continue to be so close this week as to keep the result in doubt until very near the final gong seven days hence.

REMEMBER that finish in 1908, with the Pirates, Cubs and Giants as contenders? It was the tighest triangular battle on record up to that time and has not been paralleled since.

The situation was such that, while Pittsburgh, New York and Chicago all had a chance to win out, the Pirates had only to capture the final game of their schedule at Chicago on Sunday, October 4, in order to cinch the pennant mathematically.

Prior to the final game that day the Pirates were leading the league with 98 games won, 55 lost, percentage, .641; Chicago was second with 97 won, 55 lost, percentage .638, and New York was third with 95 won, 55 lost, percentage .633.

All that the Bucs had to do, therefore, was to win that closing game and the pennant would have been mathematically cinched with 99 victories and 55 defeats. Chicago would have finished with 97 won and 56 lost, and as the "Merkle game" between New York and Chicago would not then have been played off, New York could have made no better mark than 98 won and 55 lost.

Pittsburgh would have won out over New York by the narrow margin of half a box score.

BUT the Pirates did not win that game. The Cubs copped it by a score of 5 to 2, and that defeat eliminated Pittsburgh.

Many local fans who went to Chicago for the important game still assert that some questionable decisions by Umpire O'Day on batted balls hit into the crowd along the right field foul line, (there was an attendance of 30,247 that day, a record up to that time) had a whole lot to do with Pittsburgh's defeat, but at any rate challenge of yesterday. Nothing but two victories would satisfy, and as the shades of night fell o'er the scene the Pittsburgh hustlers walked to their club house taking breaths of deep satisfaction.

Twilight had come and the park was quiet when Joe Harris nailed a hot liner off the bat of Cliff Heathcote to clinch the sweet victory. One was out at the time and Sparky Adams was heading for second when Harris nailed the drive in the murky atmosphere. The unassisted double play was easy.

BRUINS TRY HARD

My, oh my, how those Bruins did try to upset the Pirates, but behind it all was a feeling that must have been similar to that held by Dempsey when Jack "shot the works" in an effort to score a knockout. You see, the Bears, before the twin bill started, still had a mathematical chance to win the flag. The odds against them were terrific, but nevertheless there was a chance in the figures.

And what a battle waged in that opener. If the world series can produce a slab fight, flavored by any better plays, especially on the part of the Pirates, it will have to be a dandy. Vic Aldridge was a big hero, but Vic had to share the honors with Sprout Waner.

No attempt should be made to modify the credit due Aldridge as he flagged them on four hits, but it is a fact that with the game at stake, Sprout, after sprinting in his poetic manner to the screen, actually was against that barrier when he nailed Charlie Grimm's sock with two Cubs on the runways and two out. Nobody knows yet how the youngster reached the wire netting in time to judge his jump and impact correctly. Nobody but a marvel of fielding could have made the play. So, folks, if the Pirates win the flag—which they should do now—it will be fitting to heap heavy honors upon this worthy lad.

The second game found the Cubs just as anxious for victory to all intents, although the defeat in the first contest removed them from all pennant possibilities. Charlie Root, one of the game's greatest, took up the task against Remy Kremer, who once more came through to a triumph, although he was working on only two

First Grid Frays Hold Few Thrills

PITT, W. & J., GENEVA SHOW FINE FORM

By JESS M. CARVER.

MY TWO one-eyed scouts reported in yesterday after looking over the first collegiate football games of the season. To be perfectly frank, their reports were not so good, at least, they did not speak in glowing terms of the new football rules.

As far as the teams themselves went, the boys say that the tristate district is going to be in for a merry battle for honors, with Pitt and W. & J. ranking favorites to cop the bunting, and West Virginia, Tech and just possible, Penn State, doing the pressing. In the class B realm the "Mah Nice Boys" of Col. Alvin (Bo) McMillin from Geneva stand out like a red nose at a temperance meeting as a result of their astounding 21-0 route of Davis-Elkins. Any team that can wallop Davis-Elkins that way in the first game of the year is some team.

It is claimed that the new rules, with the change made in the lateral or backward pass, the setting back of the goal posts and the various other changes that have been made, that football is due for a bad year. Certain it is that it's going to be tough for the officials. I do not think that the removal of the goal posts to a position 10 yards behind the goal line will affect the tries for point after touchdown and goals from the field, but there is no doubt but what it has removed from the game the thrill of seeing a team making a stand on the one-yard line, with the boys resting their brawny backs against the posts.

THRILL IS GONE

Now when a team approaches the goal line the spectators do not seem to realize that a score is so imminent,

MOTOR SQUARE SEEKS BIG BOUT RIVALS AS GUESTS AT OPENER

By HARRY KECK,
Sun-Telegraph Sports Editor.

HEAVYWEIGHT Champion Gene Tunney and Former Champion Jack Dempsey have been invited to attend the opening show of the boxing season at Motor Square Garden, scheduled for next Monday night.

Manager John L. Hernon, manager of Motor Square Garden, sent messages to Dempsey and Manager Billy Gibson for Tunney on Sunday, inviting them here for the opener, and believes Dempsey at least will come, especially if there is a chance of seeing a world series game by staying over a few days after the show. Mrs. Dempsey also has been invited.

Tunney has been a frequent visitor in Pittsburgh during the last two years, having personal friends here, but Dempsey has not been in the city since his week's stay at the old Victoria Theater before he won the championship from Jess Willard at Toledo in 1919.

The message to Manager Gibson, in New York, read:

> "Opening boxing show October 3 here with Okun-Lawson. Would like to have Champion Tunney guest of club to present Pittsburgh fight fans this occasion. Please answer, naming conditions. J. L. Hernon, manager, Motor Square Garden."

The message to Dempsey, dispatched to him at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago, read:

> "Opening winter boxing show here October 3, with Lawson-Okun. Could you arrange to be guest of club that occasion meet Pittsburgh fans? It's been long time since you visited this city. Can you arrange bring Mrs.

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—The Pirates had to perform like real champions yesterday to take two games off the fighting Cubs. The actions of the Bruins in both games indicated that two victories meant just as much to them as to the Pirates. Guy Bush and Leo Hartnett tried out all their tricks in an effort to hold the Pirates in the opener, and they did a good job of it, Bush allowing only seven blows. But Aldridge had a remarkable defense ready for the Bears and they could not break through. Lloyd Waner's catch saved the first battle. Nevertheless, Aldridge was the master of the Bruins. His feat of making Stephenson and Wilson go out on easy taps with runners on third and second speaks for itself.

AFTER losing the opener, the Cubs showed little or no let down in their snappy play. Charlie Root, one of the big stars of the season, tried to stop the Pirates in this battle. Instead of sending out Mike Gonzales to relieve Leo Hartnett, Manager McCarthy instructed his star maskman to stay under the bat.

The Oaklanders teed off beautifully on Charlie the Root in the fifth. The hits of Wright and Traynor, which swayed the game, were pretty drives to right-center that scored runners from third and sent others to third from first. The Pirate captain led the attack of Freebooters with three hits.

Boots Grantham's homer was a thing of beauty. The screaming liner to right-center that hopped into the bleachers would have crashed against the exit gates of Pittsburgh on the first bound.

A LITTLE "dust-off" stuff crept into the second game; at least Charlie Root seemed to take a pot shot at Paul Waner, who had to do a Brodie to get out of danger. However, Root was a bit wild and the shot might have been [illegible]entional.

Threat Won Gene Hearing

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(UP.)—Back in New York after the Dempsey-Tunney fight at Chicago, Billy Gibson, manager of the champion, said that he threatened to withdraw Tunney from the bout during a heated conference Wednesday at the offices of the boxing commission.

The meeting was attended by three Illinois boxing Commissioners, Leo Flynn, Tex Rickard, George Getz, Gibson and others interested in the financial success of the fight.

During the heat of the argument over the rules to govern the battle, Gibson said the barrage became so violent that he reached for his coat and hat and said:

"Gentlemen, if I walk out of that door, there will be no more chance of this fight taking place than there will be of my flying out the window."

"My way to the door was barred," Gib on said, "and negotiations became more friendly."

Gibson insisted on 2½-inch gauze to bind the fighters' hands instead of 2-inch, and won that point. Flynn insisted on six feet of white adhesive tape and Gibson wanted four, but Gibson lost that point.

Gibson admitted today he was satisfied with the arrangement about the gauze and tape, but was forced to take the attitude he did because of Flynn's arbitrary attitude in Dempsey's behalf.

DECISION TO STAND

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—(AP.)—Whatever appeal Jack Dempsey and his manager, Leo Flynn, may file with the powers that control professional boxing, the decision that gave Gene Tunney last Thursday's championship fight seemed today as indelible and ineradicable as that spectacular fight itself.

Dempsey and Flynn, before leaving yesterday for New York on the same train that carried Tex Rickard, the promoter, said that a letter had been written the Illinois Boxing Commission asking it to award the heavyweight championship to Dempsey. The claim is based upon the knockdown Dempsey scored in the seventh round and the disputed count that followed as Tunney remained on the canvas.

Dempsey said he had sent the following telegram to the state commission:

"My manager, Leo P. Flynn, and myself are preparing a formal letter which will arrive at your offices Tuesday morning, asking you to reverse the decision and declare Jack Dempsey the winner by a knockout over Gene Tunney."

Flynn indicated that an appeal would be made to the National Boxing Commission in the event that the Illinois commision stuck to its determination to uphold the decision that gave Tunney the fight.

BOARD TO BACK ILLINOIS

The National Boxing Commission is an association of the commissions of 15 states, banded together for the purpose of uniform regulations of boxing. Its headquarters are at Hartford, Conn.

To those familiar with the operation of the National commission, it seemed most improbable that it would offer much solace to Flynn. The general opinion was that the National commission holds no power to overrule a member state commission. Rather, the National association heretofore has functioned as the endorser of member commissions' rulings. Where one state commission has ruled a boxer ineligible, for example, all other commissions who are members of the National association automatically have barred that boxer.

Illinois is one of the newest members of the National commission, but an influential one, due to the frequency with which important fights are held within its borders. Most students of boxing are openly skeptical over the interference one way or the other of the National commission.

Dempsey's closest associates have pointed out that Dempsey himself was not inclined to file a protest over the decision, but that he felt duty-bound to stand by his manager. Flynn has been insistent that the decision permitting Tunney to continue after the knockdown in the seventh round was unfair.

There was much conjecture today as to what Flynn and Dempsey might say in their formal protest. Some "startling disclosures" were hinted by some sources. Dempsey, however, would not indicate what basis, other than the questioned knockdown count, he would offer for a reversal of the decision.

John Righeimer, chairman of the Illinois Boxing Commission, said today that the fight, so far as the commission is concerned, is "a closed book."

"Nothing will make us change our verdict, which was unanimous in favor of Tunney," Righeimer said.

GENE RESTS IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Sept. 26.—(UP.)—After two days of comparative seclusion at the home of Leonard C. Hanna, Cleveland millionaire, Gene Tunney will leave Cleveland late today for New York, where once more he will be the feted conqueror.

Tunney arrived in Cleveland early yesterday and went at once to the Hanna country home, where arrangements had been made to receive him. The champion was accompanied by Lew Cody, movie actor, who is playing at a downtown vaudeville theater this week.

When asked by newspapermen whether he could have got up before the count of nine when he was knocked to the canvass in the seventh round of his fight with Jack Dempsey at Chicago, Tunney replied:

"Certainly, I wasn't out. I started to get up before the count of nine, but Billy Gibson and Jimmy Bronson gave me the signal to stay down."

Tunney will spend the day calling upon personal friends in the city and will leave tonight for New York. His exact leaving time still was a matter of guesswork.

the Pirates were out of it, and the pennant was gone.

The Giants then proceeded to win three straight games from Boston, though the Pirates and Cubs had already closed their schedules. This brought the McGrawites up to a tie with the Bruins with 98 won and 55 lost.

The playing-off of the "Merkle game" then was necessary to decide the pennant, and the Cubs won the game and the flag by a score of 2 to 1, with Jack Pfiester and "Three-Fingered" Brown pitching against Christy Mathewson and George Wiltse. Chicago's pennant margin was one full game, the Pirates and Giants finishing in a tie for second place.

SOME names that were household words in those days, but that have long since passed out of the big show appeared in the wind-up game that cost Pittsburgh the 1908 pennant.

JOHNNY KLING was behind the bat for the Cubs, with Three-Fingered Brown doing the pitching, Frank Chance playing first base, Johnny Evers, second; Artie Hofman, third; Joe Tinker, short; Jimmy Sheckard, left field; Del Howard, center, and Frank Schulte right. Chick Fraser, present Pirate scout, was on the Cub staff.

When the Cubs met the Giants later to play off the "Merkle game" of September 23, they used the same lineup that had been presented against Pittsburgh, except that Harry Steinfeldt was at third, while the Giants had Roger Bresnahan catching, Christy Mathewson and George Wiltse pitching, Fred Tenney at first base, Buck Herzog at second, Arthur Devlin at third, Arthur Bridwell at shortstop, Moose McCormick in left field, Cy Seymour in center, and Mike Donlin in right.

It isn't often that you get to see a team like any of those three in a big league diamond nowadays.

INCIDENTALLY, to make the season of 1908 all the more remarkable, the American League that year also was featured by a three-cornered race that kept the flag in doubt until the playing of the final game between two of the contenders.

During almost the entire campaign, Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago waged a close struggle, and it continued up to the final day of the season.

On October 5, Cleveland had a chance to sew up the bunting by winning its final game, but Bill Dineen of St. Louis killed that chance by beating Liebhardt and Chech 3 to 1 in the closing number, which made it possible for Detroit to come from half a game behind Cleveland and win the pennant in its last game on October 7, Wild Bill Donovan scoring a 7-to-0 victory over White, Walsh and Smith.

THE result was that Detroit won the pennant by half a game, with 90 victories and 63 defeats, for a percentage of .588, Cleveland finishing second with 90 won and 64 lost for a mark of .584, and Chicago winding up third with 88 won and 64 lost for a percentage of .579.

So the present three-cornered National League race, even if it remains undecided until the last day of the season, will not be without a precedent, for in 1908 there was a triangular struggle not only in the National, which required a post-season game to decide, but also a three-handed tussle in the American League, which was not determined until the closing game, and in which the winner nosed out its nearest rival by a meager one-half of a game.

ST. FRANCIS NEXT FOR BETHANY TEAM

BETHANY, W. Va., Sept. 26.—The Bethany College gridiron squad will rest today, but tomorrow the Bisons will again settle down to hard work in preparation for Saturday's game with St. Francis, at Bethany.

A mere glance at the nine-game schedule arranged by Bison Coach F. L. Nuss makes obvious the fact that the Bison mentor is counting heavily on the large squad to come through, and stamp the West Virginians as serious contenders for the Tri-State Conference championship.

All home games will be played on the [illegible] campus this year.

WESLEYAN TO OPPOSE NEW YORK UNIVERSITY

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., Sept. 26.—West Virginia Wesleyan must now prepare for its second game and one of the hardest on the schedule for the Methodists. Chick Meehan's New York University eleven will be the opponent on the Bobcats invasion of the East next Saturday.

The Big Violet team opened with a light game yesterday afternoon with Niagara University at New York, while the Wesleyan team had the West Virginia Mountaineers to contend with.

UMPIRES ARE NAMED FOR LITTLE SERIES

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—(AP.)—President Thomas J. Hickey, of the American Association, today appointed William Guthrie and William Finneran, as umpires to officiate in the "Little World's Series," which starts in Toledo Wednesday, September 28, between the Mud Hens, Association winners, and the Buffalo International champions.

FRANK HARRIS — JAMES CORBETT

When "Gentleman Jim" Corbett hesitated in Pittsburgh on his way back to New York from the Dempsey-Tunney fight at Chicago, State Senator Frank Harris had a welcome waiting for him. The welcome was done by William Barnett, apt pupil and brother of Luke Barnett. As a detective seeking a dangerous criminal Barnett detected a lot of fun at the Pennsylvania Station while he lined up a lot of notables including Corbett, Roscoe Arbuckle and Jack Lait and searched them.

DeMARCO VS. CONLON

Cuddy DeMarco and Dick Conlon fight for what is advertised as the state welterweight title at the Mishler Theater, Altoona, tonight. Cuddy claims the crown because of his two victories over Jack Zivic.

Promoter Jim McGirr of McKeesport reports brisk business for his Johnny Mellow-Joey LaGrey bout Thursday night. The Tube City fans like both of the main-bouters because of their wallops. Harry Taylor and Teddy Welch have been paired for the semi-final. Joey Katkish of Lawrenceville will meet Jackie Rodgers, Negro bantamweight of the North Side in the second bout and two heavyweights, Pete Lamb and Richard Gibbons, both of McKeesport, will make their debut in the opener.

The opening of the collegiate football season Saturday was more or less lost sight of in the aftermath of the Dempsey-Tunney fight and the close finish of the National League pennant race. Nothing out of the ordinary developed in the games played and even the revised rules did not meet a real test. However, it is seldom that the fans can get their minds down to football until the world series is out of the way, so this year's situation is no exception.

All the National League needs now to make its pennant race and its financial showing for the season howling successes is a triple tie for the lead when the last scheduled games have been played. Every other thrill in the book already has been tossed at the fans, and they've liked them.

TITLE BOUT FALLS THROUGH

The local boxing fans came close to having a treat in the way of seeing a world champion perform in the main bout of a show at Motor Square Garden on the night of the first world series game here. Matchmaker Johnny Ray had closed for the appearance of Joe Dundee of Baltimore, the welterweight titleholder, against Cuddy DeMarco, but the contest fell through when it developed that DeMarco might have some difficulty coming in overweight so the title would not be at stake. This would have been a good "natural" match, since DeMarco defeated Jack Zivic in his last appearance at Motor Square Garden and fought a tough battle with Dundee in Baltimore before Joe became champion.

Before the fans are turned against Jack Dempsey by the squawking from his camp over the alleged raw deal handed him in the Tunney fight, let us hasten to set them straight. The complaining isn't coming from Dempsey himself. It is the handiwork of his manager, Leo, P. Flynn, and, unless Jack listens to good advice soon and pipes down Leo, irreparable harm is likely to be done to Dempsey's reputation. Whatever else may be said of Jack, he never was a squawker.

TILDEN AND JOHNSON WIN TENNIS MATCHES

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—(UP.)—Handling their opponents with ease in the singles matches, William T. Tilden and Wallace Johnson, representing the middle states, defeated George Lott, Jr., and John Hennessey of the midwest for the national intersectional championship yesterday.

Lott and Hennessey, representing the young generation in tennis as opposed to the veterans, were victors in the doubles, 11-9, 6-4, 4-6, 7-5.

Tilden won his match from Lott 6-2, 6-1, 6-1. Johnson defeated Hennessey 6-0, 6-1, 6-1.

DAYTON ELEVEN BOASTS TALLEST GRID CENTER

DAYTON, O., Sept. 26.—When the University of Dayton Flyers open their 1927 football campaign next Saturday against Findlay College, the tallest and heaviest center in Ohio will be found in the starting lineup.

He is Theodore (Shorty) Sharpenter of Chicago. Shorty is a young giant. He stands six feet six inches in his socks and weighs in just a shade short of 200 pounds.

This is Shorty's senior year at Dayton. He has already made two letters in football, two in basketball and one in baseball, since coming to the university from St. Mel's High in the Windy City. He plays center in basketball and pitches on the varsity nine.

His great stature and remarkable agility aid him in breaking through and blocking the opposition's punts. Four Dayton touchdowns last season were a direct result of Shorty's head or chest meeting the oval after a seemingly good boot had been gotten off.

Tunney Not Dead—Yet

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP.)—Baseless rumors as to the death of Gene Tunney have caused many inquiries to newspapers since the Chicago fight. After Jack Dempsey knocked out Jack Sharkey there were rumors that Sharkey was dead. Tunney came through the fight without injury.

SOUDERS ENTERS CAR IN GRAND PRIX RACE

and according to one or two players with whom I chatted, the players have been affected the same way. It will take some time to get used to this phase of the new rules.

The lateral pass was not much in evidence, partly because few teams felt like opening up in the first game and partly because coaches are not yet certain just how to construct their attacks around the play.

There were no upsets to speak of Saturday, unless you count the Franklin and Marshall-Pennsylvania game. F. & M. caused the Blue and Gold supporters many an uneasy moment in holding the Philadelphians to eight points, all of which were scored in the first period. But again, remember that it was the first game.

Pitt showed power in walloping Tommy Holleran's Thielians, an eleven that was only outweighed by a very few pounds. The Golden Panthers, with the lightest team of recent years, gave a fine exhibition of line play and showed a galaxy of fine backs, Captain Welch, Dickie Booth, Paul Fisher and Charlie Edwards and Walter Hoban stood out prominently in the attack and on the defense.

WESTMINSTER GOOD

Carnegie Tech found a tartar in Westminster, but punched across 25 points on four touchdowns and one goal after touchdown. The Westminster team was well drilled and for all its lack of weight and experience, gave indication of possessing potential powers that will eventually cause some team in its class serious trouble.

Howard Harpster looms as the main cog in the Tech machine. A little redhead, Kenndy by name, ran the ends in fine fashion, but then, he wasn't running against big time ends and will hardly gallop with such abandon against Guarino, DeMoise, Herold or the Mountaineer and New York U. wingmen.

W. & J. was fairly hard pressed by Waynesburg, that must have a tough outfit. It is hard to tell much about any team ... the opener, and doubly hard to get a line on W. & J. More will be known after the Western Maryland affair next Saturday.

Bethany assimilated a neat thrashing at the hands of Fordham, and Penn State found Lebanon Valley no setup. The Dubious Dukes of Duquesne held St. Bonaventure to 13-0, without Velar or Donelli, last year's stars, in the lineup.

RICHARDS COPS FIRST PRO NET TITLE

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Vincent Richards is in possession of the first professional singles tennis championship the United States has known. The former Davis cup player yesterday defeated Howard Kinsey of California, 11-9, 6-4, 6-2, to gain a first leg on the League Vue trophy, offered to the winner by R. A. Gushey, and to take off $1,000 prize money.

Richards was slow getting started, but after he had rounded into form he showed all the greatness he knew two years ago as an amateur.

For a time Kinsey hammered Richards' backhand with success, but starting with the second set the New York star found himself and never was pressed when he needed points.

Richards reached the final of the tournament by defeating Charles Wood of Fairview, 6-0, 6-1, 6-2. Kinsey eliminated Paul Heston, Washington star, in the semi-final, 6-0, 6-4, 6-3. Kinsey drew $709 for finishing second.

days of rest. Root failed to hold the Bushwhackers in check. The Buccos could not get a man over the pan until the third, but once they made the distance they repeated often.

GRANTHAM GETS HOMER

George Grantham caused a big scene in the park when he cracked a homer into the right field bleachers. George's furious liner hit the ground in front of the screen and took a perfect hop into the seats.

Pooch Barnhart was back in action in both games. Barnhart started the runmaking in the third with a double to left that tallied Lloyd Waner, who had opened the round with a single. The Cubs scored their lone tally off Kremer in the same inning. Beck's double, Root's sacrifice and Adams' single turning the trick.

With Percy Jones in action in the sixth, Barnhart, P. Waner and Wright hooked up three hits for the last run of the contest.

John Miljus is the slab choice for today. Art Nehf may oppose the Buccos.

Pitcher Lee Meadows joined the Pirates here this morning to remain with the club for the rest of the Western trip. Meadows stayed over in Pittsburgh Sunday to receive final treatment at the Allegheny General Hospital for sinus trouble.

Stock Gains Outrun Business, Figures Astonish Observers.

By B. C. FORBES

HAVE stock quotations lately outrun business?

An analysis of business conditions and stock market prices answers "yes."

Whether the decline in money rates warrants advances ranging from 20 to 176 points in stock prices each individual must answer for himself. In my opinion it does not.

FOR today's column, compilations have been made showing how much representative industrial, railway and utility shares have risen from their levels of exactly a year ago. The figures will astonish those who have not followed the market's movement closely.

The 20 industrial issues used show an average jump of close to 66 points. The 10 rails have gained fully 31 points. Eight utilities have moved up an average of fully 37 points.

Stock exchange averages, based on 25 leading rail and 25 industrial issues, reveal that the industrials today are 70 points above their low market of January and that the rails are up 20 points since then.

LOOK how these industrial issues stood on Saturday as compared with exactly a year ago:

WHAT has been happening outside? Let us make comparisons with a year ago.

Call money then ranged from 5 to 5½ per cent against today's charge of 4 per cent, and time loans were 5 to 5¼ per cent against 4 to 4⅛ per cent now. The rediscount rate was 4 per cent; now 3½ per cent.

But brokers' loans have expanded fully $520,000,000, to a high record of $3,282,000,000, an increase of almost 20 per cent.

Turning to other considerations we find, among the sobering facts, the following:

Employment is down 3½ per cent. The steel industry is operating at 65 per cent against 85 per cent a year ago. The prostrate condition of the oil industry needs no emphasis. The soft coal industyr has had a strike on its hands for months. August automobile production fell 28 per cent below last August. Our August foreign trade balance shrank to $4,000,000, an extraordinarily poor showing. Railway car loadings are every week running materially below a year ago and profits also now make unfavorable comparisons. The general price level is lower than it was then and last month's moderate recovery is not holding.

Of course, various favorable comparisons could be made. But it may prove more useful to present the foregoing than to fan further daring speculation in Wall Street.

STOCKS REACT AFTER EARLY ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP.)—Stock prices turned reactionary after an early display of strength today. Selling was believed to have been impaired largely by fears of a huge increase in brokers' loans this week as a result of the conversion of General Motors stocks. Banks called about $10,000,000 in loans during the morning but call money appeared to be in plentiful supply around the renewal figure of 4 per cent.

Outside the stock market, chief interest centered in the sharp rise of $3.50 a bale in cotton on reports of unfavorable crop weather in the Southwest.

Strength and activity of the public utilities, a dozen of which attained new peak prices, featured the early trading. Moderate gains also were recorded in a number of mercantile, food, oil, tobacco and motor shares.

Renewal of selling pressure against the steel shares reflected disappointment over the failure of the expected fall pick-up in demand and operations to materialize. "Bear" traders launched another offensive against some of the specialties, breaking New York Air Brake 5 points on the publication of a poor semi-annual earnings report, and bringing about a similar decline in Houston Oil in the early afternoon.

Such recent favorites as Texas Gulf Sulphur, American Smelting, Kelly-Springfield 8 per cent preferred, Goodrich Rubber, General Electric and Commercial Solvents also sagged 2 points or more under the weight of selling for both accounts. Trading was not very active, however, on the decline, indicating the absence of any large volume of forced liquidation at these levels.

Zinc Stocks Increase.

The American Zinc Institute reports stocks of slab zinc on September 15 amounted to 36,114 short tons, an increase of 1,527 tons on September 1. Production for the first half of the month was 24,044 short tons, and shipments 22,507 tons, of which 21,145 tons were domestic. Metal sold, but not yet delivered by September 15, was 19,202 tons. Total retort capacity was 131,494 tons.

Santa Fe Earnings Drop.

Sharp declines in August earnings compared with a year ago are reported by the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway, gross dropping to $21,720,985, from $23,444,454 and net operating income to $5,070,420 from $6,407,743. Net operating income for the first eight months this year fell to $40,408,479 from $35,862,743 in the same period of 1926.

Crude Production Gains.

Daily crude oil production in California last week averaged 648,300 barrels, an increase of 2,000 barrels daily over the week before.

Great Northern Net Declines.

August net operating income of the Great Northern declined to $3,024,479 from $3,731,402 in August, last year, and for the eight months of 1927 to $12,417,701 from $13,727,306 in the same period of 1926.

Ford Increases Force.

The Ford Motor Company has added 4,000 workers to its plants in the last 10 days, the total exceeding 62,800.

Drake Named Director.

J. Frank Drake, president of the Standard Steel Car Company, has been elected a director of the American Rolling Mill Company, to succeed S. M. Goodman, resigned. The Forged Steel Wheel Company, which is controlled by the Standard Steel Car, owned property at Butler, Pa., and Elyria, O., purchased by the American Rolling Mill Company.

Hogs and Corn.

The relationship Wall street sees between hogs and corn in the fiscal year of packing companies ending next month indicates less favorable earnings generally despite larger sales. The outlook for 1928 is considered good. The "hog run," said to be a corollary of the corn situation, was an important factor in packing house operations this year. Hogs consume about 40 per cent of corn intended for domestic and foreign consumption, experts say, and when the price of hogs per 100 pounds falls below ten times the price of a bushel of corn, hog producers ship stock to market, bringing about a surplus condition as far as packers are concerned. To keep inventories low, packers must dispose of pork cuts and products at prices which reduce, if not eliminate, their margin of profit.

Satterlee Resigns.

Ernest K. Satterlee has resigned as president of the Franklin Savings Bank. He will return to the field of commercial banking in which he was formerly active.

N. Y. Air Brake Net Drops.

Net income of New York Air Brake Company for the first half of 1927 dropped to $445,463, after charges and federal taxes, from $1,236,087 in the first half of 1926. This is equal to $1.48 a share on 300,000 no par shares, against $5.32 a share on 200,000 common shares, after dividend requirements on class "A" stock called for redemption on July 1, 1926.

Marquette Earnings Higher.

The Pere Marquette had a better August than a year ago, surplus rising to $1,079,490 after charges, from $976,987. Gross revenues were $4,549,213 against $4,281,570. Surplus for the eight months of 1927 was $4,744,394 against $4,644,912 in the same period of 1926.

August Earnings of Lehigh.

August earnings of the Lehigh Valley fell below those of August, 1926, net operating income of $1,385,434 comparing with $1,700,000, and for the eight months this year, $8,445,172 in contrast to $8,995,362 in the same period of 1926.

P. R. R. Yield Over Five Per Cent.

Pennsylvania has displayed some strength along with other rails in recent trading. Banking opinion does not support reports of an early increase in the dividend rate though the company for the third successive year should earn well toward double the present dividend. A more likely development next year is considered to be a stock allotment should financing be done and should a better position for the stock be sustained. Pennsylvania has been behind the market and still yields over 5 per cent.

Burlington's Traffic.

The Burlington handled 112,487 revenue freight cars in first 21 days of September, against 117,362 in similar period of 1926.

Goodrich Rubber.

Recent buying of Goodrich by banking interests active in General Motors' affairs has been based on the belief that Goodrich is selling out of line on an earning basis. General Motors' new stock, which is expected to earn about $12.50 to $14 a share this year, is selling about 30 points higher than Goodrich, which will earn from $16 to $18 a share. Like General Motors, Goodrich is in line for an extra dividend at the end of the year.

Radio Corporation.

Long-pull accumulation of Radio Corporation has been stimulated by the fact the company is emerging from the summer slump in the industry, and is now entering its biggest selling season. Department of Commerce figures show that less than one-tenth of the people who could connect with broadcasting programs have radio receiving sets. There are 18,000,000 sets in use, with an estimated market for 200,000,000. Radio's earnings are expected to improve as a result of a new Beam Radio wireless. This will enable the sending of messages at 200 words a minute, as compared with 18 under present methods. This should reduce the cost of transoceanic messages and stimulate a larger use of this method of communication.

Old Air Brake Off List.

The Stock Exchange has stricken from its list the old capital stock of $50 par value of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company. The old issue has been supplanted by the new no-par shares, which were given in exchange on a four-for-one basis.

Anthracite production was estimated at 1,193,000 net tons, or 173,000 tons less than the preceding week. Beehive coke output was placed at 141,000 net tons, or 11,000 tons less than the week before.

Youngstown Operations.

Of 127 sheet mills in the Mahoning Valley, 82 units are under power, compared with a recent low of 66. Tin plate production has improved with the independents at 80 per cent and Steel Corporation subsidiaries at 85 per cent. Twelve pipe mills are under power against 11 recently. New York Air Brake Earnings.

New York Airbrake Company reports for six months ended June 30 net income of $445,463 after charges and taxes, compared with net income of $1,236,087 in the same period in 1926. First half net income is equal to $1.48 a share on 300,000 common shares issued, against $4.32 a share on 231,600 Class A and common shares issued in the 1926 period.

Cotton Contracts Square.

Higher Liverpool cables and prediction of frost in the Panhandle attracted commission house buying at the opening of the cotton market and prices were up 17 to 32 points at the start. Private forecasts pointed to cold, rainy weather in the South, with possible frosts in the Panhandle. The market advanced further in the early trading when the official forecast was posted, calling for freezing weather in Northwest Oklahoma and the Panhandle. Buying by the trade and speculative interests developed and contracts seem relatively scarce.

Advices and Averages.

For weeks New York brokers have been advising caution, based on the well-known principle that what goes up must come down. But the same cautious tone can be found in the market letters of a year ago when the average of Dow-Jones 20 standard rail stocks was $121.44 (now $139.21); and the 20 Dow-Jones industrials averaged $159.27 (now $194.51). "It costs nothing to guess," says one close observer, "and the guessing proceeds at the rate of something more than 2,000,000 shares a day, worth $150,000,000."

Bear Raids Ineffectual.

The bears have been making one raid a week on the stock market, but to no great effect. Last week they made it on Thursday when many operators were away in Chicago at the fight. The week before they made it on Monday, when call money, nowadays 4 per cent, temporarily went to 5 per cent. On Thursday, among the 15 leaders, they caused declines ranging from ¾ in American Can to 4⅞ in Mid-Continent Petroleum. By Saturday General Motors had recovered twice the ground lost on Thursday, while all the other leaders had rebounded to Thursday's level, excepting only Mid-Continent Petroleum, whose depression was due to passing its dividend.

Money Market Quiet.

The New York money market was quiet today with a fair supply of funds offered and a light demand at the 4 per cent call rate. The tone was steady. About $2,000,000 in loans was called at the outset, but this was only normal. Time funds were dull but steady at unchanged quotations of 4@4¼ per cent for 60 days, 4¼@4½ per cent for 90 days and 4¼@4½ per cent for four, five and six months.

On the assumption Union Pacific took up its rights to subscribe to additional shares of New York Central stock, it is figured it will own almost 252,000 shares of Central by November 1. For every 100 shares of Union Pacific, therefore, the latter will have 11.2 shares of New York Central. Any move in the latter might result in a sympathetic advance in Union Pacific.

ARKANSAS GAS YIELDS UNDER MILD SELLING PRESSURE

Lone Star Gas Active In Local Market

A rather sharp set-back in Arkansas Gas marked the early transactions on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, the stock selling off quickly from 7¾ to 7⅜ on volume aggregating several hundred shares. Traders interpreted the recession as indicating a possible abandonment of negotiations in connection with the reported deal to dispose of the Arkansas Gas properties to a subsidiary of the Cities Service organization.

Discussion of this supposed deal several weeks ago raised Arkansas to a figure above $8 a share and brought the most active trading of the year into the stock. Officials of the company remained silent, however, and the Street attitude toward the stock has been growing cooler right along.

In other directions the local market was moderately active, but price changes were narrow. The new Westinghouse Airbrake came into the trading at 48⅝, with a few odd lots changing hands at that figure, later selling off fractionally. Price in New York was about the same as here. Pittsburgh Plate Glass firm at 228.

Lone Star Gas developed noticeable activity with the stock pointing upward, but no pronounced strength making its appearance. Lone Star is another local fuel issue said to be involved in merger negotiations. According to stories in Fourth avenue, Standard of New York is interested and may turn up as the buyer of the Lone Star properties. There was active buying of the stock on the New York Curb today with the price holding fractionally above the local quotations.

Trading in the miscellaneous stocks was scattered and of small proportion. Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt held at 55 most of the session on small lot transactions, while Blaw Knox Steel was handled at 95, unchanged from the level prevailing at the close of last week.

TAPLIN RECITAL OPENS I. C. C. RAIL HEARING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Frank E. Taplin, president of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway, told the Interstate Commerce Commission today that his road's proposed construction of a line from Cochran's Mills, Pa., to Connellsville, Pa., was necessary to establish through freight traffic on the Wabash, Wheeling and Lake Erie, Pittsburgh and West Virginia and Western Maryland lines from Toledo to Baltimore and points in tidewater Virginia.

Opening a hearing before Examiner Burnside, Taplin said his road has been unsuccessfully trying for many years to get through freight rates. This failed when the New York Central declined to co-operate. The New York Central, he said, was afraid of short haul competition.

Attorneys for the Baltimore and Ohio, Nickel Plate, Pennsylvania and Wheeling and Lake Erie filed intervening briefs in opposition. The Nickel Plate briefs denied Taplin's assertion that the through rate was necessary and that new territory along the proposed line would be developed through the project.

The proposed line would connect with the Western Maryland road at Connellsville.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 17 to 23 points on buying stimulated by relatively firm Liverpool cables and reports of very unfavorable weather northwest of the cotton belt with predictions that it would work down into the South. The official forecast for probable freezing temperatures in the northwestern portion of Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle, naturally contributed to nervousness over the weather outlook, and active months sold about 33 to 34 points net higher, before the end of the first hour, December advancing to 20.23 and March to 21.50. Some liquidation of October in preparation for probable notices tomorrow was absorbed at the recently prevailing discount of 25 points under December.

The early advance met considerable realizing, but it was absorbed on setbacks of 10 or 12 points and the market firmed up again toward midday on the detailed weather reports showing cold rains in the Southwest. December advanced to 21.40 and March to 21.66, or about 65 to 70 points above yesterday's closing quotations.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The raw sugar market was unchanged early today, with a sale of 30,000 bags of Cuban for prompt shipment to a local refiner at 4.90 duty paid. A little Cuban and European selling gave the raw sugar futures market an easier tone at the opening and first prices were unchanged to 2 points lower. Offerings were absorbed on this slight setback, however, and partial rallies followed on covering and commission house buying, with the market at midday about net unchanged. The volume of business, however, was small, with the trade in general inclined to limit operations and await developments in Cuba relative to the proposed restriction plan, which is expected to come up for discussion about October 3. The refined market was unchanged at 5.90@6.10 for fine granulated. Withdrawals for over the week-end were fairly liberal, but new business continued of small proportions.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP.)—The bond market today entered the new week little changed from the quiet affair which it had become toward the close of last week. Chief interest centered in reports from Washington that the federal government did not look kindly upon the proposed loan of $30,000,000 to Prussia by a New York banking group. This offering was expected tomorrow.

Renewed discussion of a unification of New York traction lines drew attention to liens of the Interborough and Brooklyn-Manhattan transit systems, but price changes were narrow. Other public utilities maintained their recent firm trend, but offerings were scarce.

Erie refunding 5s and Missouri Pacific 5s were the most active of the high-grade rail liens, both selling within fractions of their peak prices for the year. Erie "D" 4s were in demand and moved up a point to around 122.

Irregularity characterized the foreign group. Some of the Mexican issues, which were bought at sharply rising prices last week, lost part of their gains. German issues were little affected by the reported opposition to the new Prussian loan.

United States government securities were quiet at steady prices.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

MEN'S DOLLAR SHIRTS GONE FOREVER

By EDWARD M. RUTTENBER,
Universal Service Fashion Expert.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The startling evolutions of the cotton market, in which the latest development was a statement by the bureau of agriculture to the effect that prices would decline within the next few months, has resulted in a spirited discussion of the prices of finished products.

Shirt manufacturers anticipated the return of the old "dollar shirt," that friend of the family man so long missed from the retail market, but recent developments have placed this standby in the discard for all time. Despite government reports of lower prices, the cotton men contend that prices will soar on the cheaper grades of cotton. While the higher priced products will remain at the same prices now prevailing there will be a gradual stiffening of quotations on the less expensive goods.

On high-priced shirts there has always been a liberal mark-up, but early reports to the effect that there would be a low cotton market led many manufacturers to plunge on the production of the inexpensive numbers. Shirts that have retailed in New York around $1.50 probably will sell around $2 in the future, the result to some extent of a liberal profit-taking all along the line. Allowing for slight increases in the cotton prices, it is anticipated that the various factors concerned in the traffic will add a little here and there until the final price represents quite a stiff mark-up.

In their apparel today women use very little cotton. The tendency is all toward silk in frocks, lingerie and stockings and the men are probably doing more to support the cotton market than the feminine sex. Shirts, underwear and stockings for men absorb a great deal of cotton, and if it were not for this support the cotton men would be in a rather precarious predicament.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—Unfavorable weather conditions over the corn belt threatening widespread serious crop damage led to a rapid early jump in corn values today. Wheat tended downward, affected by lower Liverpool quotations than were looked for. Starting 1¼c to 3⅛c up, the corn market continued to show strength. Wheat opened unchanged to ⅜c off and subsequently underwent setbacks all around. Oats were firm. Provisions tended to advance.

At noon corn was ⅛c to ⅝c net higher, and wheat 1⅛ to 1⅝c down.

With temperatures today 30 to 40 degrees colder in the west and northwest than Saturday and with snow, sleet and heavy rains reported, corn traders took quickly today to the buying side. Field advices at hand represented that the prevailing outlook for storms and frost was almost exactly the reverse of corn crop needs, about ten days of warm dry weather being urgently required throughout a large section of corn territory.

Relative weakness of the Liverpool wheat market acting as a bear factor in Chicago today was ascribed largely to general rains in Argentina. Better prospects for threshing in Canada were also noted, and fair selling here was credited to the northwest. Besides, the amount of wheat on ocean passage was shown to be larger both as compared with last week and a year ago.

3 HELD IN FATAL ELECTION CLASH

James Popello was recommended held for the grand jury on a charge of murder today by a coroner's jury probing the death of John E. Rohan, 19, 2723 Orpwood street, shot and fatally wounded in an election battle at Fifth and Oakland avenues September 18.

The jury recommended Alex Alpern and Irvine Schwartz be held as accessories after the fact.

The shooting occurred after a machine in which Rohan was riding had collided with another machine, alleged to have been driven by Alpern. Joseph Ridge, 157 Atwood street, a passenger in the Rohan machine, identified Popello as the man who fired the shot. Francis Cunningham, 20, of 3132 Parkview avenue, another passenger in the Rohan car, also identified Alpern as the driver of the other machine.

Pilot Cheats Death As Plane Part Breaks

Smashing the stabilizer mechanism on "The Pride of Pittsburgh," Mayer Aircraft Corporation's new Ryan passenger monoplane, while taking off at Bridgeville with four passengers yesterday afternoon, Pilot Jack Smith, who brought the ship across the continent from San Diego a short time ago, flew to Bettis Field, McKeesport, holding the stick with his feet and made a perfect landing at a speed of nearly 70 miles an hour.

Four passengers in the ship were not aware that anything unusual was happening en route and after a delay of about an hour, while the damage was repaired, they made the return to Bridgeville.

Smith said today it was a difficult matter to keep the ship in the air. He said the stabilizer is regulated according to the load and while taking off yesterday the slide rod was bent.

"I had to keep the stick shoved as far ahead as possible," Smith declared. "I put my feet against it and held it in place and headed for Bettis Field. It would have been impossible to land at Bridgeville, because I had to keep the plane going at half throttle, or it would have crashed."

Bettis Field is situated on the top of a hill and a plane can fly almost directly onto it instead of having to point the nose down and glide.

Death's Hand Fails To Part Faithful Pair

Death, striking in the night, failed to separate Rees Williams, 78, of 2539 Fifth avenue, from the wife who had cared for him during almost 20 years of invalidism, for Mrs. Catherine Williams, the wife, died about an hour after her husband's death was discovered early Sunday morning.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Williams were born in Swansea, Wales, where they played together as children. They were married in 1869 and a few years later, accompanied by their children, they came to America.

That was 50 years ago. The family came to Pittsburgh where Mr. Williams, a stone contractor, erected their home, the place in which they have lived since. Twenty years ago the husband became an invalid and since then his wife has faithfully cared for him.

Both were members of the Welsh Presbyterian Church. Mr. Williams belonged to Guyasuta Lodge F. & A. M. They leave four daughters, the Misses Katherine and Jeannette Williams, Mrs. Emily Simpkiss and Mrs. Mary Heleman, all of Pittsburgh; a son, W. Osborne Williams, of Los Angeles, Cal., and a grandchild.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP.)—Pronounced broadening of trading ushered in the new week on the curb exchange today. Many issues moved up from 2 to over 8 points, but there was an important exception to the general advance in the action of Royal Baking Powder. That stock, which recently sold as high as 339 but started on a reaction on positive statements that it had no special plans for a readjustment of capitalization or other unusual steps, was unsettled from the opening by the more definite statements by the controlling interest that there was nothing in view that could be used with a loss of 20 points at 275 and had a further break to 263.

The market in many other stocks and groups was of so vigorous a buying character as to cause confidence in the position of leading stocks, especially in the Utility and Petroleum groups. Other issues, however, at times were subjected to pressure, several sustaining losses when a majority of stocks advanced.

Ford Motor of Canada dropped 15 points to 500. Johns-Manville declined after an advance of over a point and United Gas and Improvement yielded over a point.

Celanese rose 5 points and then reacted over two points. U. S. Freight advanced 4½ points, making a new high record at 108¾. Lackawana securities moved up 2 points in the early yielding.

American Super-Power issues both sold at new high records on early advances. There was heavy trading at advancing prices in Electric Bond and Share and Electric Investors.

Canadian stocks were features in the oil group. Imperial Oil of Canada moved up 2 points and Humble Oil also made a gain of about 2 points. Prairie Pipe Line rose over a point.

MONEY FOR YOU

Here's An Amazing Opportunity, Here Is the Key to a Good Position, An Extra Pay Check Every Week, Whether Employed or Unemployed. Read Carefully and Investigate. You Can't Afford to Pass Up the Greatest Opportunity in Pittsburgh Today, So Make Up Your Mind to Answer This Ad.
BUT THIS OPPORTUNITY WILL NOT LAST LONG.

$35 TO $75 WEEKLY

Don't "grope in the dark," dreaming of extra money. You don't have to "pound the pavements" or go off on a "wild goose chase." Every ambitious person in the City of Pittsburgh would be amazed and glad to avail himself of this opportunity if he could know the facts. YOU DON'T NEED EXPERIENCE AND YOU WON'T BE ASKED TO SELL ANYTHING. Briefly, the city's new administrative and expansion has made it necessary for us to open an entirely new department and has created an opportunity unparalleled for people desiring EXTRA WEEKLY INCOME. Work WILL NOT CONFLICT WITH PRESENT EMPLOYMENT. No SELLING. No schooling. No Red Tape.

These positions can be filled during spare hours (during day or evening) of mechanics, tradesmen, clerks, professional men and business men. Full time positions can be arranged for those desiring permanent work. ABSOLUTELY NO EXPERIENCE REQUIRED; FINANCIAL CO-OPERATION GIVEN from the start. You should earn NOT LESS than $44.00 PER WEEK from the moment your name is placed upon the company's roll. Of the scores of happy workers recently employed, very few earn less than $50 per week and are working but one hour per day. Positions (part time or permanent) are EXTREMELY SIMPLE in pleasant surroundings and most congenial atmosphere.

Do not confuse this ad with another of similar wording, for YOU WILL NOT BE ASKED TO SELL ANYTHING AND YOU CAN EARN FROM THE MOMENT YOU START.

This is REAL. This is GENUINE. Here is an opportunity to earn a REAL BANK ACCOUNT during the summer months. The work is extremely simple and can be done by anyone of ordinary intelligence and we will make you understand and know you can do the work before we ask you to start.

You must understand this is an unusual opportunity. Come and get the facts. We require white applicants over 25 years of age AND EVERYONE will be given utmost consideration.

This ad will appear until TUESDAY EVENING and none will be considered after 8:30 O'CLOCK Tuesday evening. Make up your mind NOW to answer on time. NO APPLICANTS RECEIVED AT ANY OTHER HOUR.

Last Call. Apply Paymaster.

APPLY TUESDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 27TH at 8:30 O'CLOCK, SUITE 601 CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BUILDING, SEVENTH AVENUE AND SMITHFIELD STREET.

Notice! Remember this is an entirely new department and here is your opportunity to get a position in it. Scores of new applicants have been given employment during the evenings or after business hours, and even the office boy earns $35 per week. Many of our employes who are unemployed otherwise during the daytime have bought new cars and have opened new bank accounts as a result of this wonderful extra income opportunity. You can answer other ads every day of the week, but—remember you can only answer this ad Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock.

YOU SIMPLY CAN'T AFFORD TO MISS IT. Knowing how and why means EXTRA MONEY. Now if you really desire to open a REAL BANK ACCOUNT, DON'T MISS THIS. Do not answer this ad unless you are really sincere and anxious to earn an extra income. We will receive no applicants after 8:30 o'clock Tuesday evening, so make up your mind to answer on time. REGARDLESS OF PRESENT EMPLOYMENT, EVERYONE WILL BE GIVEN FULLEST CONSIDERATION AT ABOVE TIME AND REMEMBER THE PLACE.

APPLY TUESDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 27TH at 8:30 O'CLOCK, SUITE 601 CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BUILDING, SEVENTH AVENUE and SMITHFIELD STREET.

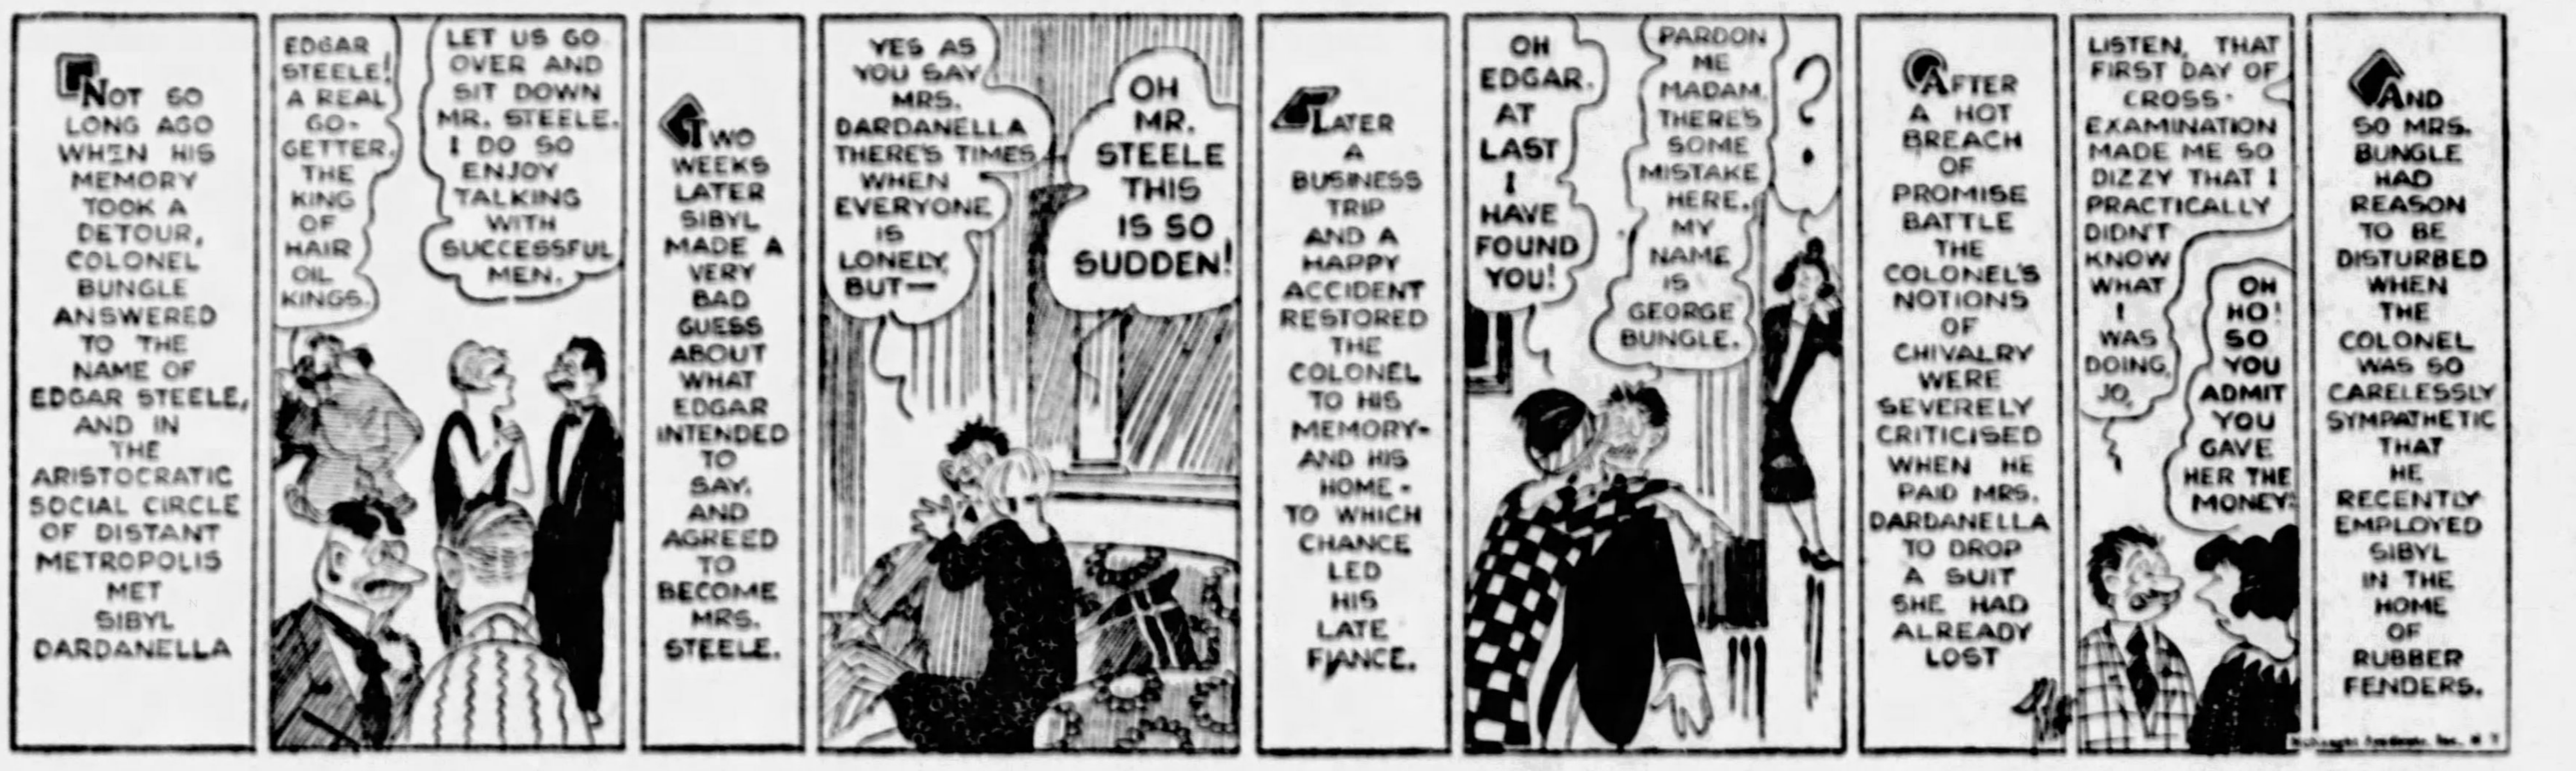
THE BUNGLE FAMILY . . . . Ah, Those Were the Days!



NOT SO LONG AGO WHEN HIS MEMORY TOOK A DETOUR, COLONEL BUNGLE ANSWERED TO THE NAME OF EDGAR STEELE, AND IN THE ARISTOCRATIC SOCIAL CIRCLE OF DISTANT METROPOLIS MET SIBYL DARDANELLA
EDGAR STEELE! A REAL GO-GETTER. THE KING OF HAIR OIL KINGS.
LET US GO OVER AND SIT DOWN MR. STEELE. I DO SO ENJOY TALKING WITH SUCCESSFUL MEN.
TWO WEEKS LATER SIBYL MADE A VERY BAD GUESS ABOUT WHAT EDGAR INTENDED TO SAY, AND AGREED TO BECOME MRS. STEELE.
YES AS YOU SAY MRS. DARDANELLA THERE'S TIMES WHEN EVERYONE IS LONELY, BUT—OH MR. STEELE THIS IS SO SUDDEN!
LATER A BUSINESS TRIP AND A HAPPY ACCIDENT RESTORED THE COLONEL TO HIS MEMORY—AND HIS HOME—TO WHICH CHANCE LED HIS LATE FIANCE.
OH EDGAR. AT LAST I HAVE FOUND YOU!
PARDON ME MADAM, THERE'S SOME MISTAKE HERE. MY NAME IS GEORGE BUNGLE.
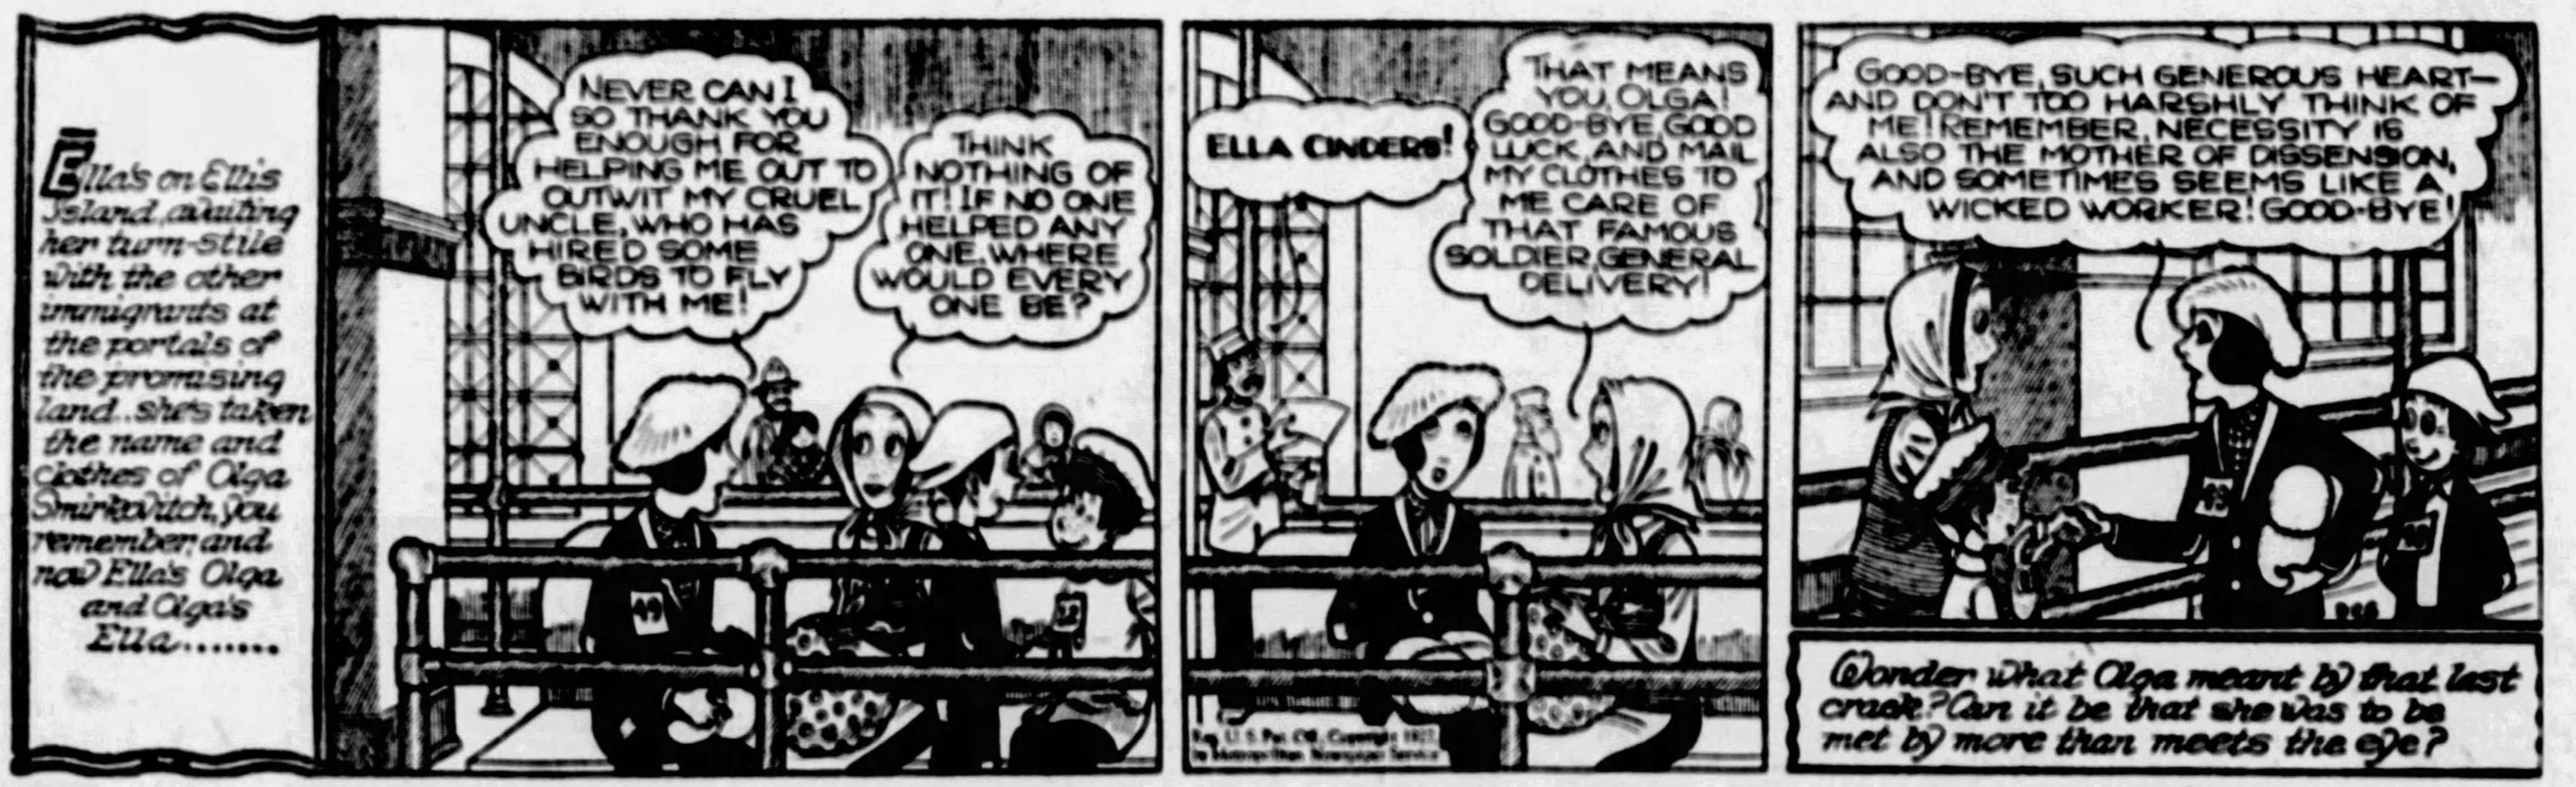
AFTER A HOT BREACH OF PROMISE BATTLE THE COLONEL'S NOTIONS OF CHIVALRY WERE SEVERELY CRITICISED WHEN HE PAID MRS. DARDANELLA TO DROP A SUIT SHE HAD ALREADY LOST
LISTEN, THAT FIRST DAY OF CROSS-EXAMINATION MADE ME SO DIZZY THAT I PRACTICALLY DIDN'T KNOW WHAT I WAS DOING, JO.
OH HO! SO YOU ADMIT YOU GAVE HER THE MONEY!
AND SO MRS. BUNGLE HAD REASON TO BE DISTURBED WHEN THE COLONEL WAS SO CARELESSLY SYMPATHETIC THAT HE RECENTLY EMPLOYED SIBYL IN THE HOME OF RUBBER FENDERS.

ELLA CINDERS . . . . Farewell to Olga



Ella's on Ellis Island, awaiting her turn-stile with the other immigrants at the portals of the promising land.. she's taken the name and clothes of Olga Smirkovitch, you remember, and now Ella's Olga and Olga's Ella.......
NEVER CAN I SO THANK YOU ENOUGH FOR HELPING ME OUT TO OUTWIT MY CRUEL UNCLE, WHO HAS HIRED SOME BIRDS TO FLY WITH ME!
THINK NOTHING OF IT! IF NO ONE HELPED ANY ONE, WHERE WOULD EVERY ONE BE?
ELLA CINDERS!
THAT MEANS YOU, OLGA! GOOD-BYE, GOOD LUCK, AND MAIL MY CLOTHES TO ME CARE OF THAT FAMOUS SOLDIER, GENERAL DELIVERY!
GOOD-BYE, SUCH GENEROUS HEART—AND DON'T TOO HARSHLY THINK OF ME! REMEMBER, NECESSITY IS ALSO THE MOTHER OF DISSENSION, AND SOMETIMES SEEMS LIKE A WICKED WORKER! GOOD-BYE!
Wonder what Olga meant by that last crack? Can it be that she was to be met by more than meets the eye?

Prince of Wales says he wants to learn what sincere Americans are thinking about . . how they talk . . . . and live. Very well.

Let the prince subscribe to the Lamar, Mo., Democrat, where he will find items like this—

"The boys have been standing about the past two weeks watching the new front go into Will Hake's jewelry store. It's all done now, but they will stop and look. It's certainly a front worth stopping to look over. The front is painted a snow-white and shaded from the sun with a brand new artistically striped awning.

"At the right side of the east window is built in a clock, so as you look in at the beautiful display with its setting of polished hardwood, you observe the correct time.

"From now on Hake's front and Hake's windows will form a show place for the public square.

"These windows, the whole front fairly slap you, and say, Beautiful things in here! And when you go in you find that's the truth."

Prohibition is responsible for much of America's prosperity. In fact, a $2,400 dry agent can save about $30,000 a year.

It must be discouraging for the Manager of a theatre, after spending $250,000 for a perfect cooling system, to pick up the paper and read—

"More than 15,000 people crowded the heater on the opening day of Greater Movie Season."

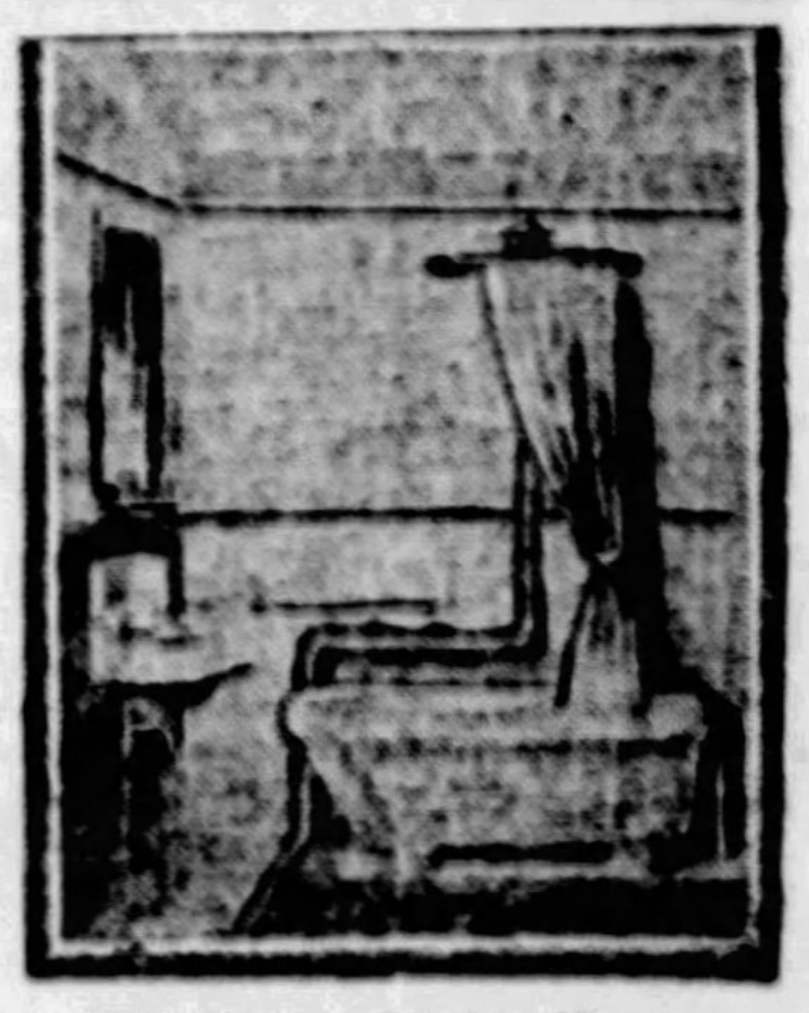
Moronia went to Atlantic City for her vacation and says she was shocked at the sign which, she thinks, was hanging in a grill here:

TAKE A CHICKEN HOME TO YOUR WIFE

MAURINE LISPS 'NO' TO DECEMBER-MAY ROMANCE



There Was a Deathly Silence.

The Baron was "lost in pained surprise" when Maurine forced her "trembling lips to say him nay."

"Dear friend," cried Maurine,
"dear generous friend, forgive
A troubled woman's weakness!
As I live,
In truth I meant to answer otherwise.
From out its store my heart can give naught
But honor and respect; and yet me-thought
I would give willing answer, did you sue.

"But now I know 't were cruel wrong I planned;
Taking a heart that beats with love most true
And giving in exchange an empty hand.
Who weds for love alone may not be wise;
Who weds without it, angels must despise.

"Love and respect together must combine
To render marriage holy and divine;
And lack of either, sure as fate, destroys
Continuation of nuptial joys,
And brings regret and gloomy discontent,
To put to rout each tender sentiment.
Nay, nay! I will not burden all your life
By that possession—an unloving wife."

The poor old Baron sniffled and kept trying to adjust his cuffs which, by this time, were rolling down the steps. Then he threw back his head, and from his thin lips there came a moan. He held the high note for 30 seconds and suddenly yodeled. Maurine began stamping her foot and clapping time with her hands. In shorter time than it takes to tell it the old Baron had gone into his soft shoe buck and wing dance, all the while crying as though his heart would break.

(This is a review of "Maurine," a poem published in 1901, augmented by copious notes not included in previous editions.)

THIS WAGGISH WORLD

by Roy K. Moulton

A MAN who dresses in style is never noted as being especially natty in his sartorial effects. He is never called a best-dresser. That is for the reason that he wears what every other man is wearing. It takes originality, tact and an immense amount of courage to beard a tailor in his den and force him to make a suit which will be just a trifle different from the first hundred suits that go by on the sidewalk.

When the style says that a man shall wear a fancy band on his hat, ninety-nine men out of a hundred will adopt the fashion, but the hundredth man, who has enough individuality to wear a plain band on his hat, will be called the best-dresser.

The other day we had occasion to go into a large clothing store and buy a suit off the peg. Having recently reduced a matter of thirty-five pounds, we felt an inalienable right to give the tailors the miss in baulk, for once.

"I want a double-breasted blue suit," I said.

I did not know for a moment what had come over the man. He clutched at his heart, sort of gasped, turned white and began looking around on the floor for a clean place to faint.

"What did you say?" he gasped.

"A double-breasted blue suit," we repeated.

He had partially regained his composure by that time and said:

"Why, my dear man, the call for a double-breasted suit comes as a terrible shock. They are entirely out of style. Everybody wears single-breasted coats, don't you know. You would appear ridiculous in a double-breasted garment."

"WHAT everybody else wears I don't want. I drink what everybody else drinks, see the pictures that everybody else sees, walk, ride as everybody else does and also eat what everybody else eats but, by the long horn spoon, I am going to wear something different."

"You will be very conspicuous and out of style, of course; but I think I could get you a double-breasted suit out of old stock."

And he did. You see I had noticed Mayor Walker, President Coolidge, W. K. Vanderbilt, Andrew Mellon, the Prince of Wales and others who are no fools in the wearing of clothes, and had seen them always in double-breasted suits.

So long as you can lick your tailor you can be distinctively dressed. If you let him get the upper hand you will go around looking just like the rest of the gang all your life.

ON "WATCH THESE QUEER MEN."

LOVE and HATE often lie
CLOSE together,
It seems there are SOME men who ALMOST Hate the woman they have Once LOVED,
This is HARD for the Beloved one to GRASP,
MOST women think that
When men SEEK them out
And MARRY them they will LOVE them always and
All ways. And, of course,
Most men MEAN to.
But the searchlight of TIME eventually SHOWS
On them. All men are NOT
As conventional as
The CLOTHES they wear,
Beneath many a FANCY
Waistcoat there lies
A very VAIN heart,
Some men seek always
An IDEAL in love
And MARRIAGE,
Not that they REALLY love
A SUPERIOR woman,
But because they HATE
To give their favors
To INFERIORS.

Marconi's Bride

There IS Dignity in a Long Train

A BEAUTIFUL DRESS

This is the former Countess Maria Cristina Bezzi-Scali, now Madame Guglielmo Marconi, as she appeared in her wedding gown.

The lady is very beautiful, and the gown is unquestionably, as a good many youthful Americans would put it, "SOME wedding gown."

The bride of the great Italian inventor, Marconi, interests everybody, and is a lovely woman to look upon. Thousands of young American girls will be interested in this romantic dress and in the unusually long train.

It certainly lends dignity to a woman, and queens and empresses and the "great" of the world have made it a habit since the most ancient times to wear long, dragging skirts.

In our day, we have learned that while long trains are beautiful and perhaps dignified, they also collect germs and dust, and for life in general, apart from wedding days, we have got rid of them.

However, we have gone a little too far in the other direction, some of us, and forgotten that a reasonable length of skirt is necessary FOR MODESTY.

American Legion for More Virile National Defense

The American Legion in Paris adopted a resolution favoring consolidation of all branches of national defense in one cabinet department.

There are two reasons for a law creating a single department of national defense instead of the present separate War and Navy Departments.

In the first place, a department of national defense, with a secretary of national defense and under-secretaries for air, navy and army, would co-ordinate the nation's defense services and make sure of proper team work in war plans and war operations.

In the second place, the new arrangement would give the under-secretary for air an equal position with the under-secretaries for army and navy. At the present time, aviation is represented in Washington only by subordinate assistant secretaries under the Secretary of War, the Secretary of Navy and the Secretary of Commerce.

This means that in the President's cabinet, and before the budget director, the needs of aviation are presented by cabinet officers whose main interests are the Army and the Navy respectively. These secretaries and the general staffs, whose opinions they reflect, naturally look upon the air service as a newcomer deserving of only a subservient place in the scheme of national defense. Aviation gets the left-overs out of the present appropriations for army and navy.

As a striking illustration of the evils of this system, look at the snail's pace at which we are building up the present separate army and navy air services. We are taking FIVE years to build the 1,800 army airplanes which the Secretary of War has designated as his minimum needs. We are taking five years to build the 1,000 planes for the Navy air service which the Secretary of the Navy says he requires. The whole thousand navy planes, their construction delayed over five years, will cost not over $25,000,000, which is less than the cost of two of the ten new cruisers that Congress will be asked to authorize next session.

In demanding a single department of national defense, with equality of representation for air, army and navy, the American Legion shows it knows the needs of modern warfare. A bill thus reorganizing our defense services will be presented to Congress this next session. It ought to pass.

Aviation Disillusionment

The New York-Spokane air derbies, if less spectacular than the non-stop oceanic flights, are serving to disprove an illusion long deep-rooted in the public mind.

That illusion is that a great fleet of planes can be rushed from one frontier to another with certain speed and sure arrival.

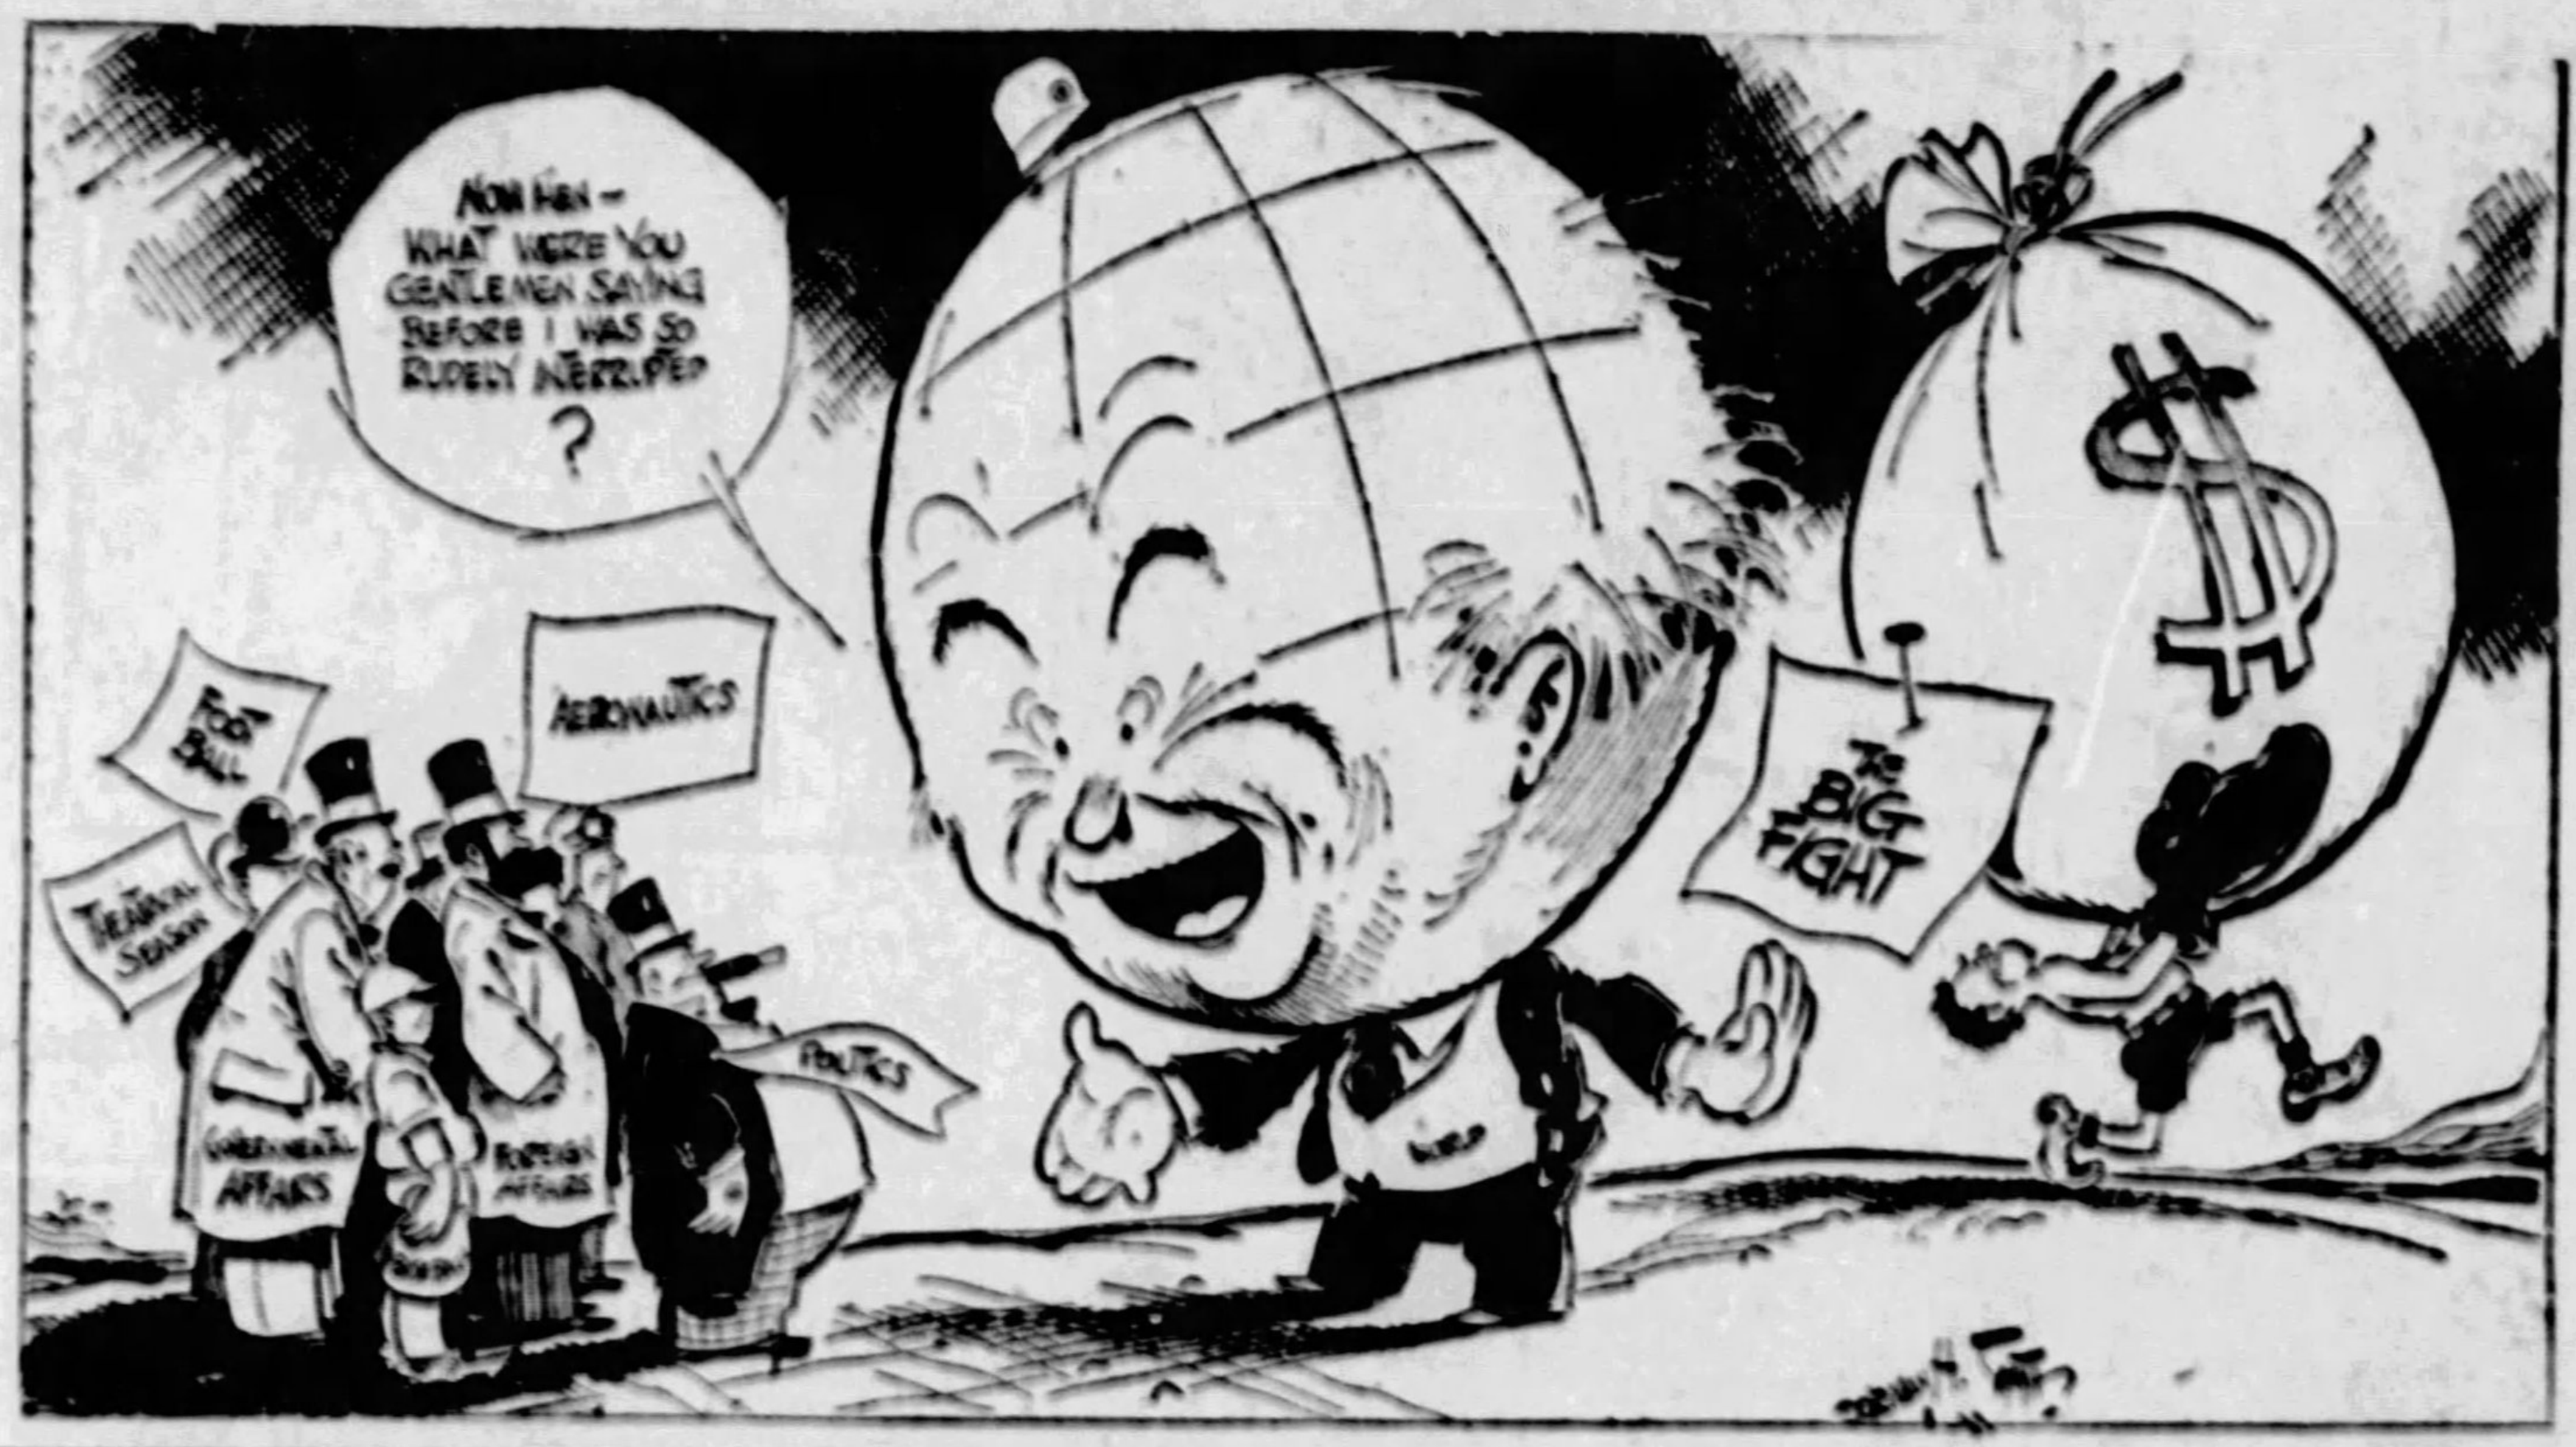
Of the 25 planes hopping Westward September 19, only 12 were in Chicago by night. The second day showed similar uncertainty. Adverse weather was blamed, but in wartime emergencies adverse weather must be beaten.

We need better planes, scornful of weather, sure of wing and certain of arrival. The Army's new air laboratory at Dayton will seek to develop them.

In the meantime we should recognize that airplanes as machines of defense cannot yet be mobilized in appreciable numbers from any great distances.

THE SUN-TELEGRAPH

BACK TO NORMALCY



Garrett P Serviss Says:

London

I HAVE just been looking at London after an absence of 20 years. I could see how the tremendous old town had, in the meantime, spread like an incrustation, picked out with millions of chimney-pots, over the surrounding country, but in the heart of the vast agglomeration the changes did not very much impress me.

The fact is that London does not like change. It prefers to remain its old self, at least as far as external appearance goes. It likes its old physiognomy, and wishes to retain it, and for my part I hope that it will. Let New York aspire to the clouds, and London remain solidly planted heavy and majestic, spreading over the ground instead of climbing into the air.

None of the new buildings that I noticed violates the massive London tradition. London has no sky-line as New York has, because it lies in a vast hollow, rimmed with hills, and when you look over it, say from the edge of Hempstead Heath, its real immensity is what impresses your eyes and imagination, and not the height of its structures, among which St. Paul's almost alone looks grandly conspicuous.

There has been no change among the real glories of London. But its age has, during the last summer, been made almost painfully evident by the way in which some parts of its subsoil have yielded to the combined effects of pressure and increasing vibration. In August a startling subsidence occurred in Cornhill, revealing the astonishing fact that the street had been, during an unknown time, held up by a roof of concrete from beneath which the soil had gradually subsided, leaving an empty chasm.

Work is still going on in strengthening the supports of the huge dome of St. Paul's Cathedral, and many old buildings have been found in a dangerous state, being, in the words of a London architect, "held together only by the paper on the walls."

Here is where the intensified life under the drive of modern conditions has seriously strained the framework of the huge old city. Sir J. W. Simpson, past president of the British Association of Architects, says that hundreds of old buildings in London are subject to strains they were never intended for, owing to the incessant vibration of the heavy traffic on hard roads. The cement of the old brick buildings, he asserts, has been disintegrated by this cause, having served as an absorber of the vibration resulting from millions of tons of traffic. Besides, the subsoil is honeycombed with ancient wells and with water, gas, electric and telephone mains and sewers. The underground railway tubes are deep in the London clay, but the others are not. A recent report to the London Council showed over 5,600 defective houses in the city.

Johnny's Lament

SIS raves about September days, sun-filled, she says, yet cool; but me, I cannot sing their praise, just on account of school! Dad calls the autumn best of all the seasons of the year; but when it comes I can't recall a single cause for cheer. And mother says the red and gold on all the fields and hills fills earth with loveliness untold, and through her being thrills. They may be right; there seems to be some sense in what they claim; but fall does not appeal to me, its joys I cannot name. Ask children, all the country 'round, and you can prove the rule; no joy in autumn have they found, just on account of school.

It seems too bad September days, so sunny, yet so cool, are spoiled for boys and girls always, just on account of school!

A SCOTCHMAN entered a certain restaurant and seated himself at a table. Presently a waiter appeared.

"Yes, sir?" he said, producing an order-book.

The dour Scot ordered a steak, and, on being told that he would have to wait five minutes, started to read his paper.

A little later the waiter came back. He placed a very large plate in front of the Scot. On it rested a very small steak. The customer turned this over with his fork and prodded it.

"Aye, mon," he said gravely, "yon's the kind. Bring me some like it!"—London Answers.

Purposeful Sermon

IN THE course of his sermon a clergyman illustrated a point by saying, "You know you plant roses in the sunshine, and heliotrope and geraniums, but if you want your fuchsias to grow you must keep them in the shade."

After the service a woman approached him, her face beaming with pleasure.

"Oh, I'm so grateful for that sermon!" she said, clasping his hand and shaking it warmly. His heart glowed with this appreciation of his labors, but it glowed only for a moment. "Yes," she went on, "I never did know before what was the matter with my fuchsias!"

Both Wrong

A LONDONER on holiday in a country village was pressed into service one Saturday to play for the local cricket club.

As the visitor had brought no cricketing attire with him, someone lent him a pair of flannels and a multi-colored blazer.

During the tea interval, two of the opposing side came up to him.

"Excuse me," said one, "but my friend and I have been arguing about you. He says you are a Butterfly, and I say you are a Quidnude. Now, which is right?"

"Well, gents," smiled the wearer of the borrowed plumes, "you're both wrong. I'm a fishmonger."—London Tid Bits.

Don't Give Up

SINCE you have passed a certain age, are you allowing yourself to think that you are too old for work which you are still able both mentally and physically to perform?

Are you by these thoughts driving yourself to the human discard?

Just because certain persons you know are not able at your age through lack of physical strength, to do the special work you can do, are you going to conclude that it is time for you to stop?

Because those who hold positions requiring the activity your job demands are mostly much younger men, does that signify that it is time for you to retire?

It may be considerable of a struggle for you to retain the place you have, but why give up before it is necessary?

Once you permit yourself to slip backward, it is easy to keep slipping.

Keep on delivering the goods as long as you can. "Wear out, but don't rust out."

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 26.—Los Angeles is notably distinguished from other large cities by backyard bathing pools. They are as much a part of the modern home as the ordinary bath tub. The finest are featured among the castles of movie folk.

There are many pools so arranged owners may step through French windows of their bedrooms to a springboard and dive into deep water. There are those with indirect lights playing upon them at night and after dinner bathing parties are nightly occurrences.

About the first thing the owner of a fine home shows you is the pool. A house on a hill with a large pool is a tag of distinction. Some pools reveal colorful mosaic bottoms of fantastic design and one movie actress has her own likeness patterned in the blocks. Tom Mix is reported to have the finest pool.

It is not unusual to see limousines filled with guests attired in bathing suits pull up at the curb of a palatial home in the late afternoon to attend a splash party. Rubber rafts are pushed out into the pool by servants in swimming suits and upon them refreshments are served.

And after theatre parties instead of going to supper clubs go to pool parties given by friends. Often you see men and women in evening clothes carrying little bathing suit satchels to the play so as to be prepared for after festivities.

Several pools have balcony arrangements for jazz orchestras and on special occasions swimming and diving to music is a part of the entertainment. One pool party had a band playing breast high in the water. The ocean is only a short distance by motor and the beach resorts are splendid, but Los Angeles enjoys the exclusive swim more.

Too, there are week-end bathing parties where guests arrive Friday evening with only bathing suits and remain until Sunday evening. Despite many high jinks in bathing pools there have been no casualties and that, as a movie actor said, is better than playing with pistols.

Lew Cody and Bryant Washburn, two dream princes of the movies, dropped by today. They had just been for a mustache trim—two snips and the barber cries, "Next"—and were otherwise quite elegant to gaze upon. Lew wore a pair of cream-colored breeches with dollar sized black polka dots and a striped coat that made all the awnings in the neighborhood curl up and droop. Bryant wore an equally modest ensemble—a purple seaside coat with large white buttons and mauve trousers with thin pink pencil stripes. O, yes, and a brown beret.

A front yard grass cutter revealed a slice of his interesting history today. He was a movie parachute jumper and one day the dingus didn't open. He spent three years on his back in a hospital. He says when he has entirely recovered he intends to go back to his parachute. There are many "stunt men" cripples around Los Angeles.

Few men are tanned the nut-brown of Palm Beach here. The actinic rays of an otherwise perfect sunshine are not so scorching. Scientists say blondes live longer here because of the peculiarity of the rays. The predominance of light eyes is noticed in Los Angeles, as indeed in all the southerly states. All of which concludes what seems to me a dull paragraph.

Los Angeles is slowly drifting toward the sea. San Francisco hopes nothing will detain it. The business center has moved perceptibly in that direction and many believe in 20 years the main business streets will be within a few blocks of the ocean.

Captain spots in Los Angeles suggest the Gay Nineties. There are old-fashioned ice cream parlors without soda fountains, candy shops with window jars of stick candy and porches with barrel stave hammocks.

The largest home is on the outskirts of Beverly. It has 57 rooms. There are five in the family and 24 servants. And looks as lively as Grant's Tomb.

James Woods is Los Angeles' Man Everybody Knows. He was once chief of police in San Francisco, and now a wealthy hotel man here. His close friends range from Jack Dempsey, Douglas Fairbanks, Peter B. Kyne, to the highest figures in politics and finance.

Substitutes For Wood

By DR. FRANK CRANE

I HAVE received a circular from a firm which makes steel railroad ties.

This calls attention to the need of the country for finding some substitutes for wood.

The tie business is a tremendous one and consumes about 26 per cent of the timber used annually. It is an essential part of the railroad business.

To supply these ties from wood makes a terrible drain upon the forests of the country.

The old railroad with the dirt system of road bed was hard on the wooden ties, which lasted not much longer than three to five years. When the rock ballast was substituted, ties lasted, when treated with creosote, to an average of about eight years.

The railroad business of the country is just about 100 years old, but it has grown to enormous proportion.

Many trees were perhaps 1,000 to 5,000 years old when the railroads began to use ties, and their use of such material made considerable inroads upon the forest supply of the country. Timber is now so high that it is almost impossible to secure it owing to its scarcity.

The problem before the railroads is unsolvable unless they use some other material for crossties than wood.

In the United States and its territories the railroads are using about 900,000,000 ties annually. It takes about 120,000,000,000 new ties to supply the upkeep and repairs annually. This means destroying about 200,000,000 trees every year. So many small trees are cut in the making and hauling of new ties to the place where they can be marketed that almost as many small trees are destroyed as large ones.

An attempt has been made to plant trees for the purpose of reforesting the country. It takes at least 50 or 60 years to grow a good white oak tree in order to make one railroad tie. By letting the trees stand 25 years longer you could perhaps produce two ties, and in 100 years would make four ties, so it would take at least 300 years to reforest the country and make a complete success of it.

It is the duty of the people to see that the railroads find substitutes for wooden ties.

Steel is 100 per cent better than wood and should be used in all instances where we can substitute it for wood.

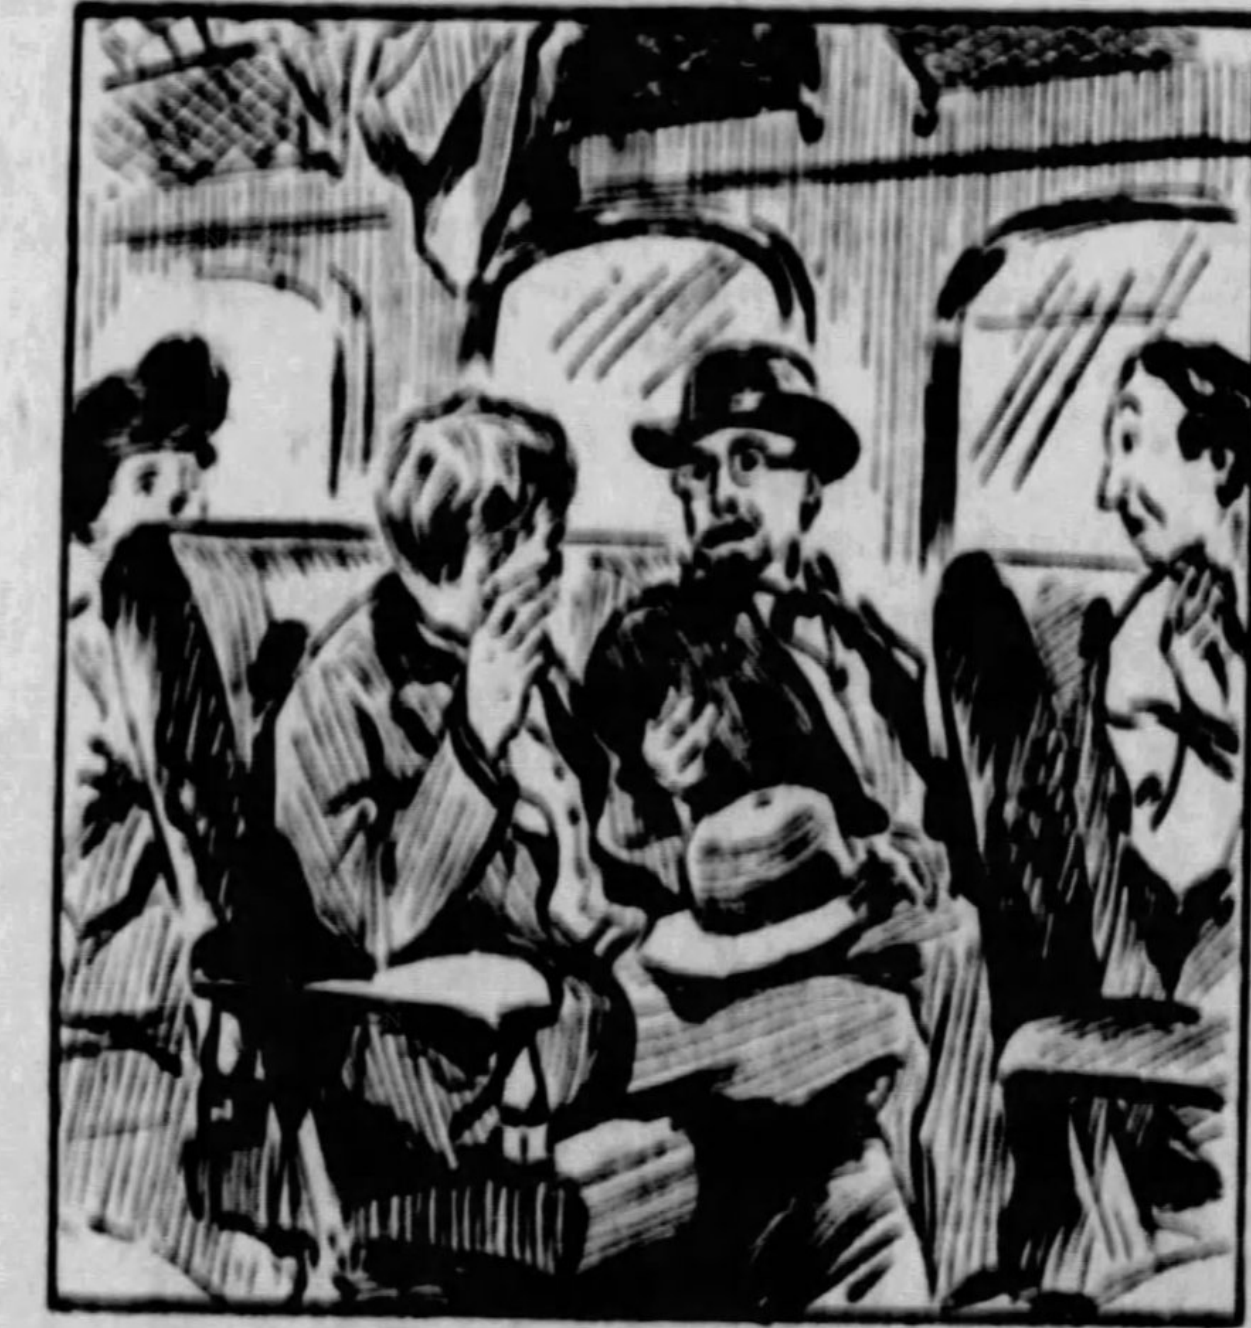
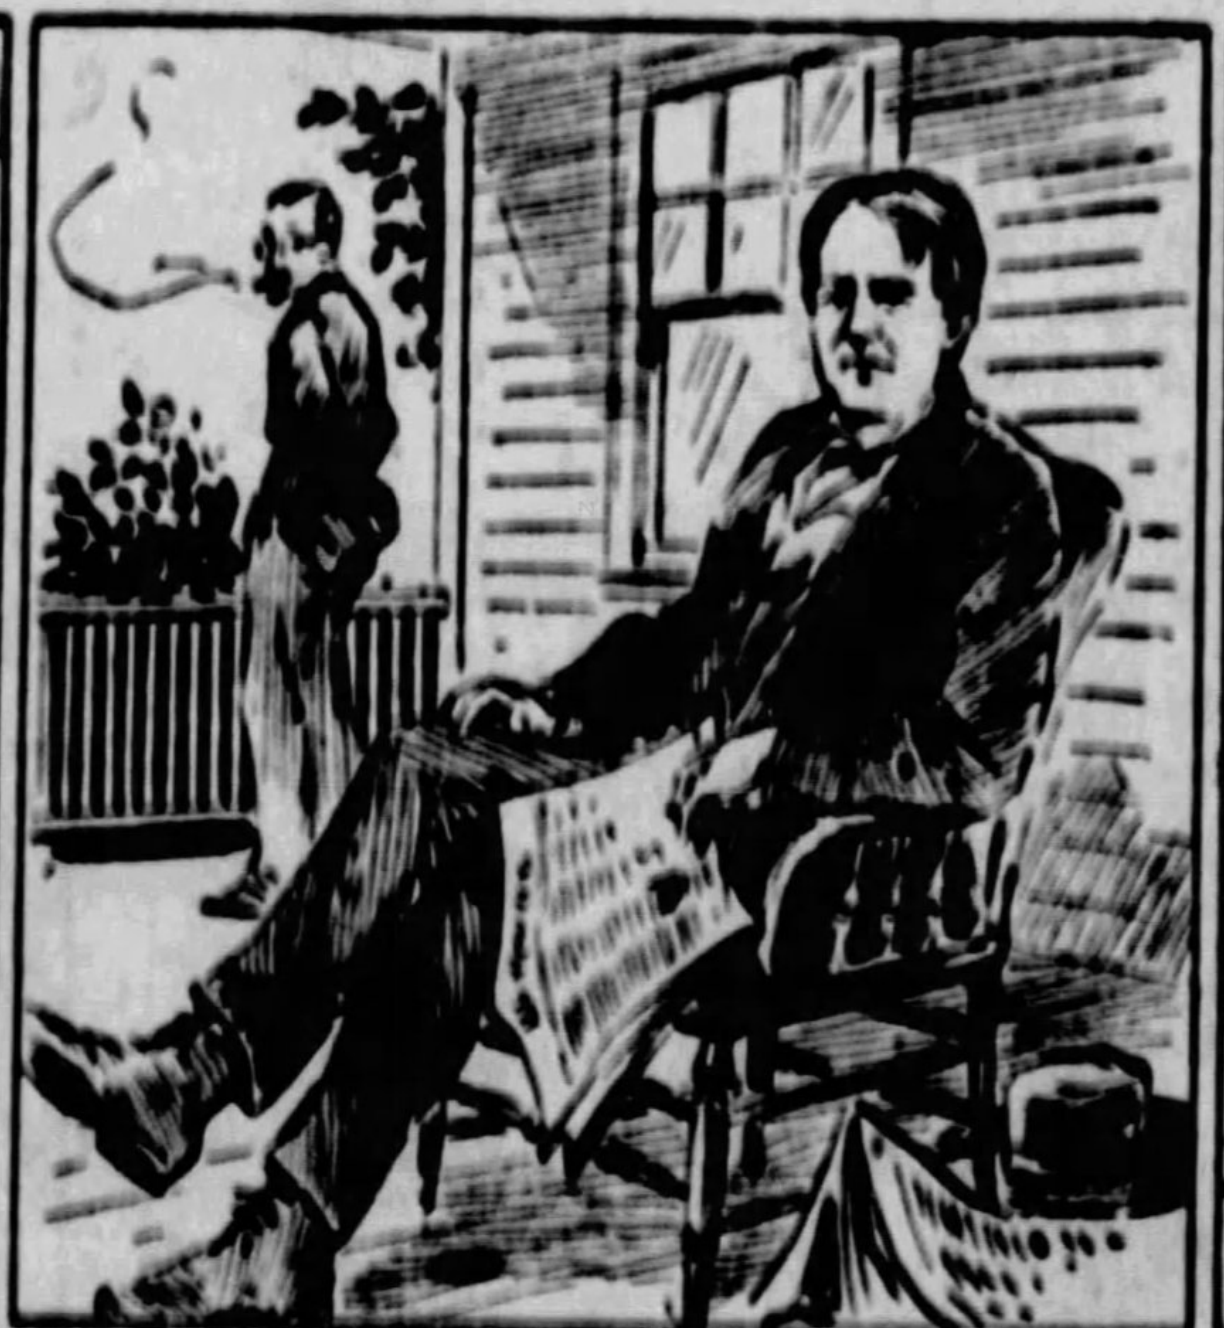
THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized and Endorsed by Mr. Edison)

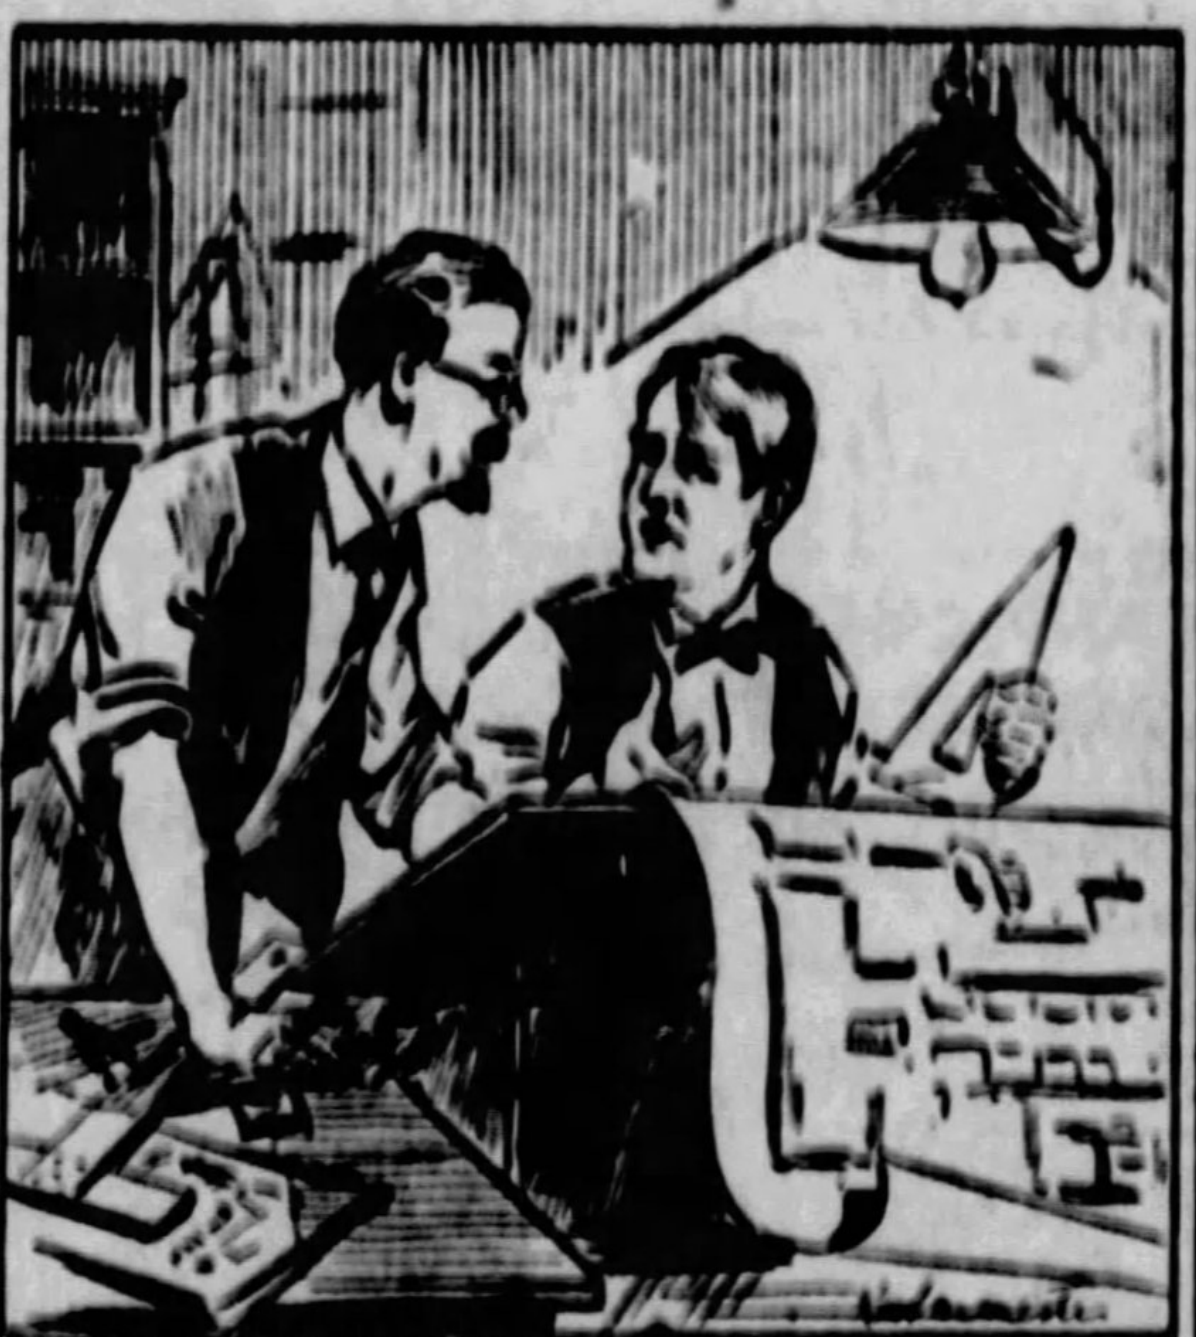
Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister



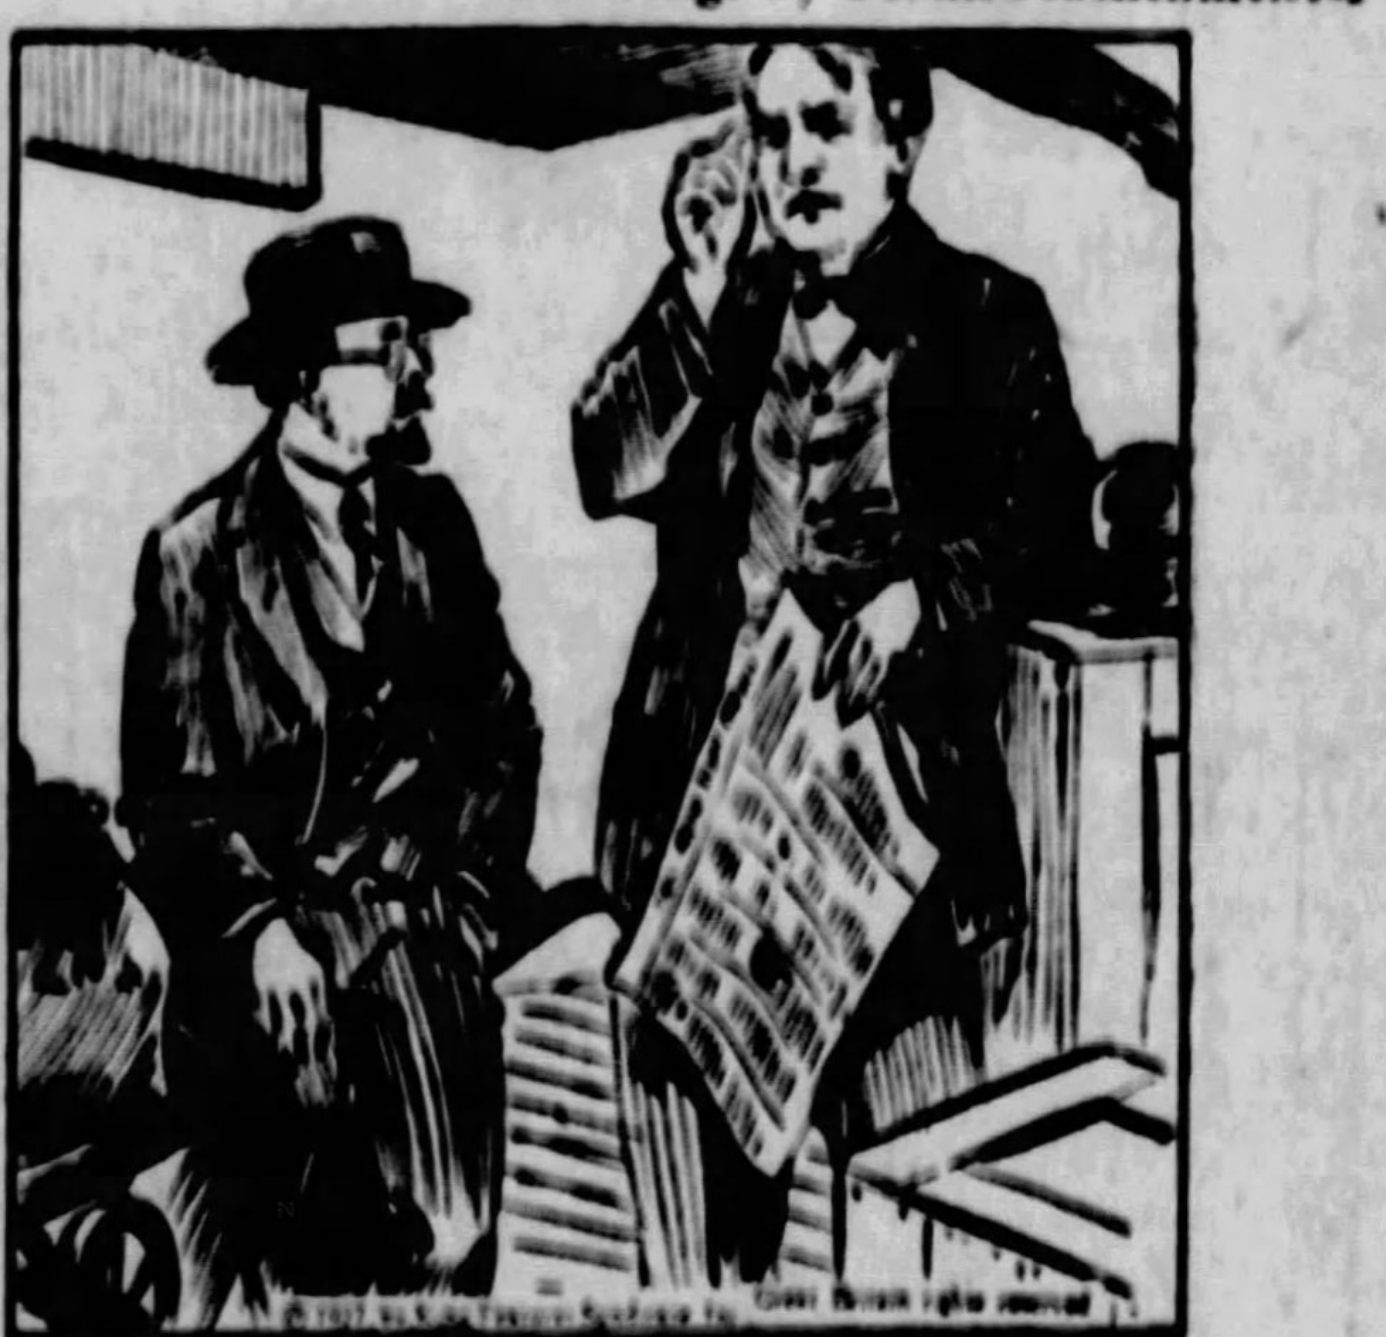
RIGHT on the eve of success Edison's great milling plant was shut down because great deposits of rich ore, which could be mined under Edison's costs, had been discovered in Minnesota. Thus nine years of hard work were swept away. But Edison was undaunted. He was already planning the future on his trip home to Orange.



IN 1910 Edison revisited the ore plant. Reminiscing on other days he remarked: "I never felt better in my life than during the five years I worked here. Hard work, nothing to divert my thoughts, clear air and simple food made my life very pleasant. We learned a great deal. It will be of benefit to someone some time."



WHEN Mr. Mallory, his associate, announced to Edison that he had made financial arrangements for the cement plant he suggested that they hire engineers to lay out the plant. Edison said he was going to do it himself. They went upstairs to the draughting room and within twenty-four hours Edison had every detail laid out to his satisfaction.



ONCE at a railroad station Edison noticed in a newspaper a high quotation for Edison General Electric stock. He had sold all his at a low price and he asked Mr. Mallory: "What would my stock be worth if I had held it?" Mallory answered: "Over $4,000,000." "Well," said Edison, "It's all gone, but we had a damn good time spending it."
